CHARITY FUNDS DRIVE STARTED FOR $2,601,000

Community Chest Opens Campaign for 1932 in Big Rally.

NOTABLE SPEAKERS URGE PRESSING NEED

Rabbi Wise and Others Plead for Generosity in Raising $900,000.

The Community Chest drive is on. It was launched yesterday afternoon at Constitution Hall with a concert from the National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Hans Kindler, and addresses from Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York City, former Assistant Attorney General John F. Crosby and others. It will end in eight days, when the goal of $2,601,000 is expected to have been reached.

The music, community singing and the words of encouragement from Dr. Wise and the other speakers served as the necessary spark to ignite the 3,000 workers into a final blaze of enthusiasm. Confidence that the Chest "will go over the top" was reflected both in the speeches and in the response of the several thousands present.

"Regardless of whether there is to be Federal Aid for the relief of unemployment, first aid should begin with and through the people of Washington, acting through the Community Chest," Dr. Wise told the large gathering. "Even if Federal aid is given, it must not serve as an excuse for our own failure to give to the maximum of our power and capacity," he added.

Wise Advises Firmness.

Dr. Wise advised the workers to be firm in seeking donations, "to make the people feel that it is their common duty to help and serve." "There are three tests of every gift," he added: "it must bless the giver, the recipient and the altar. Multitudes of people of all races are served and aided through the Community Chest, but I warn you that the community will not be blessed, nor the recipients really helped unless the community gives out of a spirit of conviction of the worth-whileness of community spirit or neighborliness and unless it gives with enthusiasm and adequacy."

Dr. Wise declared that if the Community Chest had never been established the present crisis would have demanded the establishment of some similar relief organization.

He declared that he did not feel it necessary to make a case for the Community Chest in Washington. "I do not agree with the man who told me in New York yesterday that I was attempting an impossible job 'in trying to make the people of Washington give away money that is not in the United States Treasury.'"

Police in Honolulu Put on Probation

Fortescue Attorneys Make Plea for Dismissal of Charges Today.

Honolulu, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—This city's new police commission, created as a step toward solution of a so-called "crime wave," today notified all members of the police force they would be reappointed for a probationary period of one year, starting February 1, when the commission takes office.

Meanwhile attorneys for Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two enlisted naval men, A. O. Jones and E. J. Lord, prepared to appear tomorrow in Circuit Court to argue a motion to dismiss the police court charge of murder brought against them in connection with the death of Joseph Kahahawai, suspected attacker of Mrs. Massie.

San Francisco, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Fortescue, 16, daughter of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, arrived here today aboard the Army transport, Republic, from Honolulu. Rear Admiral W. C. Cole sent a gig from Yerba Buena Island and took her off the transport before it docked. She was taken to the Admiral's home. Reached by telephone, Admiral Cole said if he could prevent it, "there would be no interviews or photographs of this innocent 16-year-old girl."

Auto Kills Woman On Baltimore Pike

Driver Is Exonerated at Inquest in Death of Berwyn Resident.

Mrs. Etta L. Johnson, 48 years old, of Berwyn, Md., was killed last night when struck by an automobile driven by Harry W. McNamee on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard between College Park and Berwyn.

Mrs. Johnson was walking on the road with her husband, who is employed at the experimental farms of the University of Maryland. Mrs. Johnson was taken to the office of Dr. A. O. Etienne, at Berwyn, where she was pronounced dead.

An inquest was held before Justice of the Peace Harry W. Phillips, and Mr. McNamee, a Berwyn merchant, was exonerated by the jury.

PAUL M. WARBURG.

PAUL WARBURG DIES AT 63; NOTED BANKER

New York, Jan 24 (A.P.).—Paul M. Warburg, international banker, died tonight at 6:30 o'clock. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Warburg, one of the pioneers in the establishment of the Federal Reserve System, succuumbed to hypostatic pneumonia.

He became ill early in December on his return from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where he had passed a belated vacation following a period of strenuous work in connection with the European financial situation. His condition, however, had improved steadily until January 8, when he contracted pneumonia.

At his bedside were Mrs. Warburg and their two children, a son and a daughter. Mrs. Warburg said he had shown the effects of overwork, which prevented him from taking his usual summer vacation, and that he was greatly worn when he finally went South in the autumn.

In recent years the banker had centered most of his time and energy in the development of the Manhattan group of financial institutions. He had been active in directing a large share of the short-term credit advances by these and other banks to Germany, but kept himself well posted on the operation of the Federal Reserve system.

We was known in Wall street as a member of the "old school." During the days of wildest speculation he confined the activities of institutions which he directed to a "straight banking business."

He was one of the comparatively few ultraconservative bankers, which included George F. Baker, sr., who died early last year, to fight strongly the rising tide of stock speculation, but his advice was brushed aside by the speculative group, who referred to the conservatives as men who were "behind the times."

In March, 1929, Mr. Warburg's strong attack on the Federal Reserve Board for failure to restrict rising credit advances to stock market interests drew a sharp reply from some of his own associates in the Wall street banking field. He held his position, however, and repeatedly issued warnings against speculative excess.

His love of his old fatherland was second only to his love for his adopted country, intimate associates said.

Rio Grande Span Burns; Incendiaries Suspected

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Fire virtually destroyed the Santa Fe Railroad's international bridge over the Rio Grande River here today. Authorities on both sides of the river believed the blaze was of incendiary origin.

Twelve bents of the bridge on the Mexican side and twenty on the American were burned. The eight untouched were near the center of the structure. The span was built in 1930 at a cost of approximately $250,000.

HYDE RENEWS CHARGE LOANS WERE ILLEGAL

Answers Senator Glass and Restates Part of New York Speech.

AVOWS LEGISLATION WAS NEVER ENACTED

But Two Billion Advanced to Europe, Anyway, He Declares.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde yesterday renewed his charge that approximately $2,000,000,000 of American Liberty loan funds were advanced to European governments after the armistice without the authority of law.

In a carefully prepared reply to Senator Glass, of Virginia, Secretary Hyde repeated that part of his recent New York address which Mr. Glass challenged in the Senate last Thursday and then undertook to sustain his charge by the official utterances of Treasury officials in 1918-19.

Both Secretaries McAdoo and Glass appeared before the House ways and means committee after the armistice to seek broader authority for the Treasury in the matter of foreign loans, Secretary Hyde recalled.

Legislation Not Enacted.

"The legislation was not enacted. Nevertheless, the loans were made," his statement continued. "Perhaps the senator will be good enough to explain to the American people why, if the Treasury already had power to make these loans, he and Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Rathbone (Assistant Secretary of the Treasury) were asking for authority to make them."

Secretary Hyde's statement consisted largely of quotations from hearings of the House ways and means committee, official reports of the Secretary of the Treasury prior to 1921, the final report of the War Debt Funding Commission and a special report on foreign loans submitted by the Senate judiciary committee in December, 1921.

Every act of Congress authorizing loans to foreign governments, Secretary Hyde asserted, specifically limited such funds to the prosecution of the war.

Sought Broader Powers.

In his annual report for 1918, published about a month after the armistice, Secretary McAdoo disclosed his intention of seeking broader loan powers from Congress. On December 12, 1918, Secretary McAdoo appeared before the House ways and means committee to present an amendment to the then projected victory loan act.

"The purpose of this amendment," Secretary McAdoo explained, "is to enlarge the power so that we may lend for other purposes than those necessitated by the war."

Having assumed the duties of Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Glass appeared before the same committee on February 15, 1919, to urge again

Brigands Debate Fate Of Kidnaped American

Hankow, China, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A message from the American gunboat Oahu tonight said an emissary of the brigands who kidnaped Capt. Charles Baker, American, last week, had arrived and reported his masters were deliberating over Capt. Baker's fate.

The emissary said the bandits, stationed 70 miles north of the gunboat's position, would notify the Oahu or the American consulate at Hankow "when their demands had been determined."

Gruel Unsweetened, 300 British Felons Riot

2 Reported Killed in Dartmoor Outbreak, Worst in Empire's History and Directed to Music; Life-Termer Saves Commissioner.

Dartmoor, Devon, England, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Three hundred convicts at grim Dartmoor Prison, enraged over a mess of unsweetened porridge, waged a bitter, futile battle with prison guards and police today in the most violent penal outbreak in British history.

Two convicts were understood to have been killed, 95 were wounded and one was believed to have escaped in an all-day conflict in which the prisoners burned the principal buildings and attempted a wholesale escape over the walls. Twelve warders and police were injured.

The home office in London issued a statement, however, saying no inmates had been killed and none had escaped. Only about 20 remained in the hospital according to this source and none of the injuries to guards or police was serious.

The prisoners, who claimed to have been goaded on by mistreatment which reached a climax when sugar was omitted from their breakfast porridge, rioted early in the day and seriously threatened the lives of the governor, S. N. Roberts, and a commissioner, Col. Turner.

Long before dawn the prison was in a hubbub with the inmates beating on their cell doors and walls in protest. When the men were paraded into the courtyard for exercise prior to chapel, they banded together and began to battle with their guards.

Led by one convict with a bugle, the rioters were about to gain the day and achieve their freedom when police reinforcements arrived from Plymouth and surrounding towns and forced them back to the cell blocks with rifle fire and baton charges.

In the meantime, one group had broken into the governor's office and forced him to flee for his life. They set fire to the administrative buildings and destroyed them with the official records. It was late in the afternoon before the fire was brought under control and the outbreak was thoroughly quelled.

Outside the walls the male residents of Princetown had armed themselves with rifles and their women folk hid in terror behind locked doors.

The prison governor immediately sent calls for aid to police stations at Exeter, Plymouth and neighboring towns. Police came from all di-

HOOVER SPURS BILLS TO HELP DEPOSITORS

Talks With Watson and Snell on Legislation for Relief of Bank Victims.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover turned yesterday to the next step in the emergency economic program—legislation for relief of depositors of closed banks.

Meanwhile, mobilization of the new gigantic Reconstruction Finance Corporation proceeded rapidly.

An understanding was reached at a White House breakfast between the President, Senator Watson, of Indiana, and Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican floor leaders, to press for congressional authority for an organization to speed payments to depositors in closed banks.

Two bills providing for this action are well along in congressional deliberations. That of Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, for revision of the banking system provides for a liquidating corporation. The administration has a measure sponsored by Senator Thomas (Republican), Idaho, for a similar $150,000,000 organization.

Every energy was being directed, meanwhile, by the administration to put into operation the titanic Reconstruction Corporation established last week by Congress. Secretary Mellon announced an issue of $350,000,000 in Treasury certificates. Of this sum, $290,000,000 is for meeting the initial needs of the two billion dollar credit agency.

Today President Hoover will forward to the Senate for confirmation some, if not all, of his nominees for the four directorates of the corporation. These will include the name of Charles G. Dawes, who already has taken command of the business-stimulating organization.

The other three to be chosen by the President must be Democrats and he has met some difficulty in these

Reds Fight Hitlerites; Nazi Student Is Killed

Berlin, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A 16-year-old Nazi student was stabbed and killed today when Communists attacked followers of Adolf Hitler, who were distributing handbills. It was Berlin's third political slaying within a week. Two Communists were arrested.

Alfred Rosenberg, right-hand man of Hitler, Germany's Fascist leader, charged in a speech tonight that Chancellor Bruening was enlisting foreign help against "nationalist Germany."

100,000 Imperiled In Southern Flood

Distress Increases While Week-End Rains Renew Menace to Refugees.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Flood waters tonight covered 1,000,000 acres of north Mississippi farmlands and townsites and affected upward of 100,000 persons, many of whom were homeless and hungry. Every stream in the vast stricken area was rising again due to a 3-inch rainfall over the week-end.

Suffering was acute as the people moved about in boats or huddled in makeshift relief camps, weary and discouraged after futilely battling rising waters for six weeks. Many persons were marooned due to new levee breaks. There was a general shortage of food, clothing, boats and tents for shelter. Scattered cases of disease were reported.

The overflow waters moved southward tonight into the lower delta region, threatening thousands of acres of fertile truck farming land.

BIPARTY MOVE MADE TO HALT FUND BILLS

Garner, Rainey and Snell Ask Curb Upon Appropriation Measures.

(United Press.)

A new bipartisan effort to prevent any new spending by the Government was started yesterday on the heels of a drastic effort to reduce personnel costs.

Speaker John N. Garner, Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey and Republican Leader B. H. Snell sent letters to all major House committees asking them not to bring out any bills for new appropriations.

"It is our sincere hope that no bill authorizing additional appropriations will be reported at this session, unless very compelling and urgent reasons can be shown therefor," the House leaders wrote.

Administration officials hailed the move with pleasure, as it carries out thoroughly President Hoover's own economy program. It was pointed out that the job of raising $500,000,000 immediately for the reconstruction corporation's capital will take all the available cash the Treasury can raise.

The new economy drive may doom the La Lollette-Costigan bill providing $375,000,000 in direct relief to unemployed, which the Senate takes up today; the proposed naval building bill and numerous bills for further extensions of public works. In addition, it is expected to cause further paring of the already trimmed estimates for Government expenses sent to Congress by the Budget Bureau.

The appeal dovetails with the drastic action of the House Saturday in barring salary increases and the filling of vacancies which occur during the next one and one-half years in the Agriculture Department. This is to be followed by similar provisions in each of the departmental money bills, which will have the effect of reducing severely the Government's working force.

The personnel economy move is expected to meet opposition in the Senate when the money bills reach that body. Representative F. H. Laguardia (Republican), New York, denounced the move Saturday as a "dirty and cowardly" move which will create a precedent for private employers further to cut wages.

The United States Chamber of Commerce threw its weight behind proposals for Federal economies, including "payroll retrenchment," which was cited as "imperative," with possibilities of a cut of up to $500,000,000 a year.

The chamber made public a report of its committee on Government

"Secret Six" Bares Kidnap Ring Data

May Be Used to Back Bill Providing Death for Abduction.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Alexander Jamie, chief investigator for the "Secret Six," said tonight the organization has developed important evidence against the leaders of a huge kidnaping syndicate.

The evidence may be used, other workers of the Secret Six said, in supporting the movement for a Federal law providing the death penalty for kidnapers. A bill providing for such a penalty has been introduced in Congress by Senator Patterson (Republican), Missouri.

"We have evidence against several men high up in the kidnaping gang," Jamie said. "Arrests may be made at any time. From the developments so far, we believe we are on the way toward clearing up a good many kidnaping cases." Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the Secret Six, returned today from Washington.

23 CHINESE DIE AT SHANGHAI AS SHIP EXPLODES

City Panicky as Japanese Bombardment Rumor Is Circulated.

AMERICAN EXPRESS MANAGER IS KILLED

Attempt Is Made to Burn Home of Tokyo Envoy; Bomb in Theater.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Shanghai, China, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Alarmed by the silent threat of ten alien warships at anchor off the waterfront and shocked by a munitions explosion that rocked the city, the population of Shanghai tonight awaited a showdown on the Japanese demand that China end her anti-Japanese boycott and make reparations for a series of hostile and violent incidents.

The city was confused and panicky as a result of these rapid developments in the conflict, which has thrust the Chinese republic dangerously close to actual warfare with Japan:

1. A Chinese munitions launch, carrying supplies to secret fortifications, exploded in midstream, killing 23 Chinese and causing panic throughout the city, where it was believed a Japanese air bombardment had begun.

Government Crisis.

2. A government crisis was threatened when the leaders of the new Nanking regime, particularly Foreign Minister Eugene Chen, failed to persuade the deposed, but powerful, Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek to support proposals for breaking off relations with Japan and formally asking the League of Nations to declare an economic and diplomatic boycott against Tokyo.

3. Dr. Alexander Porges, Austrian manager of the American Express Co. office, was killed by a nervous Chinese sentry, and foreigners were anxiously seeking protection of foreign consuls and troops.

4. A series of terroristic incidents, including an attempt to burn the residence of the Japanese Minister; a bomb attack on Shanghai's largest motion picture theater and minor disturbances, caused remobilization of the international settlement police.

Military Preparations.

5. Chinese authorities appeared to be making military preparations, but the Japanese naval officials promised that no action would be taken without ample warning to the population of Shanghai, which includes some 5,000 Americans.

A showdown on the Japanese ultimatum, demanding that the Chinese government make reparation for various incidents and that the anti-Japanese economic boycott cease, is not expected before 24 hours. The Japanese foreign office declared that Shanghai would not be occupied except that there is a possibility that Chinese forts at the mouth of the River Yangtze will be seized to en-

Hoover Goes to Church Alone; Wife Is Still Ill

(Associated Press.)

Because Mrs. Herbert Hoover is still confined to the White House with a slight cold, the President yesterday went to church alone.

With his customary guard of Secret Service men he motored to the little gray stone Friends Church for the Quaker services and returned almost immediately to the Executive Mansion. Mr. Hoover spent considerable time in his study, during the day, and conferred during the morning with several congressional leaders.

Alexandria Pupils Display Interest in Essay Contest

Inspiration of George Washington and Bicentennial Observance to Young Citizens Is Great, and Many Write to Ask for Booklets.

Alexandria, the home city of George Washington, so to speak, and a town marked with his interest and former presence on all sides, will participate enthusiastically in The Post Washington Essay contest, it was learned yesterday, in a summary made of the boys and girls who have signified their intentions of entering the contest.

Public, private and parochial schools of the neighboring city on the Potomac will be represented among the entrants striving to win a share of the prize money for the honor of their school and town. The inspiration of George Washington and the bicentennial observance is very great upon young Alexandrians, it can be seen, by the essays and letters being received from the section of nearby Virginia. The City of Alexandria was especially designated by those in charge of The Post Washington Essay contest because of George Washington's personal connection with this historic town.

It was felt that no essay contest dealing with George Washington would be complete without a representation from Alexandria, where so many landmarks remind its young people daily of their distinguished former fellow townsman, as it were.

The Washington Post receives requests daily from other cities and towns and counties in Virginia and Maryland outside those designated as within the limits of the contest, asking whether or not the pupils in the schools there can compete.

It is announced with regret that no entries can be received other than from the City of Washington and those counties in Maryland and Virginia originally announced as being within the competition.

Many novel inquiries and suggestions are made to The Post Essay

Beaver Dam Country Club Burns; Loss Set at $60,000

Short Circuit Blamed for Blaze Which Destroys Frame Building; Employes Who Were Sleeping Escape; Rebuilding Already Planned.

The clubhouse of the Beaver Dam Country Club at Landover, Md., was destroyed early yesterday by a fire which swept the three-story frame structure causing damage estimated at $60,000. No one was injured. The fire is believed to have been caused by a short circuit.

Three employes of the club, who were sleeping in the building were aroused by the heat and smoke and safely left the building. The fire started in the east end and soon enveloped the entire structure.

The blaze gained headway and when firemen arrived their attempts to save the building were futile. It burned for five hours. People living nearby notified the Bladensburg fire department.

The country club had a membership of about 500, most of whom are residents of the District, and its roster includes Representatives, Army officers, and many prominent officials of the District.

The club was opened on August 29, 1923, by Edward S. Brashears, president of the club. It was formerly a cow pasture of the Thompson Dairy Co. and the clubhouse the car barn. The club officials spent approximately $40,000 in remodeling the barn into a commodious clubhouse. Soon after its organization the club became the country club of the now defunct City Club.

Mr. Brashears held a meeting with officials yesterday and arranged for temporary quarters for the club members in an eleven-room farm house, owned by the club, on the property. A meeting of the board of directors will be held Wednesday.

Mr. Brashears announced last night that plans are being made for the construction of a modern clubhouse to cost $60,000 to replace the one destroyed. It is planned to have the contemplated quarters ready for occupancy by May 15.

ENGLAND TO NAME DRUMMOND ENVOY TO U. S., IS REPORT

SIR ERIC DRUMMOND.

Will Take Place of Lindsay, It Is Asserted.

DUE TO RESIGN COUNCIL POST

Appointment Would Be Seen As Boost to Pro-Leaguers.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Washington diplomatic circles were stirred last night at the report that Sir Eric Drummond, first secretary general of the League of Nations, was to succeed Sir Ronald Lindsay as British Ambassador to the United States.

The resignation of the secretary of the league is expected to be made soon after the forthcoming session of the assembly at Geneva. Sir Eric Drummond has been the guiding spirit of the league ever since its creation by President Woodrow Wilson. The nomination of the league's own secretary as ambassador here is expected to have a profound influence on the development of pro-league sentiment in the United States just as the Senate is about to be invited to consider American participation in the World Court.

The appointment of the British League authority will be made, it was rumored here, as soon as Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has found another post adequate to the talents and career of Sir Ronald Lindsay. Sir Ronald has had an enviable record in the foreign office as Ambassador at Angora, at Berlin and as permanent undersecretary.

Would Meet With Favor.

The nomination of Sir Eric Drummond would be sure to find prompt agreement in the State Department, as he has been one of the most enthusiastic supporters of American participation in the deliberations of the league, either on a nominal basis, as during the recent Manchurian crisis, or on a quasi-informal understanding, as prevailed hitherto.

Sir Eric Drummond is the next in succession to the Duke of Fife. His wife is a cousin of Sir Esme Howard, former British Ambassador here, who is generally conceded to have been one of the most popular diplomatic representatives of Great Britain in over a decade. The private secretary of Sir Eric in Geneva is a Miss Howard, a niece of the former Ambassador here.

The present secretary general of the league has held one of the most difficult positions in modern international politics. Despite the fact that he is British, his nationality has never swayed his decisions in any way. In fact on several occasions, when Sir Austen Chamberlain was British foreign secretary, the British secretary general of the league and the British foreign minister have clashed on important matters of doctrine and principle.

Visited U. S. During War.

During the war Sir Eric Drummond was a visitor to the United States in his position as private secretary to Lord Balfour. He made the acquaintance of President Wilson then and when the League of Nations was founded at Versailles afterward. Drummond was private secretary to Lloyd George during the peace conference.

Drummond has been desirous of retiring from the league for some time, but in almost every instance the pressure from the British foreign

SALVADOR IS PLACED UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Communist Revolt Reported Quelled After Bloodshed; U. S. Ships Due Today.

San Salvador, El Salvador, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Martial law was declared throughout Salvador today in a determination to put down Communist uprisings in which more than four persons have been killed.

"Red hordes" provoked disorders in several towns of the interior, an official communique said. The mayor, municipal secretary, local army commandant and a telegrapher were killed at Colon, in the Department of La Libertad.

Strong bands of Communists attacked the barracks at Ahuachapana and Sonsonate, and burned several houses at Juayua. Troops, meeting strong resistance at Sonsonate, fired on the Communists, killing and wounding an undetermined number. Others were captured.

The government accused the Communists of attempting to instigate a reign of terror, with the intention of killing the "bourgeoisie." As a result, all persons holding private permits to carry guns have been authorized to defend themselves with arms, if necessary.

The cabinet met and said the Communist trouble ran throughout this tiny Central American republic. It extended martial law, which had been applied in one zone last Wednesday, throughout the country as part of its announced determination to maintain public order.

Offenders, it said, would be imprisoned and punished. The Communist offensive was repulsed at all points, including Santa Tecla, it added, and loyal troops were pursuing the Communistic bands.

Panama City, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—American and British warships were on the way to Salvador today to help two Canadian ships, hastening there, to protect foreign lives and property in the Communist uprisings.

The United States cruiser Rochester sailed this morning. The de-

Panama President's Son Arrives in New York

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Victor J. Alfaro, accompanied by his wife, arrived in New York today on the United Fruit Liner Ulua, after a three weeks' visit with his father, the President of Panama. Conditions in Panama, he said, were fairly good, and he found his father in excellent health.

Dr. Alfaro is a graduate of the Georgetown Medical School and has been practicing medicine in Washington for the last two years. Mrs. Alfaro is the former Nancy Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hamilton, of Washington. She and Dr. Alfaro were married in 1929.

Bartlett Again May Run For Congressional Seat

(Associated Press.)

John H. Bartlett is considering again entering a race for Congress from New Hampshire. He was defeated early this year by William N. Rogers for the First New Hampshire seat.

He issued this statement:

"I have received hundreds of letters and wires to run again in the fall. I may feel it my duty to do so. I ran before as a matter of duty, not as a matter of desire; I may do so again. I can be elected with a fair chance and with snowless weather."

RAILWAY HEADS COMPLETE NEW WAGE CUT PLAN

Stand Will Be Presented Today to Leaders of Labor.

MODIFICATION MADE IN ORIGINAL PROGRAM

Officials Agree Confidence Is Needed in Initial Reply to Unions.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The committee of nine railroad presidents negotiating with the railroad unions for a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction tonight completed a revised statement of their position. The revision, according to Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was intended "to more nearly meet the views of labor" as presented to the presidents yesterday.

The clarification of the rail presidents' position on the unions' labor stabilization plan clears the way for an early vote by the unions on acceptance or rejection of the wage cut.

The revised statement was transmitted to David B. Robertson, chairman of the union leaders, who said it would be submitted to representatives of the 21 unions tomorrow morning. Both Robertson and Willard refused to make public its contents.

Previous Answer Revealed.

Union leaders had previously refused to submit the question of the wage reduction for a vote until the presidents had offered a more definite statement of their stand relative to the unions' stabilization program. Robertson said tonight he expected the unions would require at least all of Monday to consider the executives' statement.

Earlier in the day Robertson had made public the rail executives' previous answer to the request of the unions for stabilization of employment.

Under the heading of "immediate measures" the unions had sought to "stabilize employment by assuring one year of employment to the necessary employes in every class—(A)—this stabilization should include provisions for putting to work as many men as possible consistent with maintaining satisfactory conditions in the respective classes of employment. (B) the necessary stand-by forces should also be assured of a minimum of part-time employment."

To this the railroad presidents' answer was:

Want to End Uncertainty.

"(A)—We agree that whatever may be practicable should be done to remove the feeling of uncertainty which may exist at the present time in the minds of many who are now employed either upon a whole or part-time basis. Varying conditions make it necessary to deal with these questions by local negotiations between management and men on each railroad. The railroads will carry on such negotiations for the purpose of stabilizing employment so far as possible for such periods as conditions may justify.

"(B)—We can not encourage the thought that the so-called necessary stand-by forces can be assured of a minimum amount of work each month."

selections. They must come from separate Federal Reserve districts, and most of the names recommended to Mr. Hoover are from the South.

Harvey C. Couch, Arkansas public utilities man, is regarded as one of those most assured of a place. Others proposed include M. B. Wellborn, former governor of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank; Jesse Jones, of Texas, who is here now, and Angus W. McLean, former Governor of North Carolina. A selection from the Northwest is being studied and this is causing the difficulty.

The Senate is prepared to pass today the House bill appropriating the $500,000,000 capital stock of the Reconstruction Corporation. With the formal confirmation of the directors, work can proceed, and the many preliminary steps already have been taken.

Senator Watson predicted yesterday Congress would bend its next effort to the problem of helping the millions whose savings are locked up in closed banks.

However, Senator Lafollette (Republican), Wisconsin, is ready to demand action on the measure he and Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, are sponsoring to appropriate $375,000,000 for Federal aid to the unemployed, a proposition opposed by the administration and facing a stiff contest.

Some negotiations are necessary to determine whether the Glass or the Thomas bills will be fostered as the depositors' relief legislation.

Aside from this other step in the Hoover emergency relief program, there is little likelihood of additional points being enacted. The bill urged by the President for establishment of a home loan discounting bank system faces opposition, and Senator Watson, who is pushing the measure, concedes "it faces rough sledding."

An interest rate higher than that of any outstanding certificate issues is to be paid by the Treasury on the new issue, which is divided into two series. Interest on the corporation's securities is expected to be even higher.

One of the Treasury series will mature August 1 and bear interest at 3½ per cent, while the other will be for twelve months at the rate of 3¾ per cent. The amount of each series will be determined by the Treasury, based upon the proportion the total subscription for one series bears to the total subscriptions for both.

DRUMMOND LINKED IN ENVOY DISCUSSION

office, anxious to maintain British prestige at Geneva, has prevented his demission.

The rigors of another winter at Geneva, which is greatly to be feared by Lady Drummond, is one of his reasons for leaving now. Another and more important reason is that his nomination as British Ambassador to the United States will exactly coincide with the drive launched in Philadelphia last week by Nicholas Murray Butler and George W. Wickersham to bring the United States into the league or at least into the league court.

The disappearance of Sir Eric Drummond from the league will provoke one of the bitterest international contests since the creation of the Society of Nations. The great powers will array themselves in support of their individual candidates and the smaller nations anxious to preserve the balance of power will as strenuously resist any steamrolling tactics.

The candidate as successor of Sir Eric, who is believed to have the best chances of success, is Edouard Benes, the famous Czechoslovakian statesman, who will be assured of the support of France and of the French political allies like Poland, Jugoslavia and Roumania. The eminent French statesmen who has been the inspiration of the league in all its difficult moments, Aristide Briand, is not expected to present his candidacy on account of his advanced age.

Any French candidate will have to encounter the united opposition of all the smaller nations and the pro-German elements as well. Paradoxically enough, the nomination of an eminent Frenchman, Albert Thomas, head of the International Labor Bureau, has been enthusiastically indorsed by almost every other nation except his own. Thomas was elected to his office in Washington when President Harding, under the conditions of the Labor Bureau's constitution, conducted the first elections for the office after it was established.

Other candidates for the position of Sir Eric Drummond will be former Premier Unden, of Sweden; Prof. Van Eyahagen, of Holland, former tutor of Princess Juliana and now member of the World Court, and Nicholas Politis, of Greece, professor at the School of International Law at Paris and former Premier of Greece.

DENVER MAN FREED BY KIDNAPERS' GANG

Bower, Bakery Official, Put Out of Auto Near Home; Promises to Pay.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—After five days of captivity, during which he was kept bound and blindfolded in a mountain cabin, Benjamin P. Bower, kidnaped Denver bakery official, was released from an automobile in West Denver today.

His freedom, he said, was gained on a promise to pay the $50,000 ransom demanded last Tuesday night when two men invaded his home and carried him away. No money, he said, has yet been paid.

Clutching two strips of adhesive tape in his hand, Mr. Bower was found by two youths early this morning in a dark street near the bakery of which he is manager. Telling them who he was, Mr. Bower asked to be led to a telephone from which he called the bakery. Police were called at once and he was taken to headquaretrs.

Was Fed Plentifully.

The strips of tape, he said, had been over his eyes for the five days he was captive with exception of a few moments when he wrote a note to his wife pleading that she pay the $50,000 ransom.

"I'll keep them as souvenirs," he told Police Chief Albert T. Clark, who has, since Tuesday night, directed the greatest manhunt in Denver history.

Mr. Bower still was wearing the smoking jacket in which he was abducted from his home. He was treated well and fed plentifully on ham and eggs, bread and strawberry jam and "other pretty good food," he said.

Mr. Bower's return revealed that he had written a note to his wife, but that it was not a note which police received and gave to Denver newspapers. Contents of the authentic note were not revealed by police today.

The kidnaping, Mr. Bower said, has cost him only $4.60 and his Royal Arch Masonic pin.

"I've had that pin 22 years and I asked them not to take it," he said. "Aside from that I think I've got the better of it. They fed me five days for $4.60."

The kidnapers grew tired of the way things were going and offered a compromise—that he should return and get the money, Mr. Bower told Chief Clark.

In Good Spirits.

"They asked for $50,000. Where in the name of conscience would I get $50,000? I told them I couldn't.

"They pounded the table and told me I could. They said, 'You can get it from Knight.'" (Stephen Knight, president of the Campbell-Sell Baking C.) "Gee, I didn't like that."

Mr. Bower, in good spirits after his long period of enforced blindness, was unable to believe it was Sunday when he was found. "I thought it was about Friday," he said.

The gang brought him to Denver from a cabin in the mountains, Mr. Bower said. He recognized the curving mountain roads, but could not identify any particular highway, he said.

Mr. Bower and his family were reluctant to discuss ransom and he insisted that he had been released on promise to pay, but that no money has yet been paid.

"They told me they'd be looking me up again soon," he said. Mrs. Bower and her daughter, Mrs. Gladys Swan, said they could not discuss the matter.

Mr. Bower said he did not fear his captors, because "I always knew I'd live to be 100."

CHAMBERLIN SETS OIL-PLANE RECORD

Reaches Height Estimated at 23,000 Feet in New Type Flying Craft.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Clarence Chamberlin reached a height officially estimated at about 23,000 feet today in his first altitude attempt with an oil-motored plane.

Chamberlin took off at 3:30 p. m., watched by a large crowd at Floyd Bennett Airport and landed an hour and 5 minutes later. His altimeter showed a height of only 17,500 feet, but when John Heinmuller, of the National Aeronautical Association, examined the barograph he said the height probably would be 23,000. The barograph will be sent to Washington for calibration.

Burned Furnace Oil.

Chamberlin, who flew the Atlantic to Germany in 1927, was using a Lockheed plane, powered with a Diesel engine burning ordinary furnace oil.

In this "flying furnace," Chamberlin recently made flights from Jersey City, N. J., to Washington and return.

On the return leg of his journey to the Capital Chamberlin said he used only 70 cents' worth of fuel oil.

When he reached a height of about 15,000 feet in his altitude attempt he said his altimeter became frozen. He began using oxygen from a small tank.

It was ten below zero near the highest point and the wind was blowing at gale velocity. Although he was headed west the plane was buffeted northeastward over Queens. Chamberlin said he did not regain his bearings until he had started the descent.

Pleased With Results.

Both Chamberlin and Heinmuller expressed themselves pleased with the results.

"I've never seen a better rate of climb in any altitude test," said Heinmuller.

There is no special classification in the American air record list for Diesel engine marks, but the National Aeronautic Association, with which Chamberlin communicated recently, said any records he made would be listed under miscellaneous performances.

With a little adjustment of propellers, so that they could be made to revolve more slowly, more height could be attained, Chamberlin said.

The altitude record for all planes is more than 43,000 feet, held by Apollo Soucek, Navy flier.

Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, globe girdling fliers, and Clyde Pangborn, transatlantic and transpacific airmen, were spectators at Chamberlin's flight.

Illicit Love Ends In Double Killing

Father of Six Murders Paramour, and Then Ends Own Life.

Detroit, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A murder and a suicide today wrote a tragic finis to the illicit love affair of Mrs. Josephine Hudson, 24-year-old wife of a young Washtenaw County farmer, and David Schaefer, 32, laborer on an adjoining farm and the father of six children, with whom she ran away last summer.

Mrs. Hudson was found shot to death this morning in an automobile abandoned in a clump of trees behind the Ford Airport in suburban Dearborn.

Nearly twelve hours later, Schaefer shot himself at his parents' home near Saline as Washtenaw County officers were alighting from their automobile to arrest him. Ray Hudson, the deserted husband, was with them. Officers said they believed he turned upon himself the same gun with which he killed his paramour.

Safe With $115,000 Buried as Bank Burns

Mansfield, O., Jan. 24. (A.P.).—Fire destroyed the Farmers' and Citizens' Bank building at Tiro, northeast of here today causing an estimated loss of $30,000. A safe containing $115,000 in cash and securities was buried in the wreckage.

Guards were placed about the smouldering ruins to protect the safe which will not be removed until tomorrow.

El Salvador Envoy Mixup Puzzles U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Communistic troubles in El Salvador are not all the difficulties the little republic has presented to the United States Government.

One centers about its diplomatic representative.

To the State Department Dr. Carlos Leiva is Minister to Washington. And to Leiva, Roberto Melendez is just first secretary of the legation. But to the present de facto government in power in Salvador Senor Melendez is charge d'affaires of the legation. And to Senor Melendez, Dr. Leiva is just a private citizen resident in this country.

Dr. Leiva was appointed Minister by President Araujo before he was deposed and driven from the country by a military junta. The junta forthwith put Senor Melendez in charge, but since the United States has not recognized the new government it continues to recognize Dr. Leiva.

If Dr. Leiva should leave Washington Senor Melendez would become in the eyes of Secretary Stimson charge d'affaires of the old Araujo government. But he would continue to receive communications from the de facto authorities as their charge.

EL SALVADOR IS PUT UNDER MARTIAL LAW

stroyers Phillips and Wicks were on the way, having left last night.

The British destroyer Dragon, after asking speedy passage through the Panama Canal, slowed up on receiving news that the Canadian destroyers Skeena and Vancouver, en route to Balboa, had been diverted toward Salvador.

(Associated Press.)

Carrying 115 Marines ready to land if necessary to protect foreign lives and property, three American war ships are speeding for the Central American republic of El Salvador, where Communistic rioting has spread terror.

They are the cruiser Rochester, flogship of Rear Admiral Arthur St. C. Smith, commander of the Panama Special Service squadron, and the destroyers Philip and Wickes.

U. S. Destroyers Arrive Today.

The destroyers are scheduled to arrive off the West Coast of the troubled republic today at 9 a. m. The Rochester, a slower craft, will arrive Wednesday at 11 p. m. The destroyers increased their speed yesterday from 20 to 25 knots.

Officials presumed that two Canadian destroyers, the Skeena and Vancouver, already are in the port of Acajutla. They were en route from the Canadian West Coast to the Atlantic when word was flashed of the uprisings.

The British Embassy also notified the State Department one of its cruisers was heading toward El Salvador, but no word has been received as to whether it has reached port.

The Navy Department Saturday ordered the three American vessels to proceed immediately from Panama after a formal request by the Italian consul general for protection of his countrymen. The first information of the disturbances came from William J. McCafferty, charge d'affaires at San Salvador, the capital.

To Protect Lives.

The Rochester is the flagship of Rear Admiral Arthur St. C. Smith, and is commanded by Capt. L. C. Treadwell. The Philip is commanded by Lieut. Comdr. I. R. Chambers, and the Wickes by Lieut. Comdr. H. P. Burnett.

Their orders were to protect the lives and property not only of Americans, but all foreigners The State Department heard that a communistic attack was expected Saturday on San Salvador, the capital, and it was feared American and British banks would be looted. It had no information yesterday of developments in the situation.

It was said in informed quarters here that Communist activity has been spreading for two years, centering around Sonsonate, a city of 20,000 in a rich agricultural district. Trouble was reported there last spring.

The American-owned railway connecting El Salvador with other Central American countries is an important American investment. It is owned by the International Railway of Central America, with offices in New York.

Seabury Hits New York In Report on Inquiry

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee, in a 50,000-word report on the progress made thus in the committee's investigation of New York City, today urged a need of "constructive changes which will raise the city from the low and sordid estate to which it has sunk."

The investigation so far, the report stated, has shown there are unnecessary and overlapping departments in the city government and a large number of employes who should be eliminated.

Small Chest Contains 34,000 Pieces of Wood

High Point, N. C., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A cedar chest said to contain more than 34,000 individual pieces of wood so put together as to almost give the effect of weaving, is on display at the Southern Furniture Exposition here.

The chest is only 27 inches long, 22½ inches high and 16 inches wide. It rests on four legs, the front ones benig said to contain more than 7,000 pieces of wood each.

Argentines of Spain Win Ancestry Debate

Buenos Aires, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Argentines of Spanish descent have won a dispute with those of Italian descent over the ancestry of President-elect Augustin P. Justo.

The Spaniards contended he was descended from an old family of Spain. The Italians argued his forebears were immigrants from Italy. Senor Justo's son cited genealogical records to show that he traces his lineage from a family in Gibraltar which came here about a century ago.

1916 BOMB OUTRAGE LAID TO LABOR FOES

Wheeler, Nye and LaGuardia Speak at Mooney Mass Meeting Here.

(Associated Press.)

An assertion that San Francisco's 1916 Preparedness Day bomb outrage was perpetrated by interests eager to discredit labor and not by Tom Mooney or Warren Billings was made last night by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

He, Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, addressed a mass meeting of several hundred at the little Quaker meeting house which President Hoover often attends. Other speakers protesting the continued imprisonment of Mooney and Billings included representatives of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish organizations.

Senators Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, and Cutting (Republican), New Mexico), who took a prominent part in obtaining publication recently of a secret report to the Wickersham Commission on the Mooney-Billings case, sent messages of support.

Basis of Assertion.

"I'll venture the assertion that the man who threw that bomb was some man working for the great detective organization of this country," Wheeler said, "and did it because they wanted to discredit labor in San Francisco, California and throughout the United States."

He said he based his belief on experiences as prosecuting attorney at Butte, Mont., where, he asserted, detectives were found to have incited labor troubles to discredit the laboring man.

Wheeler said "practically every important witness" in the Mooney case has been shown to have committed perjury.

"Now that the facts must be known to him," he continued, "I can't help but feel Gov. Rolph will give an unconditional pardon to Tom Mooney."

Fear Is Claimed.

Senator Nye said that "fear in the minds of those who dictate the prevailing order" that Mooney would not subscribe to it if released is responsible for his being held in prison.

"Unless we have more Tom Mooneys who dare stand up in their places and protest against the prevailing order," he said, "we are destined to destruction.

"There has been only one clear voice ringing out against that order—the voice of the Pope."

Before the mass meeting a conference of representatives of various trade unions and fraternal organizations, largely from New York, was held.

Resolutions were passed urging a boycott of California products if Mooney is not pardoned within six weeks, asking that Senator Johnson (Republican), California, take a public stand in favor of the pardon, setting aside February 24 as Tom Mooney day for protest, and demanding that the American Federation of Labor carry on a more vigorous fight for release of the two men.

Resolutions Adopted.

LaGuardia said he wanted to "join the protest against the indecency of continued imprisonment of Tom Mooney."

Resolutions for the pardon of Mooney and for publication by the Senate of the report of the Wickersham Commission so that it might be widely circulated were adopted by the meeting, held under the auspices of Mooney sympathizers of New York.

Among the speakers were Dr. John A. Ryan, director of the National Catholic Welfare Council; Rabbi Edward L. Israel, Baltimore, chairman of the Conference of American Rabbis, and Dr. Worth Tippy, New York, of the Federal Council of Churches.

Disarmament Favored By University Youths

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Seventy-five per cent of the students at the University of North Carolina voted in favor of the United States disarming itself if other nations of the world join in a similar movement, in a poll made by the Daily Tarheel, student newspaper.

The students voted as follows: For complete disarmament, 41 per cent; for 75 per cent disarmament, 34 per cent; for 50 per cent disarmament, 11 per cent; for 25 per cent disarmament, 4 per cent, and for no disarmament, 10 per cent.

Kinston Tobacco Sales Will Close January 29

Kinston, N. C., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Board of Trade, governing the tobacco market here, has decided to hold last sales January 29. Other large markets in the eastern North Carolina belt are scheduled to close that day.

Receipts here at the present total only a few thousand dollars a day. The peak months are October and November. Six warehouses have been operated here this winter.

Further Cuts Seen As Virginia Plan

State Economy Budget May Be Reduced More Than Pollard Urged.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—There were indications tonight that the Virginia budget for the next biennium may be cut to even less than the $85,000,000 recommended by Gov. Pollard.

"We may be able to reduce it by as much as 10 per cent," Ashton Dovell, chairman of the House appropriations committee, said.

He asserted that a large portion of the additional cut might come from "personnel costs."

"I believe we can reduce this item by 20 per cent in comparison with its total for the last biennium," he said. This, he pointed out, "does not necessarily mean that salaries would be reduced by one-fifth," but the 10 per cent cut recommended by the governor would be included.

Senator W. A. Garrett, chairman of the Senate finance committee, who with Mr. Dovell stands as the General Assembly "watchdog" over the State treasury, agreed with the Williamsburg delegate.

He reiterated his assertion that State institutions "must take their cut with the rest of us."

CURRAN GIVES DATA IN RUM VOTE PLEA

Writes Letters to Members of Congress, Claiming Wet Sentiment.

(Associated Press.)

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said yesterday he had written members of Congress presenting figures designed to show a sufficient sentiment favoring a vote on national prohibition to warrant submission of the question to the people.

"The whole issue in its present stage simmers down to this," he wrote. "What is the volume and extent of the demand for submission?"

To answer the question he reported:

"Half a dozen States have specifically petitioned for relief from the eighteenth amendment;" nine "have repudiated national prohibition by refusing to ratify the eighteenth amendment or to adopt enforcement laws or else by voting to rescind their enforcement laws;" three * * * not included in the foregoing compilations have registered pronounced opposition to national prohibition in recent elections."

In the latter category he referred to the election of Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, "a Democrat advocating repeal." The senatorial victory of the late Dwight Morrow in New Jersey, who, he said, "chose repeal—even against the advice of party leaders," and the close margin of Gov. Pinchot over "Repeal Candidate" John M. Hemphill in "that rock-ribbed Republican stronghold, Pennsylvania."

In addition, Curran wrote that "the Legislatures of two States * * * have recently decreed that referenda shall be held next November;" that "among important national organizations, the American Bar Association has called for repeal * * * and the American Legion has asked for submission * * *;" and that "although not a single State platform contained a repeal plank in 1928, there was a call for repeal in 21 different State platforms in 1930."

"Finally," he said, "* * * the Wickersham report on prohibition contains overwhelming evidence that conditions exist which have created a public demand for prompt relief."

Camera Records Rare Yale Scripts

200 Feet of Film Will Take Pictures of 3,200 Pages Size of Original.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Pictures are being taken of each page of valuable books and manuscripts in the Yale Library as a means of preserving their text and of making copies available to scholars throughout the world.

A special camera for the work has been designed by Frederick G. Ludwig, of the library staff, it was announced today. Carrying 200 feet of film, it can reproduce 3,200 pages.

By a small projector, mounted above a table, the image is thrown on a sheet of white paper, and can be focused to the exact size of the original. Prof. Miles L. Hanley, research associate in English, today termed the procedure revolutionary because it is cheap and simple. The process should be especially valuable, he said, in copying newspaper files.

Philadelphia Negro To Run for Congress

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Edward W. Henry, the only Negro magistrate in Pennsylvania, announced today that he will seek the Republican nomination for Congress from the Second Philadelphia District in the June primary. The seat now is held by Edward Lowber Stokes, investment broker, elected with the support of William S. Vare to succeed the late Representative George S. Graham.

Henry is counted a follower of Gov. Gifford Pinchot. The Second Philadelphia District includes the central and southern sections of the city.

Lord Reading Reported Worse.

Luxor, Egypt, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Lord Reading, British statesman, who is suffering from bronchitis and influenza, had a very disturbed night and is feeling "very weak," Lady Reading said today. She added he was fretting from his first serious illness.

SPAIN ACTS TO COPE WITH RED STRIKERS

Policeman Is Killed and Five Dancers Hurt as Radicals Molest Gathering.

Madrid, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A policeman was killed and five merrymakers wounded as the government massed military and police forces today to cope with a threatened general strike tomorrow intended to establish a proletarian dictatorship.

The policeman was killed in a fight with Communists in a suburb of Barcelona. Two children, a woman and two men were wounded in a plaza of Barcelona itself when police charged a crowd of laborers who had sought to break up a native dance.

Publication in the official Gazette of the new decree dissolving the Jesuit order in Spain and giving the Jesuits ten days to disband, their chapters seemed to soothe the left-wing spirits.

The government was hopeful its display of force would forestall any serious movement tomorrow, but was taking no chances.

Right-wing factions said the anti-Jesuit decree was a political manoeuver on the part of the cabinet to pacify the extremists, who have agitated for a "Workers' Republic." The government denied this, saying it was merely complying with the new constitution in dissolving the Jesuit order, which was established in Spain nearly 400 years ago, and in confiscating the Jesuit property.

Troops and police, meanwhile, were busy in the major cities of the Catalonian, Andalusian, Galician and Valencian regions ferreting out leaders of the anarchist-communist-syndicalist movement. Authorities in the Basque and Navarre provinces watched closely for a possible repercussion from the anti-Jesuit decree because of strong Catholic and Monarchist feeling there.

Vatican City, Jan. 24. (A.P.).—Pope Pius in addressing the ecclesiastics today glorified the disbanded Jesuits of Spain as "Martyrs of the Papacy, martyrs of the Pope, martyrs of the Vicar of Christ."

He contested the right of the Spanish republic to dissolve the order of Jesus and asserted that their oath of obedience to the church was only spiritual. He described the action against the Jesuits as executed with "Truly terrible harshness" and likened their trials to those of the apostles.

Daughter of Vanderbilt Is Robbed of Heirloom

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Daily News says in a copyrighted story that an heirloom bracelet containing 240 diamonds and 12 emeralds, and valued at $50,000, was stolen last week from Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church Phelps, known as society's "golden girl."

The bracelet disappeared from Mrs. Phelps' handbag while she was touring art museums and shops last Tuesday. The theft was attributed to a crime syndicate which has been extremely active in Park avenue recently. Two days after disappearance of the bracelet, purchased years ago by Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, mother of Mrs. Phelps, the home of Harry Glemby was robbed of jewelry valued at more than $300,000.

Women of Old Pursued Men as of Present Day

By JOHN J. DALY

IN Tanganyika, away over in East Africa, a German scientist discovered the skeleton of a dinotherium, said to be the oldest specimen in the world. From this he deduces that as long ago as two million years man was an elephant hunter.

Those were the good old days, back in the Miocene period, when men were men and before women sought suffrage, which brought with it complete emancipation—a stein on the table, and a good song ringing clear.

Nowadays, it's always fair weather when a flock of women get together, telling stories in the smoking room and giving men the merry ha ha!

Anyway, members of the East African Archeological Expedition, checking and double-checking on the German doctor's discovery, find from the evidence that men inhabited the earth several hundred thousand years earlier than scientists previously had believed possible.

* * * *

THIS destroys immediately all the romance engendered by Denver Smith's sterling ballad, "Evolution," beginning with the inspired lines, "When you were a tadpole and I was a fish, in the Paleozoic Age."

It now develops there were no tadpoles—not even a tad—and there were no fish. It is even doubtful if there was a Paleozoic Age.

Science is gradually destroying all the old beliefs. Men were hunters—elephant hunters—before they were fishermen. The original Garden of Eden, Paradise, was somewhere east of Suez, according to the latest account, and man rambled over the greensward gamboling with and chasing hipparion, elephas and chalicotherium—the Charlie Chaplins of the elephant tribe.

* * * *

THAT was 2,000,000 years ago, a period in which scientists hitherto had claimed that not even a semblance of homo sapiens existed.

Not only did man, the sap, exist, but he chased elephants. It may account for his present-day love of the circus, though all he ever got out of the chase was an ivory tusk or two.

Women were much wiser. As the scientists tell the tale, and their theory is borne out, the women of old chased the men and took the ivory away from them after they had gone to all the trouble hunting elephants. This, in a measure, explains the gold diggers of the twentieth century.

It is, after all, a small world; but an old one.

CHRIST AND WEALTH IS SERMON SUBJECT

Father Smith Holds Predictions and Fears of Savior Fulfilled.

The Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O.P., noted Dominican preacher, in a sermon delivered on the Washington Catholic radio hour yesterday from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, declared that the experiences of the past and the record of this day support the fears and the predictions of Christ concerning wealth.

Father Smith pointed to "the greediness and avarice of soul that makes misers of the citizens of our country; makes lustful, impure fiends of them, makes them hard and stony-hearted to every appeal, raises them in their own minds above the demands of God and of our country, for which, like Judas Iscariot, they betray their Christ, sacrifice their faith and sell their God, corrupts our courts of justice, influences our legislation, devitalizes our citizens and weakens trust in our Government.

"Christianity that is genuine teaches men and nations not so much how to make and save riches as how to get rid of them with the greatest possible advantage to their eternal salvation. Christ Himself indicated not only that excessive wealth is to be limited by self-imposed restrictions but He definitely commanded the channels through which superfluous riches are to flow back to the needy for whom God created them.

"Heaven of the future will also boast of the presence there of many of this day who from motives of religion, inspired by a desire of salvation, looking upon their wealth as a trust from God, recognizing the living presence of Christ in the distress around us, welcome the opportunity to distribute their wealth to church, school, library and hospital and in other places until no human distress is left uncared for. Thus will the best Christian traditions of the past be sustained."

The Washington Catholic radio hour, under the direction of the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, is broadcast every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock through Station WOL. Father Smith concludes his series of sermons next Sunday.

Senate Loans Quiz Begins Wednesday

Finance Group to Question Witnesses in Cuban and Chilean Advances.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate finance committee's investigation of American loans to Cuba and Chile will begin Wednesday.

The committee planned to open the inquiry today, but desired witnesses could not appear at that time. Officials of the Chase Securities Corporation have been called to testify relative to Cuban loans. No decision has been made as to the witnesses in the investigation of loans to Chile.

Before continuing its hearings, the committee is to consider Secretary Stimson's refusal to furnish it with secret State Department correspondance relating to the Barco concession in Colombia. Mr. Stimson offered to permit senators to see the correspondence, but would not present it in open hearings.

Viola Gentry, Survivor Of One Crash, in Second

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—An airplane, in which Miss Viola Gentry, still crippled with injuries she received in a crash nearly three years ago, was a passenger, went into a ground loop and turned over as it was landing at Roosevelt Field today.

Neither Miss Gentry nor the pilot, John Warren, was injured, and the monoplane was only slightly damaged. Warren, flying from Teterboro, N. J., to Roosevelt Field, had taken Miss Gentry aboard at Floyd Bennett Airport.

Man Sees Brother Jump To Death From Window

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—While his brother leaned from a window of an adjoining suite and begged him not to jump, Erroll O'Brien, 43, an attorney and former magistrate in the British West Indies, plunged to his death today from the tenth floor of the Hotel Woodward.

The body crashed through a glass marquee, narrowly missing a doorman. O'Brien recently was released from a sanitarium.

BIPARTISAN APPEAL FOR ECONOMY BEGUN

finances, headed by Matthew S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison company, suggesting the Army and Navy combine their activities, thus eliminating duplication. Speaker Garner has approved a bill for consolidation of the two services in a national defense department, which is expected to be taken up soon. The Sloan report complained of the increasing number of Government bureaus and suggested a general reorganization. A "review" of Federal aid to States, notably for highway construction, was urged.

Curtailments Suggested.

Further expansion of public construction was attacked by the committee, which asserted "borrowing for this specific work should not be resorted to." Elimination of some of the Agriculture Department's educational and social work, some of the Labor Department's social work and some of the foreign trade activities of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was suggested.

From the Senate, however, came a contrary plea, with Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, asserting in a statement that jobs must be created for men and women who have been jobless three winters now, through "an extensive building and improvement plan large enough to put to work about 1,000,000 men directly and many more indirectly."

Wagner called on President Hoover to submit estimates to Congress for appropriations to carry out the building projects already authorized by Congress, and suggested that a bond issue could be sold to the public to finance them. The New Yorker said he would call up in the Senate soon his resolution asking the President to submit such estimates for appropriations.

Attorney General Quits Post in British Regime

London, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Sir William Jowitt, a National Labor man without a seat in Parliament, resigned today as attorney general in the British government.

Sir William stood as a National Labor candidate for the combined English universities in the general election last fall, but was defeated and has had no parliamentary standing since. National Laborites have attempted without success to induce some one to surrender a seat which he might occupy.

COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE IS LAUNCHED

Notable Speakers Urge Need of Generosity to Meet Charity Appeals.

he explained in one of the humorous interludes that brightened his address.

Tests American Philanthropy.

Dr. Wise typified the Community Chest, "in the present crisis of need" as a test of American philanthropy and American democracy. "It will prove," he said, whether American philanthropy is just a pastime of the sunshine days, a gesture of the season of prosperity, or whether it is equal to the years of adversity by virtue of a resolute and understanding willingness to serve."

"The time has come," Dr. Wise continued, "for American democracy to prove whether it is worthy of the name by developing, magnifying and translating into a reality of service our community consciousness."

Mr. Crosby, who replaced Frank J. Hogan, president of the District Bar Association, described the "catastrophe that has befallen the country" as a challenge from God to men and women to rise to their noblest heights. "The real purpose of life is not how much we get out of it, but how much we put into it," he said. "The present period offers a golden opportunity for all of us to lead some poor mortal into the green fields of courage and hope."

Mr. Crosby predicted that "America will rise from the depression as it has from others, and will march on to heights of prosperity, greater than it has ever known." "We are met today at a critical and tragic hour," he declared. "Countless thousands are faced with the grinning visage of illness, starvation and death. But they will not die, they will not starve because the mass consciousness and patriotism of the American people has resolved that no one shall go cold or hungry."

John Poole, president of the Washington Community Chest, also expressed confidence that the massed unity of our people will lead us through to triumph. Under the chairmanship of Edward F. Colladay, Washington has its finest Community Chest organization, he said. "Washington will at least realize its goal, if not exceed it," he predicted.

Explains Solicitation Plans.

The work of raising the balance of $900,000 rests with the metropolitan unit, under the leadership of H. L. Rust, jr.; the schools unit, led by Sydney F. Taliaferro, and the group solicitation unit, in charge of Lloyd B. Wilson, the general chairman explained.

The special gifts unit will continue working. The group solicitation unit will solicit all organizations employing 20 or more persons, while the metropolitan unit will seek contributions from all individuals not in governmental group solicitation or special gift classes.

Elwood Street, director of the Chest, gave a comprehensive talk on the need existing and told why the goal of the Chest had been increased one-third over that of last year. He expressed confidence that the people of Washington would answer the emergency, but warned the workers present that theirs is no easy task. Mr. Street also introduced Rabbi Wise.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the District Board of Commissioners, expressed the opinion that in Community Chest "we have the most effective known method of administering, financing and operating the private relief and welfare activities of the community. In working for the Community Chest and in giving to it, we are creating a new form of citizenship. It is my sincere hope that for the sake of all of us and for Washington's sake the endeavor of those who are united in the Chest campaign may be completely successful."

Cyril Mee, with George H. Emmans at the organ, led the community singers. The invocation was delivered by Mgr. Edward L. Buckey, of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, while Bishop William F. McDowell, president of the Washington Federation of Churches, pronounced the benediction.

All churches of Washington, Protestant and Catholic, white and colored, dedicated morning and evening services to the Community Chest. Sermons emphasized the need, more pressing than in any previous year, for liberal giving.

Archbishop Sends Appeal.

A letter from the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, urging generous contributions, was read in all Catholic churches. The archbishop, in his appeal, pointed out that in the Capital "there are men, women and children whose hands are outstretched for aid, who in the midst of plenty are hungry, and who are without sufficient means at times to purchase a Washington newspaper." The archbishop made a special appeal to wealthy members of the Catholic churches to give more generously than in the past.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover will be the guest of Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of the Community Chest information unit, at the first of the report luncheons of the metropolitan and group solicitation units at the Willard Hotel today. Mrs. Hoover will arrive at 12:30 o'clock and will be escorted to the luncheon by Mrs. O'Connor, John Poole, president of the Chest, and Edward F. Colladay, chairman of the campaign committee. Other notable women, including Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will be guests of Mrs. O'Connor at subsequent report meetings during the week.

Today's meeting will give the first insight into the progress being made to obtain $2,601,000 for the Community Chest this year.

GIVE MORE

By WALTER S. UFFORD.
(General Secretary, Associated Charities.

Fully one-half of the applicants coming to the Associated Charities are asking for work. If no work, then relief.

In normal times the chief cause of such applications is sickness. Now it is lack of a job. Fortunate indeed are the folks who are sure of getting a pay check regularly.

The most heartbreaking situation which the social worker faces today is that of the man, able and anxious for a job, who asks charity only as a last resort for the sake of his wife and children. He may have tramped the streets day in and day out seeking regular work. But the only answer he has to give as he returns home at night is, "Nothing doing."

While we are waiting for the return of better times it has been suggested that those who have jobs share them with those who have none. Only by shortening the work day and the work week does this seem practical. Meantime, we can do the next best thing—give a larger share of our income than we did last year for the benefit of the jobless. The need is greater.

The Associated Charities is spending this month nearly twice as much as a year ago for food, fuel, clothing, rent and other necessities for those in need. In 1931 it spent for these purposes $188,000 as against $130,000 in 1930. To provide this increase the Community Chest had to go in debt. For 1932 the Chest is asked to give us $250,000 for these same necessities. And the Associated Charities is only one of the family welfare societies and other member agencies of the Chest.

Unless we non-Government workers give more than last year, following the fine example of the Government workers, where is this increase coming from?

Let our motto be: "As long as we have a job, we will give and give to the limit."

New Appeal Made For Freeing Isles

House Committee Head Is Informed of Desires of Filipinos.

Manila (Monday), Jan. 25 (A.P.).—A group of independent advocates headed by Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, president of the veterans of the revolution, today cabled Chairman Hare of the House insular committee that "a great majority of the Filipino people" favor a self-executory grant of independence at a definitely established date.

The cable said immediate independence was desired with only such delay as was necessary for the orderly transfer of sovereignty. Several bills now before Congress provide for a self-executory transition period.

Gen. Aguinaldo led the Philippine insurrection against the United States in 1899-1901. Others who signed the cablegram were former Senator Juan Sumulong, Gregorio Aglipay, head of the Independent Filipino Church, and Vincente Sotto, head of the Philippine Civil Union which was organized to oppose a compromise on the independence issue.

Gandhi Followers Persist in Boycott

Women Pickets Refuse to Be Awed by Police and Jail Terms.

Bombay, India, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Despite jail terms of unprecedented severity and a veritable tattoo of punishment, Mahatma Gandhi's army of Nationalist rebels showed no sign of penitence tonight.

All over the country his followers have been indulging in various acts of nonviolence to harass the government and try the patience of the police, in the unceasing campaign for independence from British rule.

Defying the ordinance making peaceful picketing a prison offense, Indian women continued to station themselves outside stores and urge the public not to buy British goods. Scores of them have been arrested, but there seems to be an unending line of others to take their places. Likewise, attempts to make contraband salt were going on as well as picketing of banks and the government mint, which already has resulted in a sharp reduction in the flow of gold to abroad.

Judge Lyle Seeks Post for Clean-Up

Militant Chicago Jurist Is Reform Candidate for State's Attorney.

Chicago, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, the fighting jurist whom the gangsters call "high bonds," came out of a year's political retirement tonight with a blast against governmental corruption and a plea for nomination as State's attorney of Cook County.

It was Lyle who started the now famous "campaign of harassment" against gangsters. His thunderous roar of "$50,000 bonds," "90 days on the rock pile," or "back to your cell" became legend in the underworld. But Lyle has a new platform for his latest campaign.

"The people are disgusted with high taxes, theft and waste of public funds," he said. "Too much corrupted government—that's what's the matter with this country. I'd like to try my hand at a little housecleaning."

Sunday Charity Movies Bring Arrest in Atlanta

Atlanta, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Sunday movies for benefit of the unemployed met with police resistance today. Mrs. M. S. Margeson, director of the women's division of Mayor Key's emergency relief committee, was arrested ten minutes after the doors opened at a local theater for benefit of the jobless.

The performance was permitted to continue, but Mrs. Margeson was cited to appear in recorder's court Wednesday on charges of violating a city ordinance forbidding Sunday movies, even in the name of charity.

Rochester's Relief Totaled $2,807,992

Spent $8.56 Per Capita in Aid to Jobless; Capital in 55th Place.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Rochester, N. Y., spent more than 50 times as much per capita in unemployment relief as San Antonio, Tex., during the first nine months of 1931, figures compiled by the Russell Sage Foundation showed today.

Rochester's total expenditure for that period was $2,807,992, which represented a per capita expenditure of $8.56. San Antonio spent 15 cents for each resident, it says.

Wilmington, in twenty-ninth place, with a rating of $2.95, leads the Southern cities, nearly all of which have low per capita relief ratings. Baltimore is fifty-first; Washington, D. C., fifty-fifth, and Nashville, Tenn., next to the bottom with 27 cents per capita. Chicago is thirty-third, with a total expenditure of $8,000,000, or $2.41 per capita.

Death of Cancer Expert Held Caused by Cyanide

Boston, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Cyanide, absorbed probably from a solution with which he was making experiments in a search to discover a substance to retard the growth of cancer, caused the death of Dr. Ernest Chellis Glover, Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leady said tonight.

Dr. Glover, who at the age of 29 was regarded as having made promising steps in the field of cancer research, was stricken Friday while working in a little laboratory at City Hospital. As result of chemical analysis, there was no doubt, Dr. Leary said, that cyanide caused death. How the poison was absorbed the medical examiner could not say. He added, however, that the solution with which Dr. Glover was working probably furnished the means.

ENGINEER IS CHOSEN FOR FOREIGN STUDY

Stanton L. Dorsey One of 9 Picked for Grant by German Trust.

Stanton L. Dorsey, 2308 Ashmead place northwest, a sanitary engineer of the Veterans' Administration, has been selected by trustees of the Oberlaender Trust to receive a grant for study and research in Germany and Austria, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Dorsey, who is now in California with the Veterans' Administration, is one of nine selected by the foundation for the award. He will return to Washington soon and will probably leave for Germany in the spring.

The purpose of the Oberlaender Trust is to enable American citizens who are now active in public work to be of greater service to the American people. Each of the recipients is now active in a field in which Germans have made great advances. The trust was created by Gustav Oberlaender, of Reading, Pa., and is administered as an integral part of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation by a board of five trustees.

Others chosen by the trustees are: Dr. Henry J. Arnold, of Springfield, Ohio, educator; Dr. H. A. Bendixen, of Pullman, Wash., dairy expert; Dr. Erwin D. Funk, of Reading, Pa.; Prof. Rexford B. Hersey, of Philadelphia, industrial economist; John Page Jones, of Lynchburg, Va., economist; Charles D. Lay, of New York City, landscape architect; Prof. Douglas Waples, of Chicago, librarian; J. A. Stabbing Victim's Last Words Bared Philadelphian Is Thought to Have Tried to Name His Slayer.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—What police believe was Norman R. Bechtel's dying attempt to name his slayer was revealed today while the victim was being buried in the little Mennonite churchyard at Bally, Pa., the village of his boyhood.

Bechtel, 31-year-old church worker and insurance accountant, was found dying on an untenanted estate in the Germantown section early last Wednesday by Rudolph Lehman, a policeman. He had been stabbed many times.

"I was picking him up" Lehman said today, "when I saw his lips begin to move and heard him mumble something. I put my ear close to his lips but I was in such an awkward position I could not hear very well. He formed his lips as if to make the sound 'wa' and then another sound like 'es.' He died before I could hear any more."

Guaranty Trust Discerns More Hope for Business

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Guaranty Trust Co. finds that a perceptible improvement in business sentiment has appeared since the beginning of the year.

"Several factors appear to have aided in dispelling the atmosphere of extreme pessimism that existed at the end of 1931," states the Guaranty Survey, published today. "The testimony of bankers before the finance committee of the Senate on foreign loans helped greatly to clarify the financial outlook as related to conditions abroad."

HYDE REITERATES HIS LOANS CHARGE

the approval of the McAdoo amendment.

Asked for Authority.

"I urgently ask the authority to broaden the purposes for which the loans to foreign governments may be made," Mr. Glass told the committee, according to Secretary Hyde's statement.

Representative Claude Kitchin, the then chairman of the House ways and means committee, explained on the floor of the House on February 25, 1919, why the committee had rejected the McAdoo-Glass amendment.

"The committee thought we ought not do that, and I think the committee was unanimous in the opinion that certainly this was not the time for the Government to loan one and one-half billion dollars more to the allies, especially when we had to get it from taxation of the people."

Cites Committee Report.

Secretary Hyde also cited the conclusion of the Senate judiciary committee's report that the Treasury had overstepped its duly delegated authority in accepting demand obligations from the European powers. In the language of the report, "* * * all of the sections of the acts authorizing these loans provide for obligations of the same tenor and effect as the particular Liberty loan by which the money was raised."

Senator Glass' vigorous rejoinder to Secretary Hyde's New York address, which the Virginian made on the floor of the Senate last Thursday, provoked heated debate. Senator Fess cited a statement by Herbert Hoover in January, 1920, urging a check on inter-Government loans. Senator Howell, of Nebraska, also took part in this debate.

Senator Howell Quoted.

Secretary Hyde's statement cites the following quotation from Senator Howell's remarks:

"I could not sit here and have it stated that our European loans were made in strict accord with the Liberty loan acts. They were not so made, and, because they were not so made, our influence in the world, great as it is, is not what it should be, and, as Europe's creditor, our difficulties are tremendously increased."

Ship With Gasoline Burned.

Tavernier, Fla., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The 85-foot freighter Nepeithe, carrying a cargo of 5,500 gallons of gasoline from Miami to Neuvistas, Cuba, was destroyed by fire in the harbor here today. The fire was believed to have started when gasoline in the bilge became ignited from an electric generator in the engine room.

Guilt in Lynching Laid to Salisbury

Town Called "Backward in Development" by Investigator.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—In reporting the results of his investigation of the lynching of a Negro at Salisbury, Md., last December 4, Prof. Broadus Mitchell, of the department of political economy, Johns Hopkins University, tonight described the town as "backward in its mental and spiritual development."

The results of the investigation were made public by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The victim, Matthew Williams, colored, was hanged and burned after he shot and killed his employer.

Prof. Mitchell asserted only two citizens attempted to stop the lynching and that the chief of police and the sheriff "offered no resistance."

CYR MAKES THREATS TO TAKE STATE HELM

Promises 'Plenty Excitement' When Long Takes Oath as Senator Here.

New Orleans, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Paul N. Cyr, claimant to Louisiana's governorship, rattled his sword tonight from his home in Jeanerette and said, "A few funerals in this State would help out a lot." He explained he was watching the movements of Huey P. Long, who was speeding toward Washington to take his oath as senator, of Louisiana.

"There will be plenty of excitement as soon as Huey Long takes the oath as senator," declared Cyr. "I am acting governor if not governor."

At Baton Rouge, Alvin O. King, whom Long left in charge as "acting governor," spent a quiet Sabbath with his family at a hotel, while highway policemen kept a close vigil in the capitol and the executive mansion.

Cyr Awaits Long's Taking Seat.

Cyr said he did not plan to make any move until Long had taken the oath in the Senate.

"I am awaiting to see what that fellow does in Washington," he said. "The supreme court said it couldn't decide who is governor, so if they'll leave it up to Long, King and myself, we'll see who is governor.

"I'll take care of the highway policemen or else they'll take care of me. Personally, I think a few funerals in this State would help out a lot. I just hope the right persons are in the funerals and I think the people of Louisiana feel the same way."

Cyr, massive native son of the Teche country, was reported by his associates as prepared to make every effort to regain his status as lieutenant governor, to which office he was elected. He was shunted out when he took the governor's oath in his losing fight to oust Long.

Long Full of Confidence.

Atlanta, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—His blood pressure normal for the first time in five years, Louisiana's Huey Long passed through Atlanta today en route to Washington to take over his Senate seat.

He gave little thought to a possible coup by Dr. Paul N. Cyr, deposed Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana, and exhibited a telegram from Alvin O. King, whom he left in Baton Rouge as acting governor with the State capitol and governor's mansion patrolled by armed guards. The telegram said:

"I have taken charge as acting governor. Everything quiet and all right. Regards."

Long radiated confidence.

"I'm going to get an education in Washington," he said. "This is the first time I've really been able to learn anything.

"And, say, this is the first time in five years that my blood pressure has been normal. Why, I've been sleeping with four telephones in my bedroom."

Due in Washington Today.

The situation apparently gave Long little worry as he stepped off his train here for a few minutes of fresh air. He had little to say about his future policies in Washington, other than that he might give President Hoover his recipe for corn pone and pot likker.

"I did not bring any with me," he said. "I can step into any restaurant and make it."

The party is due in Washington tomorrow morning.

Metallic Standards Held "War Breeders"

New York, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Abandonment of all metallic standards which are "price disturbers and war breeders" is advocated by Col. Elisha H. Garrison, who helped President Woodrow Wilson frame the Federal reserve act, in a book on economics to be published tomorrow.

"If all nations," Col. Garrison says, "permanently abandoned metallic standards and maintained strict principles of currency issues and currency retirement, also abandoning gambling forms of speculation, gold and silver would seek and find normal price ratios to other commodities and would be used at the world market value for checking through internationalization and international agreement, the war mania."

Crazed Farmer Murders Parents; Shoots Brother

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Walter Hoffman, 37, shot and killed his father and mother at their farm home near here today, wounded a brother, and was captured as gun in hand, he drove into the farmyard of another brother.

Hoffman, a World War veteran, was placed in the Allen County Jail. Neighbors said they believed he became crazed during an argument with his parents.

Three Held as Opium Smugglers.

Hongkong, China, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Capt. Ypma, Dutch master of the Panamanian schooner Marbella, which was seized by the Chinese customs on charges of smuggling last week, and two sailors were arrested by police today. The Marbella was accused of smuggling Chinese and opium into Mexico.

U. S. CHEMISTS GIVE MEDAL TO GEORGIAN

Dr. C. H. Herty Honored by Institute for Salient Research Work.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The medal of the American Institute of Chemists, presented last year to the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, and his brother, Richard B. Mellon, has been awarded this year, it was announced today, to Dr. Charles H. Herty, of New York.

The medal is awarded annually for "noteworthy and outstanding service to the science and profession of chemistry in America."

It was given to Dr. Herty in recognition of his efforts over a long period of years in behalf of American chemists and the American chemical industry.

His most recent research work has been done in Georgia, his native State, on the paper pulp possibilities of the slash pine. This work is being perfected for commercial use in a new laboratory built for the State of Georgia by the Chemical Foundation.

"Dr. Herty first made himself felt as an economic influence when his early researches at the University of Georgia revolutionized the turpentine and naval stores industry," Frederick E. Breithut, president of the institute, said.

"The Herty method of collecting turpentine greatly increased the productiveness of the pines. Other discoveries corrected wasteful methods of turpentine orcharding and conserved the forests."

Dr. Herty is a former president of the American Chemical Society and a former editor of the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. In 1917 he helped form the chemical warfare service as a branch of the United States Army.

Since the war he has been keenly interested in making the United States chemically independent and led the fight for the tariff act of 1922, which protects American chemical industries.

Scion of Swedish King Tells Intention to Wed

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 24. (U.P.).—Prince Gustaf Adolf, son of the Swedish crown prince, has declared that he will marry within a year.

Coincident with disclosure of the declaration today, the names of two princesses were mentioned as possible brides for the future king. They are Princess Friedricke Luise of Braunschweig, 15, who has been called "The Sun Princess," and Princess Sibylla of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

23 CHINESE KILLED IN SHIP EXPLOSION

force a partial blockade of Chinese shipping.

The munitions launch explosion, in which only one man was saved, was the most alarming incident of the day, although the city was terrified by the slightest untoward event because of the Japanese demands.

Was Moving Munitions.

The launch was moving munitions from the Chinese arsenal to secret fortifications when it blew up at 3:35 p. m. due to a spark from the smokestack. Windows were shattered in the settlement of Frenchtown and the native city. Many wild reports that Japanese aviators were bombarding the city were circulated before the true explanation of the blast was disclosed.

Later a live bomb was found in the Nanking Theater, foremost of Shanghai's movie houses. Reactionaries were blamed for placing the bomb. Terrorists also were charged with starting a fire which burned the doorway of the home of Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese Minister, who is now in Tokyo. Damage was slight. The French concession was placed under a heavy guard of French police after these incidents.

Other police guards were strengthened in preparation for funerals tomorrow of a Japanese monk and a Japanese constable, both killed in the recent clashes between Chinese and Japanese. The funeral processions will move over a 7-mile route.

Japanese marines, landed yesterday, searched the plant of the Min Kou Daily News on the Shantung road in carrying out the Japanese demand for an apology for reflections on the Japanese Emperor.

The death of Dr. Porges occurred when he was riding with friends near the Hungjao airdrome, in Chinese territory. The Chinese sentry challenged him and then shot him.

This panicky atmosphere was reflected in hundreds of telephone calls to the foreign consulates, asking whether refuge would be given in event of war. The consulate repeatedly assured the callers that the Japanese naval officials had promised they would not act without ample warning.

Deny Recruiting Airman.

Nanking, China, Jan. 24. (A.P.).—Officials of the National Government tonight disavowed knowledge of or connection with Chinese in the United States and Canada reported to be engaged in recruiting aviators for flying in this country.

The aviation bureau said that such Chinese were acting without authorization from the Chinese government and that it was not contemplating asking for the services of foreign fliers.

Shanghai, China, Jan. 24.—(A.P.).—Ten American and Canadian aviators, who came here on the promise of jobs and found none, are being aided by their trade commissioners.

Several have obtained jobs locally and others are going to Hongkong where positions connected with the British Air Force are available. The remainder expect to work their way home aboard trans-Pacific steamers.

Soviet Sees Peace Peril If Japan Rejects Pact

Moscow, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Izvestia, government newspaper, said today that if Japan rejected the Soviet proposal for a nonaggressive pact, as predicted in the Japanese press, it would be "a blow to the question of peace in the Far East." The newspaper said public opinion of the world already regarded the Japanese policy in Manchuria as endangering peace.

"We think," it said, "that Japan would regret such a step, taking consideration of its own interests, because it would further convince the masses of the world that it has only aims of occupation and does not want its hands tied."

Impure Foods

By H. G. WELLS

WE FREEZE food, we store it, we move it over immense distances and modify it in hitherto unheard of ways— and we have increased our gross supply enormously. But certain less agreeable aspects of modern food production must not be ignored in this survey. Science casts a shadow wherever she distributes her benefits. New substances are not always unmitigated blessings. It is impossible to deal completely with the feeding of mankind unless we bring into the picture the ingenuity and industry that are lavished in—how can I put it?—supplementing the supply of recognized foodstuffs by calling in, as unobtrusively as possible, substances less obviously nutritious and appetizing. The harsh word for this is "Adulteration."

* * * *

When I write "harsh word," I have in mind a gentleman charged with supplying a lubricating grease into which he had put 40 per cent of chalk, which, unhappily for the machinery and him, happened to be mixed with iron filings. "Oh," he protested to his barrister, "we don't call that adulteration. That is a most objectionable word. We call it 'loading.'" In matters of food and drink, the gentler, more acceptable term is "substitution." Originally adulteration was understood to be plain cheating, and the adulterator had little to say for himself when he was found out; his adulterated stuff was destroyed, and he went into the pillory or was branded, nailed by the ear to any convenient woodwork, or otherwise roughly handled.

* * * *

BUT the increase of knowledge and human subtlety have complicated this question. The idea of artificial and synthetic foods has a peculiar charm for the practical substitutionist, and the conception of suggestion comes in as a very real help when one is detected in misdescription. There may be substitution in series giving the most remarkable results. In one delightful instance a firm was prosecuted for selling something called lemonade crystals which was labelled "Pure Fruit Juice and Sugar Only." It was shown that neither fruit nor sugar was used in their manufacture. The "accepted substitutes" — ingenious phrase—for demon juice and sugar in the trade are citric acid and glucose. But this particular firm had procured its citric acid from a purveyor whose idea of an "accepted substitute" for citric acid was tartaric acid. And tartaric acid also by the charitable customs of commerce can have an understudy and so what this firm of caterers was finally handing over to thirsty little boys and girls was a "tartaric acid substitute" —of which they did not know the composition. Analysis showed it to be dirty phosphoric acid. The label had not only the lying words quoted above but a picture of a large yellow lemon in vivid contrast with a lovely green leaf. The defendants alleged that this was to help people to "realize that it tasted like lemons"—which my informant declares stoutly it did not do. All the more need for the helpful label, the defendants might argue. It is distressing to think of the virtuous teetotaller, who has avoided alcohol as a deadly poison throughout his life, betrayed into the consumption of this sinister brew of glucose and old bones.

* * * *

This is but an outstanding instance of an all too prevalent disposition to put a brave face upon dishonesty. S. L. Bensusan, the well known writer on British Agriculture, has recently come upon and made happy use of a private and confidential memorandum issued by the British Food Manufacturers' Association upon Jam. Jam, Mr. Bensusan protests, should be made of sound fruit and sugar alone. Swedes and vegetable marrow, dyes and so forth, are inadmissible to the housewife's preserving pan. But this federation sets up certain standards for "First Quality" and "Second Quality" jams, and its guiding instructions to the patriotic jam-maker leaves Mr. Bensusan and ourselves astounded. "First Quality" jam for the British market need not have more than 50 per cent of fruit, and second quality more than 20 per cent. The "fruit" may be brought from abroad in tubs with preservatives; it may be eked out with any old vegetable pulp as an "acceptable substitute," the want of seeds in this pulp may be supplemented by the stale stock of the seedsman, it may be livened up and brightened with any "permitted" citric, tartaric and malic acids and colouring matter, and there it is, First Quality British Jam. What Third Quality jam for the millions can be like is known only in the deepest recesses of the British Food Manufacturers' Association.

* * * *

IN a systematic treatment of this question we should find ourselves confronted by certain main types of justifications and excuses. There are "preservatives." Some, it is alleged, are quite harmless, but that is no reason why the consumer should not know clearly that they have been employed, just as he has a right to know that food has been kept in a refrigerator. Most preservatives employed seem to be injurious in various degrees, and some are a plain danger to health. Yet they may be arranged in an unbroken ascending order of virtue until you come to the time-honoured practices of salting beef and pork, smoking hams, hanging game and putting sugar on lemon in your tea. Is there any really "natural" food except unmixed fresh raw fruit?

* * * *

Next to preservatives come various coloring matters employed to restore our confidence in faded and jaded substances. It is a fine line that separates decorative and encouraging from deceitful coloration. It needs a still finer discrimination to distinguish between the modern "flavoring substance" and the herbs in the soup or the mint English cooks put with peas and potatoes. Finally there is the bulk substitution of one cheaper and less reputed foodstuff for another. It is called by the more reputable name, to help the imagination, and stimulate the receptive juices of the consumer. Why should they not be stimulated?

* * * *

YOU see that this is not a simple case of wickedness and adulteration on the one hand and goodness and no-adulteration on the other. We can pass by imperceptible degrees from the poisonous scoundrelism of those lemonade sellers to the makers of the most desirable foodstuffs and condiments and to every sort of innovator in dietary. What of the breakfast cereal? What of the sausage? When Raleigh came to Europe with the potato, did he realize that he was bringing over an "acceptable substitute" for wheat flour?

A constant warfare goes on between two types of alert intelligences in this field of food supply, a conflict which indeed extends far beyond catering into almost every field of human activity.

300 CONVICTS AT DARTMOOR RIOT OVER UNSWEETENED GRUEL

rections, and troops at the Crownhill Barracks turned out with steel helmets to await orders to proceed.

More than a hundred prisoners attempted to storm the gates and scale the walls. The warders sniped the rioters from strategic positions with the intention of wounding rather than killing. Some were believed to have been fatally shot.

Meanwhile, Col. Turner, the commissioner, who had been visiting Dartmoor to investigate rumors of unrest, was attacked by three convicts, but was rescued by a longtermer, who went to his assistance.

The prison governor was seated in his office when several men broke through a window and rushed him. He fled through a rear door, locking it behind him, and took refuge in a cell block inhabited by prisoners who were still passive.

Prison Records Burned.

One convict had obtained a bugle and sounded a charge on it. Others found musical instruments and set up a terrific din. Some sang the "Red Flag." The prison records were dragged forth during this cacophony and completely burned.

The first charge of the police with batons only left more than 60 convicts insensible on the ground. Their fellow conspirators retaliated by hurling hefty stones from great piles which they had been breaking up. Most of the guards hurt were struck by stones of several pounds weight.

The entire center block of the prison tower and clock—the principal part of the institution—was consumed by flames before firemen could get on the job. Many prisoners remained quiet during the battling.

When the affray began, one man stepped forward with his hands lifted and shouted he wanted to surrender. Ten or twelve more joined him and all were ordered outside the gates where they were put under guard. As other groups were chased to cover they also were surrounded and gave themselves up.

Outbreak Not Unexpected.

One witness said that the Plymouth police arrived just in time. "Had they been ten minutes later," he said, "nothing could have stopped the desperate convicts escaping from the prison and terrorizing the countryside.

"The convicts were driving the warders back and gradually gaining complete control as the police entered the courtyard. The police drew their batons and dashed at the convicts and for twenty minutes there was hell on earth.

"I have never seen such ghastly hand-to-hand fighting, even during the war. Blood was spattered all over the yard and men were knocked out right and left."

There had been a warning of today's outbreak. Last Tuesday there were mutterings when the attempt of one convict to escape was thwarted. Friday two warders were attacked and injured by prisoners. Yesterday there was a rising vocal protest against porridge without sugar and plans for an organized riot were said to have been laid.

SUSPECTS RELEASED IN WATERS MURDER

Police Unable to Link Prisoners to Slaying of 79-Year-Old Merchant.

Unable to connect two Negroes and a white man they had under arrest in Washington with the slaying of Horace D. Waters, 79-year-old Old Germantown merchant, Montgomery County police yesterday ordered their release. Release of the prisoners leaves the police facing a stone wall in their efforts to apprehend the slayers.

Willie Aubrey Daniels, 40, of Clarendon, Va., a plasterer, was arrested yesterday morning by Arlington County Policeman A. D. Langley for Detective Sergt. A. F. Hartman, of Washington, and was taken to the Third Precinct station. He was questioned by Hartman and Detective Sergt. William J. Flynn, of Baltimore, who is aiding the county police in the case.

Daniels told the policemen that he had driven two colored men, whom he had met at a speakeasy, to the neighborhood of Old Germantown the night of the murder. He said that he drove them to the home of relatives and to see a bondsman. He drove a Chrysler green roadster, believed to have been the car seen by residents of the neighborhood on the night of the murder and for which police have been searching.

Three Ordered Released.

Convinced that he knew nothing of the shooting, the detectives ordered his release. They later ordered the release of William Terry and John A. Terry, both colored, who had been held in the case.

The Terry's and a colored woman, Mary Prater, wife of Sam Prater, colored, under indictment for murder in the District, were arrested Friday, when police learned the men had been in the neighborhood of the shooting. The woman also was ordered released.

Police admitted that they are without definite clews in the case. They had hoped for much when they turned up the Terry visit but now do not believe the Terrys were connected with the affair.

Police Task Difficult.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley, Sergt. Roy Bodmer, Detective Theodore Vollten, of the Identification Bureau, and the two Baltimore detectives, Sergts. Flynn and M. J. Dunn, as well as members of the county police force, have been working day and night on the shooting since Wednesday night, getting their sleep in snatches and wherever possible.

The case presents unusually hard problems inasmuch as the police had almost nothing to work on. Even the persons who were in the store at the time of the shooting, Richard A. Bennett, 68, a clerk, who was shot in the wrist, and three Negro customers, are unable to give complete descriptions of the holdup men or to offer any possibility of identifying them if they are caught.

During the postarmistice negotiations in which Germany was accused of concealing billions of dollars of assets on cash deposit in New York banks, Mr. Warburg pleaded that the holding of so vast an amount in New York by Germany was beyond reason. He placed his own estimate around $150,000,000 which was a shade higher than other banking estimates made at the time both by banks with German interests and without such connections.

While he avoided publicity he was usually accessible to newspapermen whom he knew. He seldom hesitated to answer questions frankly even though they were frequently of a nature which might embarrass his own banking deals if his answers were later published.

Forecaster of 1929 Collapse.

Mr. Warburg's reputation as a sound banking economist was preeminent. Not only did he forecast the 1929 market collapse six months before it occurred, but in 1931 he again set himself at odds with prevailing economist opinion when he asserted that easy money and providing especial work would not in themselves arrest the depression.

In his statement to stockholders of the Manhattan company, made public early last year, he said:

"Men in high places in science and politics have indulged in the hope that we are mastering the art of 'flattening out' the cycle of price fluctuations. But these men seem to have believed themselves able to accomplish this aim by providing extra work on a large scale in times of depression. Recent experiences have shown the utter futility of such measures. While extra work softens the blow, it cannot arrest the course of a determined downward movement if it follows an extreme upward swing. Nor can easy money offer a cure.

"The way to avoid a depression (or lessen its severity and duration) is to 'sit on the bulge' during an excessive upward swing."

SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND.

A BRILLIANT red carnation decorates the lapel of the coat of Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York. Sometimes it is a cut-away, sometimes a more informal coat of dark material. If the senator imitated his colleague in the House from New York, Dr. Sirovich, who also wears the secret red carnation, the Senate probably would gape, for despite his easy informality off the floor of the Senate, Dr. Copeland is a stickler for proper appearance and manner on the floor.

Senator Copeland is no fire and brimstone orator; he is no speaker of cutting manner; rather his mode of speech-making resembles the attitude of the doctor who recognizes the poor state of his patient but wishes to conceal his recognition and persuade the patient the course he prescribes is the best.

Though the senior senator from New York, having his home in New York City, Senator Copeland was born in Dexter, Mich., and lived in Michigan long enough to go through the Dexter High School, the Michigan State Normal College and the University of Michigan, the last rewarding his studiousness with the degree of doctor of medicine. Several other degrees may be initialed behind the senator's name. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. He was a college professor, dean of a medical college and health commissionier of New Yoork. In between times he was Mayor of Ann Arbor, Mich., and treasurer of the national board of control of the Epworth League. A Methodist, he was a supporter of former Gov. Al Smith in the last presidential campaign. He organized a hospital in the European war.

The charm and ability of Senator Copeland have grown on the Senate.

Capital Archeologist Tells Of Hunt for Eskimo Culture

James A. Ford, Smithsonian Scientist, to Excavate in Alaska; Writes of Thrilling Point Barrow Natives With Automobile; Describes Hardships.

—10-N—POINT— H T K—MAIL —.

The first letter from James A. Ford, a Smithsonian archeologist, who has voluntarily imprisoned himself at Point Barrow, the farthest north settlement under the American flag, in an effort to excavate a culture 2,000 years old, has been received by the Smithsonian Institution here, it was announced yesterday.

The archeologist, the letter revealed, has thrilled Esquimaux of the section with the sight of their first automobile. Mr. Ford took the car with him, and converted it into a motor sledge by replacing the front wheels with skis. Together with the Point Barrow village schoolmaster and a radio operator, he made a 300-mile trip over the ice to the village of Wainwright and return by way of a Hudson Bay Co. ship, ice locked 60 miles from shore, he wrote.

Although the fastest means of traveling over the ice, the auto sledge is far from ideal, because of the rough surface of the Arctic, Mr. Ford said. The object of Mr. Ford's expedition is several large mounds, sites of ancient villages. They are believed to mark the diffusion point of the Eskimo race and culture from Alaska eastward.

The Smithsonian archeologist hopes to establish a culture sequence which may extend backward for at least 2,000 years and possibly show the starting point of the famous "Thule culture," which extends along the Arctic coast of North America into Greenland. Excavations have already revealed an ancient culture of great ingenuity and artistic merit on the desolate St. Lawrence Island, in Bering Sea, a part of the region between Siberia and North America, crossed by successive waves of human migration.

This culture is believed to have been carried to the mainland of Alaska, and from it the Thule culture is believed to have branched off. No one has been able to determine the point of separation, but Point Barrow is thought to be a favorable place for this to have happened. The hope is that Mr. Ford will form the link. Point Barrow, it is pointed out, may well have been a crossroads of migrations long before the European discovery of the New World.

The present-day Eskimos of the neighborhood know nothing of their early predecessors. They simply represent the last of a long succession of peoples which has passed through this probable culture crucible of the Arctic in waves which may have had no contact with each other in time.

Mr. Ford will dig in the village mounds until time for departure of the last ship next summer. He went to Point Barrow last August, leaving the schooner Patterson, which took him as close as ice would permit to the village and then walking the rest of the way. He plans to start digging as soon as the ground begins to thaw in the spring, and continue work all summer. He is passing the long night of the Actic winter studying the customs of the Eskimo villagers, obtaining palm and foot prints which may reveal points of racial difference.

1931 TAX RECEIPTS FALL $1,018,911,438

Decrease Blamed Largely on Reduced Collections in Income Levies.

The Government collected $1,018,911,438 less in 1931 taxes than in 1930, according to figures just released. While $2,932,966,060.59 was collected in 1930 the figure fell off to $1,914,054,622.59 for the past year.

The decrease in the total return is to be found almost entirely in a reduced collection of income taxes, which alone fell off $964,932,926.81 even though tax rates were 1 per cent higher than in the previous collection year. Miscellaneous taxes fell off only approximately $50,000,000.

The neighboring State of Virginia was the only State that did not show a decrease in the total collected. An increase of approximately $1,500,000 is reported for this State. Although income taxes fell off, an increase was registered due to heavy collections of miscellaneous taxes.

Maryland Returns Lower.

Returns for Maryland, which include the District of Columbia, showed a decrease of $14,498,738.10 for 1931 over the $52,216,548.01 collected in 1930. Only $37,717,809.91 was reported for the past year in Maryland and the District. This total decrease was due a loss of more than $14,500,000 in income taxes, while miscellaneous taxes showed an increase of something more than $5,000.

In West Virginia the figures fell off $2,881,300.60 in 1931 over the 1930 collections. Here again the decrease is due to reduced returns on income taxes, as the miscellaneous taxes fell off $362,274.

The compilation of internal revenue receipts emphasizes the difficulties of the House ways and means committee, which is now preparing to write a new tax bill increasing income and surtax rates, and also, because of the prospective $2,000,000,000 deficit, adding several hundred millions in sales or consumers' taxes on commodities ranging from electric current, sales of stocks and automobiles, to bank checks.

Miscellaneous Collections Less.

Miscellaneous tax collections, including those on tobacco, playing cards, &c., fell off only $53,978,511.19.

Reduced collections were heaviest in industrial sections, where they averaged about 25 per cent more than in agricultural districts. Mining States, such as Arizona, Montana, Michigan, Wyoming, Idaho and Colorado, suffered from low prices of minerals.

Several agricultural States, such as Texas, Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee, paid greatly reduced internal revenue taxes because of low cotton prices. Record low grain prices also affected Kansas, South Dakota and Iowa.

States producing raw materials such as crude oil, lumber and ores also made less profits.

Rifle Association Directors to Meet

New President to Be Elected to Succeed Gen. Crowell; Dinner Friday.

Directors of the National Rifle Association, governing body of civilian rifle shooting in this country since 1872, will hold its annual business session and dinner at the Mayflower Hotel Friday. The business meeting will be in the afternoon, the dinner at night.

A new president will be elected to succeed Brig. Gen. Benedict Crowell, O. R. C., of Cleveland, a former Assistant Secretary of War. The executive committee will name a captain for the 1932 American international small bore rifle team. Gen. Crowell, who has been president for two years, is ineligible for reelection.

During his administration, with Brig. Gen. M. A. Reckord, as executive vice president, and C. B. Lister, secretary-treasurer, directing from the national headquarter here, many new plans have been made to aid the 200,000 individual members and 2,800 affiliated clubs of the organization. Among the improvements was the taking over of almost an entire floor in the Barr Building at headquarters.

Gloth Divorce Plea To Be Heard Today

Appeal for Absolute Decree Up Again; Custody of Son Sought.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The divorce case of William C. Gloth, former Commonwealth's attorney, of Arlington County, will be argued for the second time in the State Supreme Court of Appeals tomorrow.

Gloth, a star athlete at the University of Virginia 25 years ago, was shot by his wife in 1928 as he sought to interview her.

He is again appealing to the Supreme Court from an absolute divorce, custody of his son, William C. Gloth, jr., and annulment of his agreement to pay her $50 a week for the support of herself and the boy. The Arlington County Circuit Court twice has decided against him.

ALEXANDRIAN SHOT, SUSPECT ARRESTED

Wound in Heart Allegedly Inflicted During Row at Woman's Home.

Henry Hill, 20, of Alexandria, Va., is in a critical condition in Alexandria Hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in the heart, allegedly inflicted in an altercation early yesterday with Jerry Cundiff, a 42-year-old one-arm colored man of Hollin Hill farm, at the home of Mrs. Florence Meyers on the River road south of Alexandria.

According to the Fairfax County police, Hill, accompanied by three youths, went to the Meyers home late Saturday night, where they found Mrs. Meyers and Cundiff in the kitchen. They left, taking her with them, and leaving Cundiff at the house. The colored man told police he had come to the house to cut wood for Mrs. Meyers, whose husband is serving a jail sentence for violation of the State prohibition law, and after they all left he laid down on the bed and went to sleep. Several hours later he was awakened by a pounding on the door and believing it was the party returning he shouted for them to come in the same door through which they had departed.

He said they came to the side door and told him to come out as they were the "law," and when he did, they told him to put up his hands and that he was under arrest, but, believing it was a joke, he refused and they all jumped on him. Not being able to fight very well with one arm, he pulled his gun, a .38-caliber revolver, and fired.

Hill was rushed to the hospital by friends and was operated on by Dr. M. D. Delaney, who pronounced his condition serious; the bullet had pierced the lower edge of his heart. Cundiff was arrested by Alexandria police yesterday and held for Fairfax authorities on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and felonious assault. Mrs. Meyers is also held in jail as a material witness. Police state the parties admitted drinking.

Gov. Roosevelt's Son Plans Own Career Like Father's

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—In the House of Roosevelt, prolific source of statesmen, another youngster is preparing himself for the political toga.

He is Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's oldest son, James, and he is fashioning his career after that of his father, he disclosed today.

At 24 the strapping scion of the New York Roosevelts already has won his spurs as a campaign orator and as soon as he succeeds in business he plans to enter the political arena himself.

His first taste of real campaign speaking came when he made two addresses recently in support of the Democratic candidate in New Hampshire's special congressional election. The candidate, William N. Rogers, won.

"And that's a good omen," grinned young Roosevelt—he has the infectious Roosevelt grin.

"Seriously though, I have a liking for politics," he said. "But I want first to make a success in business. I am a firm believer in the principle that a man should be a bread and butter winner before he enters public life. He must have a good business background to be a good statesman."

Like his father, the younger Roosevelt was reticent concerning the governor's political future. But he said he "probably would" campaign for him in the event the governor is a presidential candidate.

After completing his law school studies, Mr. Rosevelt looked around for a business that would give him the training he wanted. He chose an insurance job in Boston.

"I wanted to develop my speaking and make friends with a lot of people," he explained.

He reads "everything I can get hold of" on economics and political science, and has definite ideas on affairs of state.

"The time is coming—has come," he said, "when Government so affects the lives of all of us that we are going to demand a higher standard of administration, a better stewardship of governmental affairs."

He was speaking, he said in reply to a question, abstractly.

"When we elect a man to public office," he said, "we are going to ask him to explain in common language, that can be easily understood, just why he does certain things."

One of his less pressing ambitions is to make a Democrat of his father-in-law, Dr. Harvey Cushing, eminent Boston Brain specialist whom he described as a "Yale Republican."

ARLINGTON TO HAVE CODE FOR BUILDING

County Manager Roy Braden Announces Plans for New Regulation.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Arlington County is soon to have a building code, which will regulate types and classes of buildings to be erected in any section of the county, according to County Manager Roy S. Braden.

Much study has been given this subject and it is the plan to provide a building code which will embrace those regulations which prevail in other progressive sections of the State and at the same time come well within the law.

There will be nothing included in the code that will work a hardship on either the contractor or the persons having homes and business buildings erected, but a code that will aid in the progressive development of Arlington County.

In addition to the building code a plumber's code is also being considered that will regulate in every way the class of work that must be carried out. This will not only protect the person having work done but also the person doing the work Mr. Braden says.

Among other projects that are being considered is the uniform naming of the streets in Arlington County. Investigation shows that in some cases it is found that some streets have more than one name.

One of the main reasons for a study being given to the question of remaining streets in Arlington County, as pointed out by County Manager Braden, is to avoid duplication which now exists. In one case there are as many as 25 Arlington avenues and Arlington streets in the county.

Mrs. C. K. Lewis has been elected president of the Woman's Club of Lyon Park. Other officers are: Mrs. W. F. McDonald, vice president; Mrs. Amy A. Bustin, recording secretary; Mrs. A. T. Rowell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lillian Morgan, treasurer. Members of the board of governors of the Lyon Park Community Center from the club are Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Bessie Johnson, Mrs. T. L. Hutton, Mrs. W. H. Crosson and Mrs. Helen Orr.

The Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the Kelley Building, at Clarendon.

Plans for the benefit dinner to be given under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Nellie Custis School, at Virginia Highlands, will be completed at an executive committee meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. D. Hurlbut.

Roosevelt Favored By Women Leaders

Candidacy Is Indorsed by Democratic and Progressive Body.

(Associated Press.)

Indorsement was given Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's candidacy for the Presidency last night by the executive committee of the national committee of 1,000 Democratic and progressive women in a congratulatory telegram sent from Washington to his home in Albany.

The message from the organization, which has headquarters in New York and Washington, said: "Congratulations on your announcement accepting the universal call of the people. The party leaders will have to accept the public's choice of you as their leader or be relegated to political oblivion. An aroused public demands the acceptance of their popular choice and will insist delegates refrain from bartering or trading their sovereignty."

The telegram was signed by Patricia V. Dorn, national secretary. The Empire State committee of the organization will give a Roosevelt-for-President dinner at New York March 5.

Hoover's Crop Reduction Program Upheld by Hyde

(Associated Press.)

The Hoover administration is described by Secretary Hyde in the current issue of the Country Home as the first "which has attacked the question of farm profits not only on the safe and comfortable side of costs of production, but also on the tempestuous side of price."

"In time it will be more fully understood that in stabilizing the wheat and cotton markets at a time when all human institutions seemed to be failing," the Secretary of Agriculture said, "The farm board served not only agriculture, but did more for American industry than American industry has ever done for the farmer."

Quoting Henry Ford as advising American farmers that restricted production is wrong, Hyde said at the time this advice was given, Ford's "own plan was operating at 75 per cent capacity."

"Yet, when for the first time the farmers of America are urged to think in terms of an organized, orderly reduction, region by region," the secretary said, "then expressions of horror resound from coast to coast."

Asserting the administration has sought to organize agriculture "so that it can meet economic problems on economic grounds," Hyde said, "violent opposition" has been met. He added:

"This opposition arose less often from any actual hostility toward agriculture than from a general feeling that proposals to reduce an overabundance of cheap stuffs were revolutionary and wrong.

"The fact is: they are revolutionary—but right."

THE BANKING BILL.

One of the most important pieces of legislation that will be introduced at the present session of Congress is the banking bill now in the hands of the Senate banking and currency committee. This sweeping measure represents months of intensive study by a group of senators and financial experts. It covers the whole field of banking and credit and is designed to correct virtually every defect in the present Federal Reserve system. No more important banking measure has been laid before Congress since the Federal Reserve act was passed nearly twenty years ago.

A number of relief measures in this bill give it immediate importance. It would set up within the Federal Reserve system a permanent corporation to liquidate the assets of failed member banks. Such banks would no longer have to go through protracted periods of insolvency. Quick liquidation for the benefit of depositors could be effected with losses held to a minimum. This provision in itself should greatly augment the faith of the public in the national banking system.

Another liquidating corporation would be set up, with a capital of $200,000,000 from the Federal Treasury, to liquidate the assets of State banks that have been forced to close their doors. This is purely an emergency plan to loosen credit, and is in general accord with the recommendations of President Hoover.

One other provision to strengthen the banking system is that allowing national banks with a capital of $1,000,000 to establish branches in States where branch banking is legal. This does not coincide with the recommendations of Comptroller of the Currency Pole, who advocates branch banking within natural trade areas. Amendments to this section may be expected, but the basic purpose of extending branch banking is sound. More rigid restriction of chain and group banking is also provided, and the act seeks to bring affiliates under supervision.

Greater flexibility of credit in times of emergency is sought through a broadening of the rediscount privilege. Groups of banks in any Federal Reserve district would be allowed to rediscount notes not now eligible, after the collateral for such notes had been indorsed by the banking group. A higher rate of interest for this type of loan would be required. This feature of the bill also corresponds in a general way with President Hoover's suggestion that the rediscount privilege be broadened with adequate safeguards. National banks would be authorized to change discount rates to meet emergency conditions.

Of particular interest is the section designed to restrict stock speculation. It would forbid member banks to increase their loans for security transactions while borrowing on fifteen-day notes from the Federal Reserve system. Borrowings would be limited on a percentage basis when the borrowing bank loaned to brokers. Banks violating these regulations would lose the rediscount privilege. At present the chief weapon possessed by the Federal Reserve banks against speculation is the raising of the rediscount rate. In the boom period of 1929 it was found that higher rediscount rates merely curtailed the credit available for legitimate businesss, while speculation continued.

To prevent the swindling of American investors through the sale of foreign bonds the bill would require all member banks to obtain the consent of the Federal Reserve Board to purchase foreign acceptances or float loans in this country. In view of the revelations before the Senate finance committee there is a widespread demand for the regulation of foreign bond issues, and this provision appears to be the least objectionable means of supplying it.

On the whole, it appears that the committee has done excellent work. Certainly, its objectives are commendable. The measures it suggests for carrying out those objectives must be subject to close scrutiny by experts. Possibly some of them will have to be written into the law and given a test before their efficacy can be definitely assured. In so far as the bill would strengthen the credit structure of the United States it would be a notable contribution to the relief of present conditions and the enhancement of financial stability.

GEORGIA PAYS DEBTS.

Economy and efficiency are the watchwords of the new financial structure of the State of Georgia, which went into effect January 1. Gov. Richard B. Russell, jr., has inaugurated a policy whereby the State contracts debts only in proportion to its ability to pay when due. As director of the budget the governor holds the purse strings, vested with authority unprecedented in the State's history. Every department is now governed by the budget law, while the governor has the power to veto any item he believes unsuitable and may reduce requisitions as his discretion dictates. The appropriation bill specifically states that the governor shall not approve requisitions exceeding the cash available to the treasury.

When Mr. Russell was running for governor he toured the State, rousing the people to the support of his project. His victory at the polls was surprising, in view of the opposition of veteran campaigners. When Gov. Russell took office the State owed $7,339,000, due to legislative appropriations exceeding revenues. The governor has already put through legislation which will cancel $3,200,000 of this debt, largely through options and sale warrants of State-owned railroad property.

So complete has been the reorganization of the government that the number of departments and commissions has been reduced from 102 to 25. One board of eleven regents has replaced the various boards that formerly directed the University of Georgia and its 25 branches. A single board now controls the eight institutions of the department of public welfare, and a new revenue commission combines the work of the comptroller general, revenue department and motor vehicle department. The bachelor-executive, 34 years old, has already made notable strides toward the fulfillment of his reorganization and pay-as-you-go policy.

PRIVILEGES FOR ALIENS.

In three different cases in recent years the Supreme Court has denied citizenship to aliens who do not believe in defending this country, if that becomes necessary. The decisions aroused widespread resentment among Communists, pacifists and the so-called "liberals." This element is now sponsoring a bill to amend the naturalization laws so that any coward or slacker may obtain citizenship. Hearings on the measure are scheduled for Tuesday morning, January 26, before the House immigration committee.

An organization calling itself the Griffin bill committee has undertaken the task of befuddling the public mind in preparation for the measure. It petitions Congress to enact this bill so that "intelligent aliens opposed to war" may become citizens. This puts the duplicity of the committee's propaganda in its baldest form. In reality the bill is intended to allow aliens who will not promise to defend the Constitution to become citizens. But these propagandists are trying to camouflage the measure as an innocent provision, welcoming to the land of liberty the friends of peace.

It is questionable whether the bill as introduced by Representative Griffin would accomplish what is intended. It provides:

> That no person mentally, morally, and otherwise qualified shall be debarred from citizenship by reason of his or her religious views or philosophical opinions with respect to the lawfulness of war as a means of settling international disputes, but every alien admitted to citizenship shall be subject to the same obligations as the native-born citizen.

It is not a question of philosophical opinions as to the justification for war, it is a question of willingness to take up arms in defense of the country if called upon to do so. Millions of citizens believe that war is wrong, and yet are ready to fight to save their country. Should anything less be asked of aliens who come seeking the protection of this Government?

It would be an insult to American citizens to offer citizenship to aliens who wish to partake of its privileges and shirk its responsibilities. In the present state of the world the stability of the United States depends upon the strength of its arms. The duty of defending the Nation against foreign attack is one which all citizens share. Any movement to bring into the fold a group holding honorary citizenship, a class of privileged aliens, is too disgusting to merit serious consideration in Congress.

RETURN CAPTURED PROFITS.

One of the most curious aspects of the railroad situation is the fact that several roads that are now in receivership owe the Government large sums of money as a result of earning what the law terms "excessive" profits. For the last twelve years railroads have been required to divide their profits above 6 per cent with Uncle Sam. They have not been allowed to accumulate surplus funds in prosperous years to carry them through periods of slack business. Now when they don't have enough traffic to make both ends meet they find themselves indebted to the Government for large sums.

This situation was described to the House interstate and foreign commerce committee this week by Joseph B. Eastman, of the interstate commerce committee. He estimates that the amount due to the Government under the provision for recapturing profits may run as high as $378,398,194. This obligation, based on excess profits, weakens the credit structure of the railroads at the very time when Congress is setting up a $2,000,000,000 corporation to relieve such conditions. It brings into bold relief the absurdity of the policy under which the railroads are forced to operate.

Mr. Eastman advocates retroactive repeal of the recapture provision. He thinks that railroads should be allowed to retain all their earnings, regardless of the fact that some roads made more than the legal 6 per cent. It is pointed out that repeal of the law, without the retroactive feature, would have little effect at present because no road is liable to earn excessive returns on its investment during the next few years. The only way in which Congress can correct the damage that has been done by this short-sighted railroad policy is to allow the carriers to keep earnings above 6 per cent over the last ten years.

It is doubtful whether the earnings of any road would amount to 6 per cent of its investment over the entire period of years. The vicious feature of the existing law is that excess profits are confiscated in prosperous years and no compensating allowance is made for periods of depression. The Interstate Commerce Commission even denied the carriers a 15 per cent increase in freight rates to turn the tide of falling revenue and shrinking credit.

Congress will undoubtedly sweep away the recapture clause so far as the future is concerned. If it should wipe out the obligations of the carriers on account of excess profits in recent years it would make a notable contribution toward the recovery of normal railway credit.

THE OIL TARIFF ISSUE.

The present session of Congress undoubtedly will see renewed and determined efforts on the part of independent oil producers of the Midwest, whose output comes from small stripper wells, to force the enactment of a duty on oil. They will have the support of large companies that have extensive stocks above ground and output from flowing wells that would be immediately benefited by increased prices. Opposed to a tariff will be the American companies that are importing oil from their holdings abroad and many organizations representing important users of gasoline, fuel oil and asphalt, who realize that a prohibitive duty on the imported products would mean increased costs of operation.

The United States has never placed a duty upon fuel. A tariff on oil would tend to drain the domestic supply, increase the cost of gasoline, and give a costly subsidy to a fraction of the petroleum industry in this country.

The problem of the small pumping wells is a serious one, it must be admitted, but the question is whether they should be rendered profitable for a comparatively few well owners to the great cost of millions of users of oil and oil products. Oil from stripper wells can only be produced at more than twice the cost of oil from the flowing wells in the same midcontinent fields. To claim that a tariff sufficient to overcome this difference in the cost of production would not greatly increase the cost of all oil products in this country is an evasion that does not merit discussion. Other unwarranted assertions are made to bolster tariff pleas, such as statements that the price of gasoline does not follow the price of oil, and that stripper well production would be lost if the wells were shut in.

It is unfortunate, in connection with the Senate commerce committee tariff and embargo hearings a year ago, that the last four pages of the report were not included in the first printing. Members of Congress will find in these pages, printed in a later limited edition, a memorandum prepared for the Secretary of the Interior by the Department of Mines, in which many of the points here discussed are treated in an impartial manner by Government experts. The proposal for a tariff on oil is a much larger question than restoring to profitable production the least efficient fraction of the American oil industry. It is of paramount interest to all owners of motors and oil burners. The Nation is asked to enact legislation which would hasten the exhaustion of the petroleum resources and eventually subject the country to the extortions of foreign oil producers.

Gov. Murray objects to the Vice Presidency, saying that official "keeps his mouth shut and wears fine clothes." And Alfalfa Bill does not know how to do either.

Uncle Sam is willing to support our prison population, but he believes that the States and municipalities should care for the few people who are not yet in jail.

The big issue confronting the country this year is whether Republicans or Democrats shall compose the army of the unemployed.

SENATORS, ART CRITICS

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

That stately body called the Senate thrust aside trifling matters like the economic reconstruction of the Nation the other day to give full attention to a problem that is really grave. This was the projected revamping of the State, War and Navy Building, now occupied by the State Department.

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, dean of the Senate, was the protagonist of the show, delivering a fiery condemnation of the "gimcrackers and spizerinktoms" that envelop the pile of stone alleged to compose a public building. But no sooner had the senator spoken his words of hate for rotten architecture than three colleagues—McKellar, Norris and Jones—were on their feet in defense of ugliness because it has been there a long time.

The question was whether to spend money in these days of economy for the remodeling of the State Department pile to make of it a dignified structure, harmonious with other Washington edifices. The question was not settled.

Perhaps this is not the time to remodel the building, although certainly the removal of Washington's worst eyesore is not least of the tasks that must be done. Perhaps it would be best to leave the "spizerinktoms" where they are, cluttering up the skyline across the street from the White House, and pointing out to all the world what bad taste men have had at some times in history.

But if we haven't the money to do this job now, why say it is because the building is beautiful? Economics and aesthetics need not be confused so dreadfully. Better admit that Mr. Stimson's office building is the ugliest heritage of the nineteenth century in America, and resolve to remodel, dynamite or burn it as soon as the Treasury can afford an equivalent that will do justice to American taste.

There was more optimism in the weekly trade reviews and the Reconstruction Corporation is an accomplished fact; so, naturally, the stock market went off a bit.

No stalled industrial flivver should get the idea that Driver Dawes is coming along to offer a Rolls Royce in exchange. His emergency service wagon may fill up the tank and give the old bus a shove, but the man at the wheel must then demonstrate he can run it.

"Draft Smith and get your draught" would be a good slogan for the new organizations that propose to dragoon the Happy Warrior.

Senator Moses proposes that the United States recover prosperity by attending to its own business. His position probably would be supported by a comparison of profits from foreign investments with what we are going to lose.

Mexican students announce that they are not going to play with the Pan-American students' conference at Miami in April unless American students undertake to reform the State Department's attitude toward Latin America. And several Southern countries would be better off if papas still spanked their bumptious kids.

Japan is masticating Manchuria neatly and quietly, but Shanghai might be quite a bite. The city with a population of 3,500,000 contains more than 1,000,000 indigestible foreigners.

Senator Dill talks about the Reconstruction Corporation's capital as though it were a dole fund to be distributed and lost. On the contrary it will doubtless make money, as the War Finance Corporation did while helping business to help itself.

Senator Burton Wheeler challenges intelligent criticism, not mere denial, of ten mere unsupported assertions he makes regarding miracles of prosperity that would follow the remontization of silver. Quite incidentally the senator comes from the second larest silver producing State.

Chains That Enslave You Are Ones You Don't Recognize as Fetters

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN A land where men boast of their freedom, it is incredible that any one should believe or disbelieve, like or dislike, attack or defend, as directed by a master.

But that is the pathetic destiny of any individual who has not taken the trouble to discover the cause of his opinions and make a test of their soundness.

The ordinary adult is the unwitting tool of childhood instructors. His religion and political convictions, his class and race prejudices, his standards of morality and his conception of ethics were forced upon him by parents and tutors, thus shaping his thoughts as Chinese parents once bound and reshaped the feet of their infant daughters, and now they are retained and defended without examination because time and custom have made them seem infallible and sacred.

Long treasured opinions are like the vicinity of one's birth and childhood. No matter how dreary the landscape or how dreadful the climate, long association has made it the standard of excellence and one's mind is incapable of recognizing faults that are absurd or repellant to a stranger.

If the ordinary individual has any opinions not inherited from his childhood, they are products of expediency. They are made by his wealth or his poverty and tempered by self-interest—with or without his knowledge shaped to fit his environment, serve his ambitions and prevent the loss of money or reputation.

If you would discover whether you are a free man or the tool of early environment and present expediency, there are two simple tests that will reveal the truth.

Could you confess convictions opposite to those you now hold without losing money, friends or prestige? If not, your opinions are under suspicion and must prove their sincerity. This test isn't infallible, however, for reason and right may prompt the very opinions that happen to butter your bread.

A better test is to read, with an honest desire to discover the truth, arguments and evidence that support opinions contrary to yours. If such evidence, though calmly and fairly presented, has no effect but to anger you, your opinions probably have no foundation except environment, custom and self-interest.

If you are unwilling to read such evidence, whether because of fear or prejudice, you have no claim to freedom of opinion, even if you happen to be right.

Hoover to Dawes to Stimson.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

A year ago the United States was the leader in the family of nations in the cause of disarmament, and President Hoover was the acknowledged mentor of the statesmen in all countries who were working toward that end. As recently as his Armistice Day speech last autumn, the President regarded arms reduction as the most vital issue before the world.

Since then disarmament has passed into the realm of official negotiation, and the crusading spirit of the President's Armistice Day address has given place to technical diplomatic pourparlers. Mr. Hoover handed the matter over to Ambassador Dawes a few months ago, making him chief of America's delegation to the Geneva conference.

Now emphasis has shifted again, and domestic economic problems are in the foreground. Not only has they drawn the President's attention and enthusiasm away from armament reduction, but they have commandeered the services of Mr. Dawes. Pinch-hitting for his subordinate, therefore, Secretary Stimson becomes the champion of disarmament for the nation most deeply committed to that policy.

The Baker Mystery Deepens.

Kansas City Star.

Newton D. Baker has added to the mystery of his attitude toward the movement to enter him as a candidate in the contest for the Democratic nomination for President. The first surprising thing he did was to refuse to countenance the movement personally. He declined to take any steps to secure the delegation from his own State of Ohio, and declared his preference for Gov. George White (who is a "dry" while Mr. Baker is a "wet") as the recipient of Ohio's votes in the national convention.

This was remarkable enough behavior for a politician, but Mr. Baker now has performed even farther off from center. He has addressed a letter to the League of Nations Association at Philadelphia giving it as his opinion the United States should join the league. There is no explanation as to why Mr. Baker should have taken this extraordinary action.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Careful Study Should Be Made of Federal Pay and Cost of Living Before Slashing Wages.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to voice an appreciation of Representative Snell's statements on the reduction of Government salaries as printed in Friday morning's Post.

I believe every thinking Government employe will agree with him that the reduction of Federal salaries should be the subject of an individual bill, not a cowardly rider on some other very important legislation, the passage of which it might hinder or retard, and that, if a bill for salary reduction must be enacted, it should not be done until the other important fiscal problems, appropriations, budgeting balancing &c., are completed, every saving being effected therein. Then, and only then, can anyone know just what benefit can be derived by a reduction of Government salaries. Then, if actual necessity exists, a bill therefor should be carefully drafted on a sane, fair basis, taking into consideration actual living expenses met by Government employes here in Washington, with a comparison of their wages as to that of workers of the same educational and expert requirements in private concerns.

Bills for salary reductions should not be offered, as at present, in a spirit of prejudice toward Government employes and propaganda to stir a hysterical wave of resentment toward them by distant constituents, as has been evidenced by certain members of the House. A recent radio address to the public by a congressional advocacy of Federal pay slashes stressed savings to taxpayers, implying that only the public at large paid taxes, not those in the Government employ. Those in the Government pay taxes as well—personal, land, income tax. As matters now stand, they may have to meet higher taxes with lessened income. Is that fair?

The question of eggs has been mentioned. The edible ones cost from 33 to 45 cents a dozen even in the cut-rate grocery stores. I know that to be true, for I must buy them. Contrary to some beliefs, groceries here in Washington have not gone down very much, and rents not at all.

I believe every patriotic Government employe, and we all must be so to hold our jobs, will accept a pay cut, even a hard one, if dire necessity demands it, and if a fair study be made of actual living conditions by those who understand their living conditions—some one who is obliged to live on the actual wage they receive. Government employes are not of the tenement class, and can not exist on that living level—they must live in a certain modicum of respectable surroundings, which they barely now attain by the carefullest of budgeting.

MASINIA RULIEN SALOVON.

Something About the Birthplace and Ancestry of Andrew Jackson.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since the Democrats are active and have had their "Jackson dinner" in Washington, I wonder how many persons know the birthplace of Andrew Jackson.

I noted in "The Travels of George Washington," written by William Joseph Showalter, in the January issue of the National Geographic Magazine that he said George Washington had stopped with my great-great-great-uncle, Capt. James Strade, one night, in particular, en route to Berkeley Springs, where James Rumsey showed him a working model of a steamboat.

Andrew Jackson, hero of New Orleans and twice President of the United States, was born on Capt. Strade's plantation. His parents were poor Irish emigrants, who lived on the plantation for a few years in the employ of Capt. Strade, before they moved to Waxhaw Settlement in North Carolina. During this time, about 1765, Andrew Jackson was born. When the Jacksons moved, Capt. Strade's daughters, having no brother, begged their father to let them keep "little Andrew." He consented, but the child's parents would not give him up. They then followed the moving family and made an attempt to kidnap the child, but were unsuccessful and went home in tears.

Capt. Strade's three daughters grew up to be beautiful women. They were descended through their mother from the Duke of Hamilton. Eleanor Strade married Capt. Abram Shepherd, Phoebe married Capt. Joseph Swearingen and Rachel married Capt. Henry Bedinger. (Dandridge History of Shepherdstown.)

THE VEGETABLE LIFE.

My stomach doctor says to me:
"A vegetable you must be
For just a month or two.
I wish all business you'd cut out
And like a pumpkin lie about
With not a thing to do.

"'Twere well for you to imitate
An eggplant's calm and blissful state
Or live the life serene
Which is the very happy lot
Of cabbage in the garden plot.
Likewise the placid bean.

"If like an onion you would dwell,
That is, of course, without its smell,
Your ailments soon would mend;
If dull and stolid you could be
Like artichoke or broccoli
Your stomach pains would end.

So if perchance I fade from view
And for the following month or two
Nowhere about am seen,
Just think of me, awaiting spring
In some dim grotto, mimicking
The still life of a bean.

Plans Are Going Forward For Bicentennial Ball.

The George Washington Bicentennial Ball, which is to be given in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel on Monday evening, February 22, will be one of the most brilliant historical balls ever to take place in this city. The United States Bicentennial Commission has worked hard in cooperating with the New England States Society in making this event the most outstanding of the Washington celebration.

Plans for the ball call for two hostesses from each of the States which formed the original thirteen colonies, and one from each of the other States. Many descendants of the soldiers who fought under Washington will attend and form a guard of honor to the many noted guests. The Daughters of the American Revolution will send a group of young ladies who will dance the minuet. Mr. Samuel Williamson, newly elected president of the Sons of the American Revolution, will deliver a short address. The Madrigal Singers, noted throughout the entire country for their rendition of colonial songs, will render several selections. Representative William Tierney, of Connecticut, will render the main address of the evening. The commemoration program will last two hours beginning at 8:30. Dancing will follow.

The committee decided not to restrict the affair to colonial costumes, but advised as many as could to wear clothes of the Colonial Period.

Patrons and patronesses for the affair are Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator and Miss Helen Coolidge, Senator and Mrs. Porter Dale, Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Senator Frederic Walcott, Senator and Mrs. Frederick Hale, Representative and Mrs. Augustine Lonergan, Representative and Mrs. John Q. The entire series of concerts, all but the first of which will be given in other cities, will be sponsored by Mrs. Hoover.

Paderewski's program for this evening has been carefully chosen and is entirely different from the program he played in concert here last season. It opens with the Bach-Liszt Prelude and Fugue in A minor, Mozart's A major sonata, Chopin's B minor sonata, a group of four additional Chopin works, four Debussy gems and closes with Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody."

Mr. Christopher B. Coleman, of Indianapolis, Ind., is a guest at the Dodge for a few days. Mr. Coleman is the executive secretary of the George Rogers Clark Sesquicentennial Commission of the United States.

Most matrons will love this dress. It has that becoming neckline, so modish and slenderizing. The skirt, too, does its bit toward producing a slender appearance with its sharp diagonal seaming that gives a nice depth to the hipline.

It combines printed and plain rayon crepe, whose cost is very small.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

LEADERS of the radio industry appeared before the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives in opposition to the proposed 5 per cent sales tax on radio and accessories, declaring that such a tax would cause increased prices to the public, reduce sales, increase unemployment and would raise negligible additional taxes for the Government.

That the radio industry was willing to bear its share of the additional needs for Federal revenue and would recommend instead a small general sales tax on all manufactures was set forth by the industry witnesses before the House committee. However, they objected to radio being singled out and discriminated against by a special tax proposed only for radios and automobiles.

Those testifying before the committee at the hearing arranged by the Radio Manufacturers Association, included Bond Geddes, executive vice president of the R. M. A.; Frank D. Scott, legislative counsel of the association; Arthur T. Murray, United American-Bosch Co.; B. J. Grigsby, Grigsby-Grunow Co.; William J. Barkley, DeForest Radio Tube Co., and Maj. I. E. Lambert, counsel for RCA-Victor Co.

THE NBC and Columbia chains grossed $35,791,999 during the past year in advertising, Denney's national sales authority estimates.

Denney's gives NBC's receipts as $25,607,041, and Columbia's as $10,184,956. According to this, NBC shows an increase of more than $3,000,000 during the past year, and Columbia more than $2,000,000.

"The precise accents of Calvin Coolidge will be heard when Ward Wilson impersonates the former President on the Royal Vagabonds program tonight" (WJZ network, 6:30 o'clock).—NBC press release.

Maybe it is different now that Mr. Coolidge is no longer President, but there was such a comeback when Will Rogers tried the same stunt that even to this day the comedian keeps explaining the incident.

The Gordon String Quartet, Jacques Gordon, founder and first violinist; Ralph Silverman, second violinist; Paul Robyn, viola, and Naoum Benditzky, cellist, will present a half-hour of chamber music under the auspices of the music division of the Library of Congress (WMAL, 2 o'clock this afternoon).

The quartet will play Opus 19, in G Minor, Daniel Gregory Mason, one of the foremost of modern colored composers.

A NEW composition was recently broadcast. Within a few minutes the announcer said, "fast work, Chicago!" and reported to the invisible audience that he would read a telegram congratulating the composer who was in the studio.

"It came so quickly after the selection was microphoned that the composer, musicians and studio audience were visibly surprised and looked at the announcer to see the telegram, Orrin E. Dunlop, jr., relates. He had none. He was reading from the prepared continuity. Such action stirs up a false impression of radio among studio visitors. They leave with the impression that what announcers say should perhaps be taken with a grain of salt. Broadcasters should be honest with the audience."

A recent survey shows, according to O. H. Caldwell, former radio commissioner, on an average 5.6 per cent of the time on the air is devoted to station announcements; 20.9 per cent to the advertising message and 73.5 per cent to entertainment.

It would seem if this is true it is the character of the sales talks that is causing the criticism on the Hill rather than the length.

TWO men spoken of as successors of Col. Thad Brown, if the latter is confirmed as Federal Radio Commissioner, are natives of Indiana. They are Duke M. Patrick, of Indianapolis, and Ben S. Fisher, more recently from Marshfield, Oreg., and both serving as assistants to the general counsel of the commission.

Mr. Patrick was born on a farm in Morgan County, Indiana, July 3, 1900. He received the degree of bachelor of science from Purdue University and doctor of jurisprudence from the University of Michigan.

Mr. Fisher was born in Indiana, is 40 years of age and a graduate of the law school of the University of Illinois. He has practiced law for the past 15 years in Marshfield, Oreg. From 1922 to 1924 he served as district attorney.

A POWERFUL new superheterodyne radio, expressly designed for automobiles, has just been introduced by the RCA Victor Co. The new receiver is equipped with nine tubes and its sensitivity and selectivity are said to be developed to a remarkably high degree.

Bing Crosby's new personal appearance contract with Paramount calls for $4,000 a week. His first public appearances, following attention attracted by radio, brought him $2,500 a week. Richard Tauber, German tenor, is to receive $1,000 each for his radio performances.

THE distinction of giving the first television program over WMAL's new station went to Lelia Endicott, of 4221 Thirteenth street northeast, and her accompanist, Mae Davis. • • • A true experience of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, "The O'Brien Murders," will be dramatized during the broadcast of "With Canada's Mounted" (WJZ, 10 o'clock tonight). • • • Dewey L. Fleming, of the Baltimore Sun, will speak on "Washington vs. London" in the "Going to Press" period tomorrow (WMAL, 5:45 p. m.). • • • A concert commemorating the 173d anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scottish poet, will be broadcast tonight (WJZ network, 9:30 o'clock. • • • The first of a new series of morning concerts by the United States Navy Band, under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter, will be presented over the WJZ network, beginning Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. • • • Guy Lombardo will direct his Royal Canadians in a special arrangement of the "Kashmiri Love Song" (WMAL, 10 p. m.). • • • Johnny Hart's ready willingness to help a pair of fellow troupers who are stranded will win for him a different sort of applause when the Big Time sketch is presented (WRC, Wednesday night, 8 o'clock).

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

A graceful dinner dress in black tulle posed over a taffeta slip of cleverly blended orange and black. Sash in black and orange velvet. (Courtesy of the Maison Jenny, Paris.)

WELL, let's start off "blue Monday" with a look at the mail bag—a sure way to either dispel the blues or make blue Monday blu-er!

To start with, there are a whole handful of notes that I have been jotting down on my mental cuffs all week, only to find that some of the notes were answers to some of the requests in letters. You know, letters asking for leaflets and asking a question are most welcome—the question may take a little time to get answered, but it will show up here eventually.

For instance, how many women have asked advice on their long hair! Hair that is so lovely and thick and long that the only place for it is in the boudoir or in the drawing room—and one simply can't find a hat that will fit it and look the least bit chic, and it is simply too much to take care of properly these hurried days—yet it seems a shame to sacrifice the hair of a lifetime to the mode for cropped shorn locks.

And that's one of the things I was about to discuss today! For sister Dionne has just exactly that problem, and we just exactly solved it! She's busy, you know, what with taking care of two kiddies and her house, and doing some office work for us in her spare time. And that beeuutiful hair! Well, that beeoottuful hair is no longer a problem—now sister Dionne has the comfort and freedom and easy-to-take-care-of-ness of short hair, the comfort of knowing for the first time in her life that she is really chic in her hats, and the distinction and elegance of long tresses as well!

And I think I'll just be a meanie and let you wait for the story of how it was done! Watch for it. • • • How to have the chic and comfort of bobbed hair as well as the elegance and distinction of long hair, a la Dare • • •

• • • •

Have you sent for the two apron designs in this week's leaflet? Better hurry! Not only are these aprons chic and practical but if you knew the fun I had experimenting with them for you, my deahs! You see, after making them out of unbleached muslin and trimming them with colored bias binding, I decided that I would like to make some colored ones—also of unbleached muslin, and I did—with a 10-cent package of boiling dye, which gave them an attractive and not too brilliant hue. And they wash like any other colored material—running a little and turning a lighter shade but without streaking. And then, when you consider the amazing fact that two whole aprons cost only 30 cents to make, and that the two I designed for you are the most comfortable and practical and chic house aprons I ever saw—well, better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet!

• • • •

Jenny has a genius for making the unusual out of the commonplace! In the simple but lovely dress I sketched for you today, look how she contrives with a black taffeta and orange slip, to pose a black tulle dress of most simple lines over it, and achieve something! Nothing elaborate, nothing unusual, nothing difficult. And its only trimming a nonchalantly tied sash of orange and black velvet ribbon!

• • • •

Hints From a Happy Housewife.

Sister Dionne goes right to the source of things for her information! Finding that even expensive navy blue dresses manage to "blue" her light lingerie and costume slips, she got a magic, secret formula from her druggist on what to do about it!

Add a teaspoon of vinegar and a tablespoon of salt to a pint of warm water, barely dampen a white cloth in this, and then rub your blue dress on the wrong side all around under the arms. Now hold this over the steaming tea kettle spout so that there won't be any water ring, shake and rub your dress dry, and there you are!

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

INVENTING A BID

EVERY hand at Contract is a mystery story, but fortunately for Contract players the clews are much more definite than those found by men faced with the ferreting out of crime. Each bid carries with it certain implications and from each bid it is the duty of the partner to draw the correct inferences. Thus, by adding to the knowledge you already have that obtained through the inferences drawn from your partner's bids, the make-up, to a great extent, of the hand is revealed to you before you have seen any other cards than those dealt to you.

A little more than a year ago, when playing in London, I invented a new bid. My partner, Mr. Theodore A. Lightner, was the Dealer. We were vulnerable. He bid one diamond and Second Hand passed. I had a type of hand I had never held before under these conditions and made up a new bid to fit the occasion. My response was five hearts. Here are the hands of the partners.

Mr. Lightner
♠ K Q 6
◇ A K Q 6 4
♣ K J 10 4

Mr. Culbertson
♡ A K Q J 7 5 4 3 2

Mr. Lightner, in order to decide whether he should bid six or pass, had to reconstruct my hand. It took him some time to decide. Here are the inferences which he drew. In Bridge you have two kinds of inferences: positive and negative. Positive inferences are drawn from what your partner bids. Negative inferences are drawn from what your partner fails to bid or what he fails to do. Here Mr. Lightner used the negative inferences. It was apparent I had a strong hand, because I had invited him to bid six, but he asked himself did I not have another and better bid? The answer to this was "Yes." A better bid was a Forcing Takeout (a jump to another suit).

The fact that I did not make this bid implied that my hand did not justify it. Hence, I did not have 3 honor-tricks in my hand. What then could I hold to bid five hearts? When I made this bid I guaranteed to take 11 tricks with the combined hands. If I guaranteed 11 tricks, it is clear I cannot reasonably count on more than 2 tricks in his hand. Therefore there must be 9 tricks in mine. If I hold no outside trick, then I must have nine hearts including A K Q J. In addition to this, I must have at least two diamonds. Drawing these inferences, Mr. Lightner made what I considered the greatest pass in the history of Bridge. I asked him to bid six. He held 4 honor-tricks, but with this enormous hand he passed because he knew that the two missing Aces were held by our opponents.

Question: Name all honor combinations that are worth ½ honor-trick.

Answer: K x, Q J x or any Q x in one suit and J x in another.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:10 a. m., from 2 a. m. to 3:45 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:40 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Fate will not be in a flattering mood on January 25, and successes will only be meted out according to measure of ability and amount of energy spent in securing returns. The gods help those who help themselves, and none other, on this date.

The child born on this January 25 will be affectionate and good-natured, kind in manner and a maker of friends. Much of its fate and many events in its life will come about through the influence of its associates. Without necessarily being irresolute, it will largely depend upon some one else.

Born January 25, you have a brave, courageous spirit, and are not a follower of the roads of least resistance. You are always willing to forsake the down grades, if by climbing and perspiring, you can obtain your share of those things only obtained on the heights. On the one hand, you are guided by prudence, foresight, a looking-before-and-after; on the other, ambition, hope and adventure. You are often warned by one "still voice" to foresake your favorite star, but another voice from within urges you on. Ambition with you often outpipes reason.

You have a stimulating nature; enthusiasm such as yours is infectious. You are full of ideas, not all practicable, but they are evidence of a modern and progressive outlook. Your associates soon learn that you are a human force which means something. You have an animal zest in life, and are a very genuine worker. Both your mind and muscle are often stretched beyond the normal, but the triumph, the achievement, are worth all the exhaustion.

You have too warm a nature and are too full of affection not to be an easy mark for Cupid, and it is not probable that you will only be "in love" once. Your fickleness, as regards those of the opposite sex is a weakness on your part which will be eventually overcome.

Successful people born January 25:

William Colgate, soap manufacturer.

James E. Murdock, actor.

Thomas W. Palmer, senator and diplomat.

Robert Burns, poet.

Charles Curtis, Vice President of the United States.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Uses of Adversity.

DEAR Frances McDonald: May I tell you my story? Three years ago I was making the best of a loveless marriage. We had gone together and married and drifted out beyond our depth until we were each going separate ways. Then drink got him. Do not ask me why or what it was that made me turn right around and love him all over again. His own folks disowned him for all the disgrace he caused them with drinking, getting arrested even. He smashed one car and was hurt and nearly killed in another smash-up. All his fault. But I could not see him go to the gutter. All the love I ever felt for him and more than I ever thought I could feel for any one welled up in me.

I told his folks I was going back to him. They thought I was crazy, offered me a home with them. But I found him in New York down and out. Took a little place, went to work, cared for him and brought him back home a new man. He is a perfect husband now and I am perfectly happy. If you can explain it you are smarter than I am. There we were married four years, plenty of time to know each other, you would think. Time enough to get tired of each other. Then the minute trouble came, something in me woke up and sat right up on its hind legs! What? Heaven only knows. But it brought out a new woman and a new man.

No fear of either of us ever getting tired of the other again. We are like two different people. He used to be quite lazy before and now he is just as full of ambition as any other man. In fact, he is a real man now where he never was before. If we could meet current expenses he was satisfied. Now he is all for providing for the future, and thinking ahead. In other words, he is now the man I thought I was getting when I married seven years ago. But he had to become a drunkard and an outcast first.

I am telling this so that others who face what may seem a hopeless situation or condition in their married life may look deeper and perhaps see the way to a love beyond their wildest hopes, instead of seeing black despair. Life does strange things to us mortals. Thanks for the space. FAITHFUL.

Thanks for the story. It recalls one that was told to us one night on a storm-bound Pullman train. The man was gray and the woman long past youth. They had been divorced when he was riding the top of the wave. For ten years they never met. Then she heard quite by accident that he was in a sanitorium, his money gone, his life ebbing. She never hesitated, but closed her comfortable home and went to him. And together they moved into a sunny cottage where she nursed him back to health. They lived there fifteen years, and were on their way south. They had never remarried, feeling that they had never really been anything but married! Which is the truth about most divorced couples. Some couples quarrel and make up. Others quarrel and part. But there is just a grain of truth in that very old-fashioned thought that what God hath joined together, the world finds hard to separate! May you be happy forever and forever. You deserve it.

GARDENS

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

HEAT AND VENTILATION

SO many people who are raising their house plants feel that the hotter the rooms, the better. This is a mistake which if persisted in will lead to failure.

Some plants do require a high temperature, but these plants as a rule are rarely found outside of a greenhouse. Florists knowing that these varieties are unsuited to general culture, grow them in limited number for show purposes.

The temperature of the average house during the day is quite right for the usual house plant such as cinerarias, geraniums, pandanuses, primroses, African violets and ferns. It is the temperature at night that should concern us. The majority of house plants demand a temperature at night of from 50 to 60 degrees. A great many varieties will stand 5 degrees lower. Sometimes so low a temperature will affect the growth, making it a trifle slower but nevertheless sturdy. Even an occasional 40 degrees will rarely injure the hardier varieties. A continued drop of from 65 degrees during the day to 40 degrees at night will cause soft-wooded plants, such as fuchsias or heliotropes, to lose their leaves. But an occasional drop in temperature of from 70 to 40 degrees will not injure them.

You should try at all times to keep the tmeperature of the rooms where you have your plants around 55 degrees. While a certain temperature must be maintained, if you are to be successful with your plants, it is more important that you supply them with a certain degree of moisture and fresh air. House plants can not exist in a state of health in rooms where the air is hot and dry. Hot water, steam or hot-air heating systems all drive the moisture out of the air. The only way you can overcome this difficulty is by keeping water evaporating freely in all rooms where you have growing plants. And here let me explain that the occupants of your house will benefit as much as the plants from the moist atmosphere. Most modern radiators have some sort of device for heating water, attached at a place where it will be least visible.

Frequent spraying of plants, if you are careful to see that the spray is fine, is a good way to supply the necessary moisture. One authority on ventilation tells us that the best method of ventilation changes the air in a room with as little change in temperature as possible. The modern window ventilator makes it possible to supply plants with the necessary fresh air with little effort. These ventilators which supply the fresh air, also prevent drafts which are so harmful to all plants.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

COLD SKIN.

THE temperature of the skin varies very much with that of the outside air. While we may remain uniformly warm in our insides, the same can not be said for our outsides.

Dr. Thomas Lewis has found that on a cold day the exposed skin of the hands is likely to suffer a fall of temperature to within 5 degrees of that of the surrounding air. Is there any wonder that we sometimes freeze a finger or occasionally an entire hand? This represents about the extreme of approximation of the two temperatures. There is not much likelihood that the hand temperatures would fall to 15 below zero when the air temperature was recorded as 20 below. If the hands are covered the drop will not be so great. However, if the covering is a tight one—let us say the person is wearing tight kid gloves—the hand temperatures tend to fall rapidly. Putting the hands in cold water makes them cold ordinarily, but when the temperature of the air is much below freezing the hands are not particularly chilled by being put in water.

In freezing weather ducks remain in water if they can. Their feet freeze if they try to walk on the much colder ground. They even stand on ice rather than on the cold ground, though sometimes they show duck intelligence in following this impulse.

When the ears are exposed to cold air their temperature falls to within 10 degrees of that of the surrounding air. The same limitations apply to this statement that applied to those about the temperatures of the fingers. Again, is it any wonder that the ears so frequently freeze. Short of the frozen stage the reddest ears are the coldest, according to Dr. Lewis. We can see why the red ears should lose heat fastest, but it is not easy to understand why they are coldest.

He makes the same statement as to red cheeks. The toes should be coldest of all. However, we rarely go barefooted in cold weather, whereas, we always expose the nose, brow and cheeks bared, and sometimes our hands are bare even in the coldest weather.

The covered parts of our body are governed by another set of rules. One distinguished authority says that our clothing makes for each of us an individual private climate. This is true if our clothing is impervious to water, heat and air. But it is only true to the extent that it meets this standard.

Dr. Lewis bases his opinions on careful observations made with very delicate heat recording instruments. He supplements this information by studying the capillaries. He is devoting most of his energies to investigation of this little understood and long neglected part of the circulatory system. He holds that conditions of capillary circulation must be taken into consideration before we can understand the symptoms and the course of heart disease.

Thanks, largely, to his studies of the capillaries, we are beginning to know something worth while about cold feet, poor circulation, frostbite, chilblains, Raynaud's disease, Buerger's disease and gangrene.

INFECTED GALL BLADDER.

D. F. G. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of infected gall bladder and gallstones?

2. Can these be overcome without an operation?

3. What diet do you think is proper for one suffering from the above diseases?

REPLY.

1. Among the symptoms common to them are acidity of the stomach, dyspepsia and belching. Pain is more likely to be had in gallstones. So is jaundice.

2. The symptoms of infected gall bladder and of gallstones frequently subside without operation.

3. A person with either should eat carefully. The evening meal should be a light one. The other meals should be moderate as to quantity and simple as to quality. Meat should be eaten sparingly. I do not think it wise to eat eggs, condiments, spices or seasonings, or to drink alcoholic beverages. I am opposed to fat or grease in the diet of gall bladder cases, though most physicians disagree with that.

U. S. WEALTH SURVEY SHOWS 329 BILLIONS

Total National Income During Same Year Is Estimated at 71 Billions.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The total national wealth of the United States in 1930 was $329,700,000,000, the National Industrial Conference Board said today.

The total national income for the same year was $71,000,000,000.

If the board said, these sums could have been distributed equally among all the families in the Nation, each family would have had $10,961 of capital and $2,366 of income.

The total wealth—tangible, physical assets—fell $32,100,000,000, or 8.9 per cent, from 1929; while income—representing the sum of personal income of all individuals in the country, plus business savings—dropped $14,000,000,000, or 16.4 per cent.

Last Estimate in 1922.

The board's estimate of wealth and income is the only regular and comprehensive similar research now being made. The last estimate of the United States census was in 1922, showing national wealth of $320,800,000,000.

The per capita wealth in 1930 was $2,877, as compared with $2,977 in 1929; and the per capita income was $578 in 1930, as compared with $701 in 1929.

Following is a table showing the per capita wealth by States in 1930:

Alabama, $1,155; Arizona, $3,118; Arkansas, $1,430; California, $2,692; Colorado, $3,165; Connecticut, $3,398; Delaware, $2,706; Florida, $1,710; Georgia, $1,377; Idaho, $3,577; Illinois, $2,956; Indiana, $2,786; Iowa, $4,322.

Nevada Percentage Is Higher.

First in the Hearts of His Countrymen

FIRST PRESIDENT DID NOT FEAR OPERATION.

George Washington, during his first year as President of the United States was attacked by a severe illness that required a surgical operation, according to the division of information and publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Great anxiety was felt in New York, the Capital at that time, as the President's case was considered extremely dangerous. He was attended by Dr. Samuel Bard and his son, who was also a physician. The elder Bard, being somewhat doubtful of his nerves, gave the knife to his son, bidding him "cut away—deeper, deeper still; don't be afraid; you see how well he bears it." This story appears in the memoirs of George Washington Parke Custis.

The President was suffering from a malignant carbuncle, which, at one time, seemed to be incurable. He was attended day and night by Dr. Bard, who was considered one of the most skillful physicians and surgeons of that day. The painful tumor was upon his thigh, and was brought on by the excitement and labor which he had undergone since his inauguration.

To the suggestion of his friend, James McHenry, of Baltimore, that Dr. Craik be sent for, Washington replied that it would be a source of gratification to have his old friend with him, but since he could not enjoy that benefit he thought himself "fortunate in having fallen into such good hands" as Dr. Bard's. Dr. McVicker, in his "Life of Bard," alludes to the illness of the President and relates that, on one occasion, being left alone with him, the patient, looking the physician straight in the eye, desired his candid opinion as to the probable termination of his illness, adding with perfect composure, "Don't flatter me with vain hopes; I am not afraid to die, and can bear the worst."

Dr. Bard expressed a hope, but acknowledged his apprehension. Washington replied, with the same coolness, "whether tonight or 20 years hence makes no difference; I know that I am in the care of a good Providence."

Happily, the operation proved successful and the President's recovery removed all cause for alarm. During the President's illness a chain was stretched across the street on which his residence stood, and the sidewalks were laid with straw, to subdue any noise.

ALEXANDRIA PUPILS DISPLAY INTEREST IN ESSAY CONTEST

editor in the course of a day. A number of men and women have written asking if there is any chance for them to submit essays even if they may, not actually compete for the prizes.

The time of the judges and officials of the contest will be so occupied with the thousands of essays submitted that no essays can be received other than those from students up to and including eighteen years of age in public, private and parochial schools.

From one anxious contestant came a query yesterday asking whether the essay must be exactly 500 words long. That is not an essential, but it must contain not more than 500 words. Furthermore, all words in the essay except the title will be counted.

Among the new essays received yesterday were those from Phyllis Moore, 12, 58 Lee highway, Cherrydale, Va., and Maxine Ruffner, 14, Dickerson, Md.

The specimen essay printed today was written by a 14-year-old boy. Its publication does not affect in any way its standing in the contest.

THE LIFE OF WASHINGTON

By

.....

"The Washington family did not always have the name of Washington. The feudal name of the family, De Wessyngton, is found many times in the chronicles of England. In the lapse of time the name became Washington; and in 1546 we find a certain Lawrence Washington living at Sulgrave Manor, Northampton, England. He was a man of property and distinction, being Lord Mayor of Northampton.

No Special Delivery.

"In Washington's time people did not have many of the things which we have now. In those days there were no special delivery, no airplane mail service and no radio. In place of our modern mail service mail was 25 cents, according to the distance it had to be carried. Later the avenue was paved and shaded with Lombardy poplars. At first the paving was done with chips of the marble which was being used for the buildings. These chips cut the shoes in rainy weather and covered them with mortar. In March, 1748, Washington set out on horseback, accompanied by George William Fairfax, a nephew of Lord Fairfax. When at last, having turned northward, they reached the Potomac River, they found it so swollen by heavy rains that it was not fordable.

"Washington married the widow of Custis, who had a daughter and a son. Soon after his marriage Washington went to Williamsburg, Va., and took his seat in the House of Burgesses.

"The life which he had led in the open air had given a ruddy glow to his cheeks and vigor to his movements, and thought and resolution were written upon his brow.

Was Active Mason.

"Besides his own plantation of Mount Vernon, he had in charge the large landed estates of his wife and her two children. Washington was an active member of the Masonic order and belonged to the lodge at Alexandria.

"He died on December 14, 1799, in the sixty-eighth year of his life. When Mrs. Washington learned from her husband's will that he desired the emancipation of his Negroes she at once relinquished her dower right in them and set them free. She also requested that the vault in which her husband's remains had been placed should not be sealed. Said she, 'It will have to be opened soon.'

"I think George Washington led a good life and served his country well."

Every one can echo the conclusion of this young essayist.

News of the eight bronze plaques of George Washington to be placed in the classroom from which come the eight first and second prize winners in The Post Washington Essay Contest, in which $1,000 in cash prizes will be distributed, has greatly stimulated the interest of schools in the contest. These plaques will bear a plate furnished by The Washington Post, giving the name of the student making possible the winning of the trophy for the classroom and the plaques are an additional incentive for winning a major prize for the honor of one's school as well as the individual cash prize.

Booklets Win Favor.

The booklets distributed by The Washington Post free of charge to the contestants through the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission are winning much favor. A contestant wishing a copy of this booklet should use the blank printed in today's Washington Post for that purpose. Do not become impatient if the booklet does not arrive the day after you submit this request. The George Washington Bicentennial Commission is serving the whole country admirably with information on George Washington, and its mail naturally is very heavy.

Those requesting Washington booklets yesterday included:

800 NEW MEMBERS JOIN REPEAL MOVE

Applications of Women Still Arriving for Part in Prohibition Reform.

More than 800 new members were enrolled in the District of Columbia Council of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform as the result of the intensive four and a half day drive which closed Saturday night at the organization's temporary headquarters, 709 Fourteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Frederick Solger, chairman of the membership committee, reports that membership cards are pouring in, indicating the widespread interest created by the membership campaign.

On Tuesday, February 16, the council plans to hold a benefit bridge party in the Carlton Hotel ballroom. Miss Margaret Frazer, chairman of the entertainment committee, is arranging for this event, which will be held in the afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Archibald Davis, of 2023 Hillyer place, is handling the sale of tickets, which will be $1.25 each, or $5 for a table. This bridge is the first of a series of similar entertainments being planned by the group for the purpose of raising funds to carry on the organization's work. A series of spring luncheons also is on the program, details of which will be announced later.

Members of the council are now working on a legislative program to ascertain the views of members of Congress on the resubmission of the eighteenth amendment at State conventions in the interest of ultimate repeal. In February, members of the District executive committee will go to Charleston, S. C., to attend a national regional executive meeting at which they will report upon activities of the local group. Among those expected to make the trip are Mrs. William R. Mason, Mrs. James F. Mitchell, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Mrs. Margaret Frazer, Mrs. Arthur O'Brien and Mrs. Lee Warren. Miss Bell Gurnee, chairman of the District council, probably will not attend, as she expects to be in Europe at the time of the regional gathering.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SUSCEPTIBLE feminine hearts may reasonably be expected to be set all a-twitter by the announcement that James Dunn—"Jimmie" to most of you, no doubt—the genial lad who has become a screen star of the first rank in a year's time and through the medium of only three pictures, will make a week of personal appearances on the stage of the Fox Theater in this city, beginning next Friday, January 29.

It will, of course, be recalled that Jimmie Dunn created no less than a sensation by the clean-cut distinctiveness of his work opposite Sally Eilers in "Bad Girl." This was followed in due course by another successful exploitation of the same clever team in the revival in articulate form of "Over the Hill," and, more recently, in "Dance Team."

James Dunn has been in the East only a few weeks, ostensibly on vacation. The demand of an insistent public, however, has rather nullified the vacation idea, and Jimmie, accordingly, has let himself in for a series of stage bookings that have proved no less notable than his screen appearances in the matter of mass approval. For three weeks he played in New York, and this week is in Philadelphia.

If this column's Tuesday plans can be made to stick, there will be more concerning Jimmie in this space prior to his arrival on Friday.

Incidentally, with Les Stevens and The Diplomats on their way to Florida well in advance of Mr. Dunn's arrival, Phil Lampkin, on Friday, will take up the duties of master of ceremonies and guest conductor at the Fox for the week of Mr. Dunn's personal appearances.

This is no new assignment for Mr. Lampkin, who has proved his versatility, musicianship and the audience appeal of an agreeable personality in many similar engagements throughout the Middle West and the East.

Nor, while we are on the topic, is Mr. Lampkin the only guest conductor who might be given notice by Washington theatergoers.

At RKO-Keith's Theater last Friday, the conductor's stand was occupied by a newcomer who had arrived by plane from Youngstown, Ohio, only that morning, just barely in time for rehearsal of the acts composing this week's three-star vaudeville bill. As you probably have become apprised by this time, his name is Peter Laurini, who takes over the RKO-Keith orchestra for a four-week period of guest conducting, pending appointment of a permanent successor of Mack Page—the well-known, to Washington, Max Pugatsky—who has been transferred back to the RKO-Fordham Theater in New York.

It falls to Mr. Laurini's lot, from time to time, to step in, as General Musical Director Schwartzwald's star pinch-hitter, to whip new musical organizations into what the profession terms real "working orchestras." This is no light task. Particularly in a vaudeville theater it is no cinch.

The instrumentation of the RKO-Keith band here has been swell from the outset—well-balanced, mellow and rich—but its work with the acts on the stage has been pretty terrible. Cues have been fumbled, falls and kicks consistently missed, tempos garbled and things pretty generally made a mess of from the viewpoint of the performer.

I shall never forget the handicap placed upon him by the orchestra at Clyde Cooke's first performance a few weeks ago. It was enough to make a showman burst into tears.

It took this Peter Laurini, who is also by way of being a bit of a solo violinist, no longer than one performance to overcome many of these obstacles to a good stage performance. He found it necessary to do a good deal of foot-stamping and shouting aloud at his men, but, more important, he got them going and gave the acts some real support. More steam to him, and a hearty welcome to town, too, by the way.

A line from Tom Olsen, formerly director of advertising and publicity at the Fox, relayed through Miss Irene Weber, of the current Fox publicity department, presided over by Lou Brown, reminding that it was just a year ago last Thursday that he arrived in Seattle, Wash., his home town, to assume new duties. Tom, by his own confession, is blistering under a hot wheel to get back here.

And a note from Mike Cullen, formerly major domo of the Loew interests in the Capital, expressing the conviction that despite Colby Harriman's relinquishment of the local managing directorship, he (Mike) will be a resident of Pittsburgh for a long time to come. A great many of his Washington friends will be sorry, but that's what comes of making good in a tough spot!

Apparently Vincent Youmans, both composer and producer of the musicalized version of Jane Cowl's former stage success, "Smilin' Through," seen last week at the National, has gone and done it again!

When the operetta opened in Pittsburgh two weeks ago, it was still called "Smiling Through"—which only missed the original by an apostrophe and a lower case "g"—but was known, when it reached Washington a week later, as "Love Is All." Yesterday's New York papers, I note, announce its New York opening for Thursday night of this week, at the Manhattan Theater, under the title of "Through the Years."

There are still several days in which Mr. Youmans can make up his mind what the name of his piece really is.

When Ann Harding in "Prestige," in which she is supported by Melvyn Douglas, last seen here with Gloria Swanson in "Tonight or Never," opens at RKO-Keith's next Saturday, five de luxe performances will be presented, the doors opening one hour in advance of the usual time. Daphne Pollard, the split-pint British comedienne, will headline the vaudeville portion of the program.

When the third anniversary of the establishment of Radio-Keith-Orpheum's "Theater of the Air" is celebrated this week, Bernice Claire, one of the headliners of their Washington vaudeville bill this week, will be one of the featured artistes. She will take the air Friday night from one of the local stations.

I had hoped to have a long column this morning, but as midnight approaches, I feel one of my sinking spells coming on—all the way from the fifth floor to the first, to be honest about it, then out to Gallatin street and that cold roast and cold baked potato, some of the roquefort cheese paste and a cold bottle of whatever it is on the ice, with two or three large cartons of popcorn—the 25 cent size, please—and a few black twig apples for dessert! Then if there are the makings of a Welsh rarebit——

Quite a bit cooler, don't you think?

THE THEATER YESTERDAY

BELASCO

"THE STUDENT PRINCE IN HEIDELBERG." Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert present, in a prologue and four acts, an operetta by Sigmund Romberg, with book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly, and staged by Edward Scanlon. Reviewed Sunday night by W. A. Whitney.

THE CAST

Von Mark	Edwin Forsberg
Dr. Engel	Hollis Daveny
Prince Carl Franz	Allan Prior
Gretchen	Marion Weeks
Toni	Nathaniel Sack
Detlef	Charles Chesney
Lucas	Tom Ahern
Von Asterberg	Robert Horn
Kathie	Gertrude Lang
Lutz	George Hassell
Hubert	Gus Alexander
Grand Duchess Anatasia	Belle Sylvia
Princess Margaret	Margaret Cantrell

Royalty received a rousing welcome last evening over on Lafayette Square when Washington took into its heart its old friend, His Serene Highness, Karl Franz, "The Student Prince." How hearty that reception was! For Karl Franz never arrived with a more scintillant entourage than that in this, his third (at least) visit to the Nation's Capital.

The lilting melodies of Sigmund Romberg and the engaging narrative of Dorothy Donnelly, coupled with a cast headed by Allan Prior, George Hassell and Gertrude Lang, all combine in making this recurrence of "The Student Prince" highly memorable.

The story of Prince Karl Franz, heir apparent to the throne of Karlsberg, and his short but eventful career at the University of Heidelberg, together with his unfortunate infatuation for Kathie and his subsequent marrige with the Princess Margaret, are too well-known to require further elaboration. Though widely known to intimate detail, this Romberg operetta still sparkles with the brilliance of newness and each added performance only adds to the thrill of a beautifully constructed drama.

In the title role is Allan Prior, who gives the part the touch of realism through his excellent work both in his several songs and in the reading of his lines. Gertrude Lang, as Kathie, is everything that the charming waitress ought to be. The fortunate Princess Margaret is played by Margaret Cantrell in a delightful manner. George Hassell, as the prince's self-important Mr. Lutz, and Gus Alexander, as his half-pint personal attendant, Hubert, ably furnished the sparkling comedy of the piece.

As with other presentations of the operetta, the part of Dr. Engel, the prince's tutor, is the outstanding minor role, this time in the capable hands of Hollis Daveny, a kind, lovable, philosophical old soul. Detlef, the leader of the Saxon corps, is well played by Charles Chesney.

Even with so brilliant a cast as this, it is the exquisite Romberg score that makes "The Student Prince" the delight that it is. Who can listen to the reminiscent "Golden Days," the stirring "Drinking Song," the plaintive love theme, of "Deep in My Heart, Dear," or the hauntingly beautiful "Serenade," without a feeling of joy and happiness—music that takes its place with the classics of operetta.

There can be little question that last night's presentation marked the high spot in the Washington performances of this work, its acting, singing, and mounting considerably more than adequately meeting the most exacting demands of the discriminating theatergoer. True, the Romberg music by itself might easily carry a performance of "The Student Prince," but here the masterpiece is studded with brilliant performances that add new glory to one of the theater's finest offerings.

NATIONAL

"FRANCE AND THE COLONIAL EXPOSITION." First of a series of five Sunday afternoon Travel Talks, to be delivered by E. M. Newman. Illustrated by still and motion picture photography. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by W. H. Wright.

E. M. Newman, globe-trotter extraordinary and well-known travel lecturer, opened his twenty-third season in Washington at the National yesterday afternoon with a most interesting subject, "France and the Colonial Exposition."

By means of beautifully colored slides and timely motion pictures the large audience was taken across the Atlantic, through many picturesque French villages and resorts to the world capital of gayety, that always interesting city, Paris, where the mammoth Colonial Exposition was held in the summer of 1931. Mr. Newman spent many months gathering the material and pictures for this lecture, which covers thoroughly the time of the exposition from the opening until almost the closing night.

Beginning at New York, our boat slips slowly down the harbor and we find time passing swiftly as life aboard ship and the arrival at Havre brings us to an old world made new by means of all the well-chosen scenes presented as only Mr. Newman can present them. En route to Paris we catch a glimpse of Honfleur, picturesque Caudebec and Deauville, that mecca of the smart set, but at this time totally deserted. We continue to Chartres and on to Fontainbleau, where interior and exterior views of the famous chateau prove interesting. At Versailles the restored fountains are fitting subject for both day and night photography, the night views being very unusual.

As we enter the exposition grounds we catch a glimpse of a small part of the large crowds that last year reached the enormous total of 33,000,000 paid admissions. At times, on Sundays and holidays, over 150,000 people would be in attendance at the same time. Many forms of transportation around the grounds are furnished, miniature trains, electric buses, private taxicabs, rolling chairs or camel riding with the Fuzzy Wuzzys.

Choosing a train, we make a survey of the grounds and find that every colony is represented by a building constructed in the style of those in the colony itself. Many very pretentious structures, surrounded by beautiful grounds, fountains and statuary groups, unite to form a great exposition.

The gem of the exposition, the Angkor Vat, a faithful reproduction of that famous old ruin in the jungles of Siam, was without doubt the most interesting building with the exception of the United States exhibit. The Temple of Angkor, with all the intricate carvings, columns and doorways, towered above everything else in its immensity although it was somewhat smaller than the original. Brilliantly lighted at night the ever changing colors made it a never-to-be-forgotten sight.

Every American has a right to be proud of the United States exhibit. An exact full-size reproduction of Mount Vernon and the immediate out-buildings, completely furnished, surrounded by Martha Washington's garden, was erected at the exposition in Paris. So exact was the reproduction of this famous shrine that one could readily believe himself on the banks of the Potomac at George Washington's home.

FIRM BOND MARKET SEEN, DESPITE DROP

Financial News Is Regarded as Favorable to Rise for Listed Loans.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Although bond prices, under varying influences, closed the past week fractionally lower, the firm undertone of the market gave encouragement to those investment circles which are predicting further improvement for listed loans.

The average for 60 corporate bonds on January 18 was 76.3. Last Saturday this average had declined only 0.2 of a point to 76.1.

During the week there were conflicting news developments. The oversubscription of New York City's $100,000,000 note issue and the quick passage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation measure at Washington were viewed as constructive. At the same time, delay of the Chicago railway wage reduction conference in reaching an agreement acted as a deterrent to transportation mortgages.

Railroad liens, however, held their own amid some tendency to relieve them of most of their previous gains. For the most part they gave up fractions only. It was pointed out by dealers that bonds of some of the roads were up from 10 to 40 points above their December lows. A few of the heavier advances were whittled down but the majority of the lower-priced loans clung tenaciously to the greater part of their higher quotations.

Industrials and utilities did practically nothing during the week. United States Government bonds sagged at first but came back to a relative firmness. Foreign obligations, led by the Germans, weakened somewhat. South Americans, however, led by the Argentines and Uruguayans, exhibited strength. Canadian bonds firmed.

Polluted Water Stirs Winchester

Citizens Are Forced to Use Auxiliary Supply at Street Hydrants.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Contamination of the city's main water source by seepage through an ash dump, today forced citizens to quench their thirst from a small auxiliary supply. Citizens in long lines stood at several street hydrants supplied by an old gravity system. They waited for their turn and then filled buckets, bottles and jars with water.

Officials who hurried samples to the State chemist at Richmond learned the water although nauseating was not laden with germs.

They claimed the strange taste was due to a firemen's efforts in extinguishing a pile of blazing tar barrels on the city dump. The water, thrown on the flames, seeped into Rouss Spring, the source of the main water supply.

One Killed, One Injured In Virginia Auto Crash

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Hawthorne Vawter, of Louisa, Va., was fatally injured in an automobile accident near here today. Robert Cunningham, also of Louisa, was hurt.

Cunningham said the accident resulted from a faulty steering gear, which caused the car to leave the highway and overturn. Vawter, the son of Traffic Officer C. R. Vawter, died an hour after being admitted to a local hospital.

Richmond Drys Launch Big Counter-Offensive

Richmond, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Richmond prohibition leaders today announced they had planned a counter-offensive to the movement here for amendment or repeal of the dry law. Headquarters have been established and the cooperation of local ministers is being enlisted.

Six nationally known dry leaders have accepted invitations to address meetings here February 10 and 11, leaders of the local organization said.

Massachusetts Tech's Head to Talk at U. of V.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will deliver the 1932 public address sponsored by the Graduate Scientific Club of the University of Virginia, it was announced today following a meeting of that organization.

The lecture will be delivered at the university on April 23.

DON'T LEAVE US PLEASE give us a CHANCE!

We're helpless without YOU!

Have you had some bad breaks in the past two years, fellow Washingtonian? Business not so good? Income below normal? Or, perhaps, jobs hard to find?

The children cared for by the Community Chest are sorry. They know what hard luck is, too. They aren't complaining about it . . . perhaps their troubles aren't important after all.

Some of them were orphaned when they were very little. Some of them were unwanted babies . . . abandoned. Some were taken away from tuberculous parents, and need special feeding and care. Others have bodies broken by automobiles, or wasted by sickness.

They aren't asking much. They don't need a stock market boom or a wave of business prosperity to keep them happy. All they require is a continuance of the care that will give them a fair start in life. But we don't know what would become of them if the hospitals and clinics and homes maintained by the Community Chest were forced to close . . . or if medical and nursing care were suddenly withdrawn.

There are thousands of little children . . . helpless without you. Can't you hear them say, "Don't leave us. You'll "put it over," won't you?

JANUARY 25, 1907.

Prominent Republicans are almost reconciled to the fact that President Roosevelt will not run for office next year following Representative Longworth's statement published yesterday in The Post.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued a statement scoring the leading railroads of the country for participating in the ownership of several of the leading coal companies of the country.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NOW FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL "HOLDOUTS!"

SENATOR BORAH HAS INTRODUCED A BILL REDUCING THE SALARIES OF SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES. PREPARE TO SEE THE FOLLOWING ITEM ANY DAY NOW:

Washington.—Congressman Luther B. Plute is the first official holdout of the season here. President Hoover, who had sent Plute his contract calling for a 10 per cent pay cut as voted some months ago, admitted this morning that it had been returned by the congressman with the notation, "can't play for any such money."

"Where do they get off with that stuff?" Congressman Plute was reported as demanding at his home in Sauk Center.

"I had one of my best years in 1931. I was socking out the old apple sauce as never before and led the House in gassing averages."

* * * *

NEVERTHELESS, the idea of cutting salaries of senators and representatives made a big hit with the public today, many people expressing surprise that the Government really paid them for their services. "If these congressmen have been taking money from Uncle Sam right along for what they have been doing for the country, they can be sued by the Government!" declared one citizen.

* * * *

ELMER TWITCHELL FEELS THAT MEMBERS OF CONGRESS SHOULD SERVE FOR THE PUBLICITY INVOLVED AND FOR THE EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITIES TO BECOME RADIO GUEST STARS.

MR. TWITCHELL contributes the further suggestion that if the Government needs money it should announce a table of rates for Washington tourists. He would start off with a charge of $1 for shaking the President's hand, and 50 cents for shaking the Vice President's hand. Other proposed charges are:

For having Senator Borah pointed out	75 cents.
For having Representative Garner pointed out	70 cents.
For having Representative La Guardia pointed out	60 cents.
For shaking hands with Senator "Bob" Wagner	80 cents.
For shaking hands with Senator Smoot	30 cents.
For a short look at Simeon Fess	5 cents.
For a long look at same	7 cents.

It's an idea, boys

CAN YOU REMEMBER

Away back when you didn't believe the movie picture house barker when he said, "Plenty of good seats inside without waiting"

"We have found out," says former President Coolidge, "that we were not so big as we thought we were. We were riding too high." Maybe it was the cowboy hat and pony influence.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes will be head man of the new Emergency Reconstruction Corporation. It now becomes a question whether the borrowers will feel any chillier applying for aid than if they stayed with the frozen assets.

MONDAY JANUARY 25, 1932 SPORTS

GULDAHL'S 285 CARD WINS IN $2,500 ARIZONA OPEN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

AROUND THE CIRCUIT.

IRVING HADLEY, late of the Nats, who figured in the trade with the White Sox for Carl Reybolds, was a visitor at Griffith Stadium last week in his new automobile, long as a block, with Mrs. Hadley and Fluffy and Muffy in his entourage.

Hadley is a native of Lynn, Mass., and was en route to Florida for a bit of preseason rusticating, and bore no signs of the depression. Fluffy and Muffy, Pekingese twins, were very cute in the coats of many colors, but sans clothing they would look very well on the end of a couple of long-handled dust mops.

President Griffith refuses to discuss the salary cut of Fred Marberry, who expresses himself as dissatisfied with his 1932 contract. Marberry won 16 games last year, 12 of them in succession, while losing only four, and now he wants to know what a guy has to do to get a raise in this league.

The Brooklyn club has received the signed contract of Al Cohen, outfielder, which is not important news, although Cohen has a claim to fame. Before he was released by the Dodgers early last year, Cohen batted both third and ninth in the Brooklyn batting order against Boston on April 16 and got away with a single on each occasion. The Braves failed to note the faux pas at the time, but it was called to their attention the next day.

The mistake of the Giants' business office in 1925 is being brought home to McGraw by Brooklyn's purchase of Hack Wilson. John McGraw lost title to Wilson six years ago when he was sent to Toledo under option and was drafted at the end of the season by the Cubs when the Giants failed to recall him, due to a clerical error in the front office.

Carey Selph, the White Sox promising second baseman, has refused to sign his 1932 contract, although he is satisfied with the terms. Selph doesn't care to leave his business connections in Houston, even to play major league baseball. Here is a poignant case of self-sufficiency.

Joe Boley's presence in the Cleveland infield gives the Indians the second least talkative player in the big leagues. Ossie Bluege is the first. When Bluege emits a sound, the effect usually is to unsteady the Washington pitcher, so great is the surprise.

Pepper Martin has signed a Cardinal contract for 1932 and says he is still wearing the same size hat, or, as Knute Rockne used to say in his after dinner addresses, there is no elephantiastis of the cranium. But it's the size of his feet and his batting averages that National League pitchers are most concerned about. He stole everything but Mickey Cochrane's mask last October.

The economy program in the major leagues is calculated to save the sixteen clubs more than $500,000 in salaries. To the general revision downward of player contracts is added the saving of two full salaries by each club as a result of cutting down the player list from 25 to 23.

"Rags" Ragland, drafted by the Nats from Chattanooga, has one thing in common with Pepper Martin. Both rode the rods into organized baseball to save expense money. Ragland's fast ball is expected to earn him a relief pitching role with the Nats this season.

Shano Collins predicts a first-division berth for his Red Sox in 1932, and this qualifies as baseball's greatest optimist.

A new deal in the Athletics' infield is the objective of Oscar Roettger, late of St. Paul, who is a brother of Wally Roettger, outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds. Young Roettger played first base in the American Association with such eclat that Connie Mack may be forced to move Jimmy Foxx over to Jimmy Dykes' place at third base to make room for Roettger at first. Roettger will be making his sixth trip back to the majors, having previously been found wanting by the Dodgers and the Yankees.

Maurice Archdeacon, once the fast man in the big leagues when he was with the Braves and later with Washington, has displayed the same speed in slipping from the baseball select. He is now a free agent and looking for a job with the Omaha Club.

Denny Southern, former Washington sandlotter, was the leading base stealer of the International League despite playing only 101 games with Baltimore. Southern is now with Brooklyn. Washington fans remember him best for his 90-yard run with an intercepted forward pass at Griffith Stadium in 1924 when he played for the Knickerbockers against the Mohawk Club.

St. John's Club Five Beats Marine, 31-24

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Jan. 24.—The St. John's Club quintet, of Baltimore, Md., sprang an upset here today, winning a 31-24 victory over the Marines in a well-played game. The Marines played without the services of Sergt. Locke, high scoring center, who was ejected from the fray in the first half on fouls. After trailing for three quarters, the Baltimoreans knotted the count at 22-22 on a pot shot by Toy at the start of the final period. From then on St. John's was never headed.

G. W. Tossers Face Test Tonight

Giants From DePaul, of Chicago, Are to Be Entertained.

Colonials Must Travel at Full Speed to Retain Win Streak.

By JACK ESPEY.

BEHEMOTHS of basket ball clash tonight on the court of George Washington University when the unbeaten G. W. Colonials engage the Blue Demons from De Paul University of Chicago in a game which is expected to seriously test the home club. Action will commence at 8 o'clock.

For once, George Washington will meet its equal in height, for the Chicago tossers, with only one exception, surpass the six foot level. Among Coach Jim Kelly's array are a pair of giants who stand 6-feet-4, Ellsworth Weston and Tiger Barskis, both of whom performed to advantage as De Paul trounced Catholic U. last Saturday night.

Parrack, Hertzler to Find Going Rougher.

Wick Parrack and Ralph Hertzler, Colonial players who also reach the towering height mentioned, should not find the business of caging close shots so easy as heretofore when they rung the bell many times by simply reaching over the heads of their adversaries. And in the matter of retrieving the ball from the opponents' backboard, they should again encounter plenty of opposition.

De Paul has won six of its seven games to date, including among its victims Southern California, in addition to Catholic. Its only loss was inflicted by Carleton College. The Chicago outfit employs the pro style of offense which differs from G. W.'s in that it moves the ball through the medium of short passes. The Colonials depend greatly upon their speed and stamina, plus the percentage in a free-shooting style.

Maryland University, which appears to have struck its stride recently, winning its last five games following two setbacks at the beginning of the campaign, returns to action tomorrow night on its own court at Ritchie Coliseum, with V. M. I. providing the opposition.

White, of C. U., Tops D. C. College Scorers.

Edgar White, Catholic University guard, is leading the individual scoring race among Capital collegians. He sports a total of 87 points for 12 games. Parrack, of G. W., who held first place a week ago, is trailing White by 9 points, while Burgess, of G. W., and Jensen, of Gallaudet, are tied for third place, each with a total of 68 points. Sheary, of Catholic, is next in line with 65, followed by Carolan, of Georgetown, with 64.

Oscar Sells, angular center, of the American University Team that defeated Navy last Saturday for its seventh successive victory, tops his club in scoring with 60 points.

THREE TITLE BOUTS THIS WEEK

Brouillard, Battalino to Put Crowns at Stake.

At Chicago, Lou Brouillard, of Worcester, Mass., will defend his welterweight championship against a former holder of the title, Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles. They will fight ten rounds on Thursday night at the Chicago Stadium.

At Cincinnati, Bat Battalino, still recognized as featherweight champion by the National Boxing Association depsite his failure to make the class limit for a recent bout with Lew Feldman at New York, clashes with Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, on Wednesday in a match billed as for the title.

Milwaukee furnishes the third title match of the week tomorrow night when Gorilla Jones, Akron, Ohio, Negro, battles Oddone Piaza, of Italy, in a ten-rounder for N. B. A. recognition as middleweight champion.

At New York, Madison Square Garden's regular Friday night show brings together two young heavyweights, King Levinsky, of Chicago, and Max Baer, of Oakland, Calif.

Nevers All-Stars Win Football Game

Carideo's Team Beaten by 26-14 as 40,000 See Charity Battle.

San Francisco, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Ernie Nevers carried too much power for Frank Carideo's All Stars, and the former Stanford full back's National Collegians crushed their way to a 26-to-14 victory in the Knights of Columbus charity football game here today before 40,000 spectators.

Behind a strong line that functioned with precision, Nevers, aided by Rose and Belden, battered the Carideo line for four touchdowns on sustained marches of 60, 14, 45 and 20 yards.

Two touchdowns, one converted, were registered in the first quarter, the initial score coming in the first four minutes. Another touchdown and a conversion came in the third quarter and a final touchdown was scored in the fourth period. Nevers made every point for his team.

The first Carideo score was in the second quarter, when Frankian, end, scooped up a blocked kick from Nevers' toe and scampered 31 yards for the score. Carideo converted.

In the last minutes of play Boyle scored on a long forward pass and Fletcher converted.

Frosh Boxers Eligible In College Title Event

Special to The Washington Post.

State College, Pa., Jan. 24.—Freshmen may represent their respective colleges in the National Collegiate Boxing Association tournament to be held here April 8 and 9, Hugo Bezdek, chairman of the tournament committee, announced today after a conference with members of the general committee. Because of the fact that the tournament also is a tryout for college men to enter the final Olympic team eliminations in July, it was decided to permit freshmen to compete provided they meet eligibility requirements laid down by their respective institutions and the national association.

DIXIE BOXER IS CROWD PLEASER

Meets Burns Tomorrow in Show at Alexandria.

CHARLIE "STUMPY" JACOBS, who makes his bow to Capital and Alexandria fight fans tomorrow night in one of the four eight-rounders on the Day Nursery card, comes here labeled a real crowd pleaser. Down in Dixieland they call Stumpy "a second Battling Nelson." Jacobs hails from Hopewell, Va., but has been doing most of his fighting around Norfolk and Newport News.

Jacobs started as a featherweight and gained a decision over Frankie De Angelo, among others. Later he began battling in the 135-pound class. He has met and defeated the best of the Southern crop of lightweights.

Tomorrow night Jacobs will engage Bobby Burns, of Baltimore, who earned the favor of local fans two weeks ago when he outpointed the hard-hitting Tommy Bashara, of Norfolk, who also is on the card, matched against Charlie Gomer, of Baltimore.

Came Back After Knockout.

Stumpy's record shows only two knockouts against him, both of the technical variety. He was stopped in 1930 by Phil Raymond, when he sustained a bad cut on the ear in the seventh round, and in 1931 was forced to quit in the fifth round when Jack Portney opened a deep wound over his eye. But the Portney misfortune did not deter him, however, for less than a week later he battled Billy Burkett, clever junior welter, to a standstill before a couple of thousand fans in Roanoke.

Adopting many of the ring tactics of Battling Nelson, Stumpy comes out of his corner with both hands working like pistons. He shoots a fast right cross to the head and then gets inside and starts pumping away at the body. He is a clever infighter, has plenty of power behind his punches and is agile. He works well off the ropes.

The order of the bouts tomorrow night has yet to be determined. In addition to the Jacobs-Burns and Bashara-Gomer clashes, Billy Strickler, local light-heavy, will engage Bob Lawson, of Newport News, and Nick Antonelli, Washington lightweight, will oppose Kid Cosden, of Cordova, Md. Much interest is felt in the last two mentioned scuffles. Bingo Brodie, local middleweight, will meet Young Perry, formerly of Holyoke, Mass., in a curtain-raiser of four rounds.

Bill Garland, Roanoke Court Ace, Is Banned

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Bill Garland, Roanoke College basket ball ace and leading scorer in the Virginia Conference, has been found ineligible to compete against Southern Conference teams.

Although Garland played with Roanoke College against Virginia Military Institute in a game won by the Maroons, he was barred from playing against Virginia Polytechnic Institute last week when inquiry by the Tech authorities brought out that he was not eligible.

BARBERS ENTER TOURNEY.

The Clifton Barbers, who recently tied the Delaware-Hudson five in an extra period game, will enter the 145-pound class of the District A. A. U. tournament. The Barbers, formerly the Colonials, want games in their class. Call Manager Louis Miller at Columbia 2348.

Wilson Deal Pleasing to Dodgers

Hack, With Herman and O'Doul, Assures Club Slugging.

Short Right Field to Help Him, Is Belief; Vance Weakens.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 (U.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers intend to use Hack Wilson, slugging centerfielders, as the keystone of their rebuilt 1932 pennant-chasing organization.

When the Dodgers obtained Hack from the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, they fulfilled a seven-year-old wish, and although the Flatbush organization is undestood to have paid an extremely high price for last season's stormy petrel of the National League, Brooklyn expects to get more than its money's worth out of Wilson before this season is over.

Brooklyn is understood to have paid the Cardinals $40,000 cash, in addition to releasing Outfielder Bob Parham to St. Louis. Parham was a recruit outfielder whom the Dodgers had out at option to their Hartford Farm Club, last year.

With Hack in center field, Babe Herman in right field and Lefty O'Doul in left field, the Dodgers will have one of the hardest hitting outfields in the major leagues. Wilson is expected to prove a stimulus to the Babe's hitting, because Herman does his best work when faced with strong competition from a teammate.

Eye Trouble Partly Cause.

Wilson's batting slump last season with the Chicago Cubs was due in part to eye trouble. Even now he is wearing dark glasses at his home in Martinsburg, W. Va., but Max Carey, manager of the Robins, was assured that Hack's eyes would be in good condition for spring training, when Max recently visited Hack at his home.

Brooklyn officials believe the right field fence at Ebbets Field was made for Wilson's home runs. Hack is a right-handed batter, but, different from most right-handers, he does not pull his ball over into left field when he hits it. Instead, he pushes it out into right field. In 1930, when Hack reached the top flight of his career with an average of .356 and with the distinction of having led both major teams in home runs, he made most of his 56 circuit clouts by way of right field.

The Dodgers also will have a strong infield. Del Bissonette is slated for first base; Neal Finn, for second; Gordon Slade, at short; Walter Gilbert, for third, and Al Lopez and Ernest Lombardi, behind the plate.

Vance to Take Cut.

Dazzy Vance, fast right-handed pitcher, is virtually certain to sign his contract, officials of the club indicated today. He probably will receive $20,000, a $3,000 reduction from last year's salary. The Dodgers also will depend on four young pitchers, most of whom played part of last season with Hartford. They are Phil Gallivan, Lawrence Mattingly, W. Austin Moore and Van L. Mungo. John Picus Quinn, the veteran spitball hurler, has signed his contract, and will be used as a relief man.

Although St. Louis is credited with making a splendid business deal in getting $40,000 cash and a player for Wilson, Brooklyn officials feel confident that they will get a return early in the season. They point out that the natives of Flatbush will flock to Ebbets Field to see whether Hack is making a comeback. Brooklyn feels that the club lost little in sending Parham to St. Louis, because he is an undependable fielder, despite the fact he is a fair hitter.

Wilson is expected to leave Martinsburg about February 20 to begin spring training with the Robins at Clearwater, Fla.

17 CONTESTS FOR SCHOOL FIVES

Tech Favored in 2d Business Contest Tomorrow.

WITH the premise of the early return of Artie Willison, its captain and guard, Tech faces the second half of the high school series, opening tomorrow, with a notably bright outlook. Its first test will be against Business, which scored a stunning upset to down the Manual Trainers in the first game of the year.

The return of Willison, expected this week, will give Tech its first real substitute of the year. It has been playing with a skeleton team composed of Russell and Wheeler, forwards; Reed, center, and Thomas and Reichardt, guards, and any substitution found necessary has materially weakened the caliber of the team.

Seventeen games are carded by the schoolboys this week, dominated by the high school series, whose lagging attendance records are expected to perk up now that the series has tightened and ties mark first and second places. Western will be gunning for its first series win Tuesday, against Central, but seems doomed once more to bite the resin.

The week's leading prep school game concerns St. John's and Georgetown Prep, to be played at Garrett Park Friday.

Although Western has been unable to win a game in the first half of the series, Anthony Latino tops the scorers with 16 field goals and 11 fouls for a total of 43 points. He is pressed by Billy Burke, Central star, who has 41 points, and Carroll Shore, Business' new ace, who has 39. Waverly Wheeler is leading Tech with 33, while Kane tops Eastern's players with 28.

Detroit Youth Ends Play With 68

Perelli's 290 Second; Cooper Third After Taking the Lead.

Guldahl Gains $600; Sarazen Finishes in Fifth Place.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 24 (A.P.).—Ralph Guldahl, tall, youthful professional from Detroit, shot a subpar round of 68 on the final 18 holes to win $300 first place money in the $2,500 Arizona open golf tournament here today.

Guldahl's total for the 72 holes of medal play was 285, five strokes to the good. It included a brilliant 67 on the first day, 74 yesterday and rounds of 76 and 68 in the 36-hole finals today.

John Perelli, Chicago, came from behind to finish second by shooting rounds of 74 and 71 for a total of 290.

"Light Horse" Harry Cooper, Chicago, was one stroke behind in third place with 291. Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, Ohio, pro, followed with 292. Gene Sarazen, New York, former national open champion, was fifth with 293. Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., finished in sixth place with 294.

Quartet in Tie At 296.

Two strokes behind, with 296, came Charles Guest, Detroit; Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles; Tony Manero, Elmhurst, N. Y., and Paul Runyan, New York.

Milton Coggins, of Phoenix, Arizona amateur champion, topped the amateurs with a 72-hole total of 304.

Trailing Cooper and Hambrick by one stroke when the field completed the first eighteen holes today, Guldahl staged a sensational comeback on the first nine of the final eighteen, scoring 4 birdies. A 4 on the par 3 eighth still left him three under par.

The blistering pace was too much for Cooper, Hambrick and the others and the gallery, realizing that no one was likely to overtake the Detroit youngster, deserted the better town stars to follow him around the final nine holes.

Guldahl shot the first three holes of the home nine in par figures but dropped a stroke on the par 3 thirteenth when his tee shot found a yawning trap at the side of the green. His recovery shot was past the pin and he took two putts for a 4.

Gets Birdie on Seventeenth Hole.

He made up for that slip by getting a birdie on the par 4 seventeenth. With the gallery of 1,000 spectators packed solidly around the home green, he narrowly missed a birdie four when his putt rolled to a stop six inches from the cup.

Perelli's strong comeback was worth $400. Cooper won $250 and Hambrick, $100.

After leading the field at the 54-hole mark, Harry Cooper blew up on the final 18, scoring a 75, four over par. The pace also proved too hot for Hambrick, who also took a 75. Both were frequently three-putting on the greens.

Ralph Guldahl, Detroit, 67, 74, 76, 68—285.

John Perelli, Chicago, 71, 74, 74, 71—290.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, 71, 75, 70, 75—291.

Archie Hambrick, Zanesville, Ohio, 76, 69, 72, 75—292.

Gene Sarazen, New York, 71, 74, 73, 75—293.

Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., 77, 73, 73, 71—294.

Charles Guest, Detroit, 70, 72, 79, 75—296.

Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 74, 72, 72, 78—296.

Tony Manero, Elmhurst, N. Y., 71, 73, 74, 78—296.

Paul Runyan, New York, 72, 72, 79, 73—296.

Ky Laffoon, Denver, 70, 71, 86, 76—297; Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., 69, 75, 76, 77—297; Willy Cox, Brooklyn, 71, 74, 77, 76—298; Ky Madison, Phoenix, 70, 77, 75, 76—298; Dick Metz, San Angelo, Tex., 77, 72, 73, 77—299; Frank Walsh, Chicago, 69, 74, 79, 77—299.

Charity Day Feature To Constance Ann

New Orleans, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—A special Sunday racing program with all track funds donated to unemployment relief in New Orleans attracted 5,000 spectators to Jefferson Park, where the regular race meet closed yesterday.

The Welfare Day Purse, headliner, was won handily by B. Baughman's filly Constance Ann, ridden by J. Neel and paying $7.20 for each $2 mutuel ticket. Galahad, odds-on favorite, nosed out Pot Full for second place in the mile-and-a-half run. Galahad paid $2.80 to place and Pot Full $3 to show.

The scheduled feature was called off, cutting the eight-race card to seven events.

All gate receipts and the mutuels department's commission went to charity, while track attendants volunteered their services.

Racing will be resumed tomorrow with the Fair Grounds Track opening its season in Orleans Parish.

BUSINESS MEN WANT GAME.

The Takoma Business Men's Association team has the use of a gym tomorrow night and would like to schedule a game with a strong unlimited team. Manager Howard Drake can be reached at Shepherd 2151 between 6:30 and 7 p. m.

Vosmik, Hometown Boy, Makes Good With Indians

Rookie Impresses Billy Evans Despite 4 Straight Strikeouts; League's Hurlers Try in Vain to Find Weakness.

BILLY EVANS, general manager of the Cleveland Baseball Club, dropped off at Frederick, Blue Ridge League, one day in 1929 to have a look at a Cleveland amateur he had sent there that spring. Said amateur knowing Billy was inspecting him, struck out four times and he was at bat only four times.

"Don't let those four strike-outs worry you, Joe," said Evans to his protege after the game. "You just had a case of buck fever. We will send you to New Orleans next year and in 1931 you will be denting the walls in the Cleveland park."

"That would be great, Mr. Evans," replied the 19-year-old boy. "But now I am going to work my head off to make good in Frederick. And, I am going to do the same wherever I am next year and perhaps by 1934 I'll be good enough for the big league."

The following year the boy—yes, it was Joe Vosmik—went to New Orleans with the Cleveland Club. He was told to don a New Orleans uniform. The Pelicans had a game scheduled with Washington at Biloxi. The first time Vosmik went to bat he found Fred Marberry pitching to him, but the youngster hit for three bases. Nevertheless, Manager Larry Gilbert figured Joe was too crude and would need another season in the sticks. Accordingly, Vosmik found his way to Terre Haute.

It was about a year after Billy Evans had made the trip to Frederick that he made one to Terre Haute to again look at his big blond protege. This time Vosmik had no buck fever. He cracked three on the nose for Evans, fielded with much grace and threw like a shot.

"Report to us in September, Joe," said Billy after that game. "You ought to be a regular with us next season."

"And play in that big new stadium and everything?"

"Surest thing you ever knew, Joe. You're a natural."

The first pitcher that Joe faced when he reported to Cleveland in

Other Sports Must Doff Caps to Hunting, Fishing

Rod and Gun Sports Attract 13,000,000 in U. S.; More Than Others Getting Columns of Publicity.

By ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—After all the baseball bats, golf clubs, tennis racquets and boxing gloves have been counted or placed end-to-end, the simple fact, Government-indorsed, remains that there are some 13,000,000 inhabitants of these United States who enjoy the pastime of hunting and fishing.

These figures, indicating 10 per cent of the Nation's total population engaged in the use of the rod or gun, are arrived at as follows by the United States Senate's wild life committee:

Combination hunting and fishing licenses, 4,500,000.

Hunting licenses, 2,500,000.

Estimate of hunters, not known to hold licenses, who are exempt from license requirements for various reasons, 2,000,000.

Estimate of fishermen not holding licenses, 2,500,000.

Total, issued and estimated, 13,000,000.

Relatively, these millions get little or no publicity for their exploits, but it seems reasonably clear that the devotees of hunting and fishing far outnumber the actual participants in any other sport, game or recreational activity in the country.

Contract bridge, if a census of its followers was possible, might jump in and offer an argument. Baseball's tremendous popularity, taking fan interest as well as competitive activity, is nationally recognized. Millions of tennis and golf players enter the sports picture. Football involves other vast numbers. But the general tendency in these sports is to overestimate the number of participants and not even the top guesses put them within shooting distance of the masses who hunt and fish for fun or for necessity.

For example, in the Federal Government's survey in fourteen Southern States alone, the figure shows

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

MARLBORO drew within four points of the Capital City Soccer League lead yesterday when it defeated the leading Concord eleven on the Monument Grounds before a crowd of more than 1,000 by the score of 1 to 0. A deft shot by Wells early in the first half gave Marlboro its margin of victory.

The bristling Marlboro-Concord match was, as expected, the feature of the Capital City card. In the other two matches, Rockville was given an unexpected tussle by the game Brandywine eleven, but managed to win by three goals to none. British United ran its total of goals in two games to sixteen when it defeated Fort Myer by the score of 7 to 0. Last Sunday the United blanked Brandywine, 9 to 0.

Fort Myers Battle in Face Of Odds.

On behalf of the Fort Myer kickers, it must be said that, despite their lowly standing in the league, they have played gamely throughout the season and have had to fight handicapped by the loss of regulars through injuries and sickness. Steinberg scored all three of Rockville's markers.

The Marlboro booters played their best game of the year to nose out the German Concords. The Marylanders started to press with the opening whistle and the hard-put defense of the losers crumpled under the fiery attack early in the game, permitting Wells to crash through with the only tally of the game.

Randolph Mitchell and Mike Wyville did yeoman service to hold the Concord attackers in check after Wells' success and Suit, Bailey, Louis Mitchell and Ford aided in holding the Concordians scoreless.

Led by Beyerlin and Herath, the vanquished eleven put up a stubborn attack in the final half. Only a determined defense by the Prince Georges County lads saved the day. Beier, at center half for the Concords, was easily the best of the German booters.

Marlboro has an uncompleted game to play with Concord at the end of the season and should Concord lose a game between now and the replay and Marlboro dodge defeat, it will mean that the final game of the season will be for the title and The Washington Post cup which goes with it each year.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

INGENIOUS are the methods by which numerous prisoners have either escaped or committed suicide.

Unique devices and records in criminal museums throughout the world stand as silent monuments to the skill of imprisoned men.

There is a story of one suicide that remained a mystery for years. It was finally concluded that the prisoner had punctured a tiny blood vessel in his foot and filled it with a sufficient amount of oxygen to produce the desired result.

In San Quentin, a supposedly ignorant prisoner blew himself to bits with a pack of ordinary playing cards. Cards are made of cellulose, from which a powerful explosive, tri-nitro-cellulose is made. The condemned man selected only the red spots from the deck, soaked the pieces thoroughly, and crammed them into a hollow pipe taken from his cot. Heated over a small oil lamp, the crude bomb exploded and tore the prisoner to shreds.

In the criminal museum at Rome, there are numerous relics of prisoners' ingenuity. One man spent many months collecting all the sewing needles he could lay his hands on. He made a saw of them and cut through the bars of his cell window. Another inmate saved breadcrumbs and worked them into a paste from which he fashioned a dummy pistol. So close was its resemblance to a real gun that he held up his guard and successfully accomplished his escape.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Hialeah Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 24.—Only four horses are to start in the Alhambra Handicap, at 6 furlongs, which features the program at Hialeah Park tomorrow, but there is enough speed in the race to make a lively contest, with PENETIAN appearing best.

PENETIAN beat the champion sprinter Bacciocco last week by two lengths, running 6 furlongs on a muddy track in 1:12. The G. D. Widener gelding, under 115 pounds, will have THE HEATHEN to trim for the purse and should dispose of him. FRENCH LASS and CALF ROPER with little urging. FRENCH LASS always runs a good race, but with THE HEATHEN rounding to best form, the filly can only be relied upon to hold the show money safe. CALF ROPER has not been running to best form.

FIRST RACE—PARNELL BOUND, which won his last race, should come down to the wire well in front. COADY, winner last out, is rated the contender. CALGARY KAY, running in best form and recently defeating Lawyer, should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—HILDUR ROCK has run in several 2-year-old fields, usually getting some part of the purse, and appears best of those juveniles which have any public form in the second race, at 2 furlongs. He was second to Mike Reynolds in his last start. BOOTERSTOWN flashed a good race last out and should be the contender in this dash. YONKERS FLASH has early speed and may hold up longer tomorrow than in past efforts.

THIRD RACE—GLENSIDE won from Angry Plume in his last start in a fraction over 1:12 and is selected to repeat. TOMBEREAU is considered dangerous and at least should be as good as second. WHILE AWAY is expected to outlast TANTALIZING for the minor award. The field is evenly balanced outside of the front horses.

FOURTH RACE—MUFF set a track record at Tropical Park, and in her next race beat the fast mare Putter, and she should win from this field. ANGRY PLUME will be the contender. MY SIS won last Thursday from Miss Chilla and should hold the remainder of this field safe. BATTY showed an improved race last week.

SIXTH RACE—SOUTHCO'S last race was a winning effort, and he is selected to win over FAIR BILLOWS. BROADWAY LIGHTS looks best of the others, but RABBLE has a chance to take some part of the purse. He lost Saturday after winning two races.

SEVENTH RACE—PLAYFELLOW'S DREAM is depended upon to wake up and win. He has not been running up to form, but this is the most ordinary race in which he has started. LADY BLUE is selected to beat ELIZABETH FOX for the place. The others have little to recommend them.

PARKSBURGS PROVE EASY FOR VICS

Morris High Gun as Sport Shop Five Wins, 41 to 22.

VIC'S SPORT SHOP quintet registered its third victory of the season at Silver Spring yesterday, winning an easy 41-22 victory over the Parksburg Pros in a one-sided game. The final outcome was never in doubt. The locals led by a score of 9-2 at the end of the first quarter, 20-6 at the half and 27-10 at the start of the final period.

But for Coach Dave Keppell's instructions to "toss that apple around some" in the third period, the visitors would have been routed by a landslide of two-pointers.

Walter Morris, former Georgetown captain, topped the Sport Shop five in scoring, with 8 points. "Tubba" Farrell was a close second with 7, and all of the home team scored at least 4 points.

Vic's Show Improved Game.

The Vic's looked better yesterday than at any time this season. The majority of their shots from beyond the foul line swished through, and those that did not usually thumped into the waiting hands of a teammate. Parksburg could not penetrate the Vic's man-for-man defense, and, on the other hand, could not stop its weaving, short-pass attack.

The visitors made a feeble gesture in the general direction of a rally in the final quarter, but Charley Boice and Ed Minch were the only two able to help the cause to any extent, and their efforts were nullified when Hessler, Farrell and Morris cut loose with a flurry of double-deckers in the final two minutes.

In a preliminary game the Census Enumerators defeated Fort Myer, 47-24, to assume the lead in the Federal League.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK INDICATES UPTURN

Seasonal Trade Is Leaving Margin in Favor of Steady Improvement.

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—American business weighed the good and the bad in the week just ended, and found the scales tipped a little in favor of the good.

While no striking gains were recorded in basic lines, moderate improvement was seen. For one thing, business leaders expressed encouragement over the nonpartisan determination of Congress to give full cooperation to remedial programs of legislation.

There were distinctly encouraging signs that financial strain on several American business centers had passed, and, still another, there was definite tendency shown by important industrial leaders to concentrate their undivided attention on stimulating domestic business without giving more than passing study to the foreign outlook.

Commodity Prices Decline.

While the commodity price indexes showed a small further decline, retail centers reported a healthier public reaction based on belief that existing prices for goods represent genuine values. While still cautious, buying nevertheless registered gains, according to the mercantile reviews.

More than $150,000,000 of money has now been welded into the weaker units in the Nation's banking system, and this process has strengthened the credit structure throughout the entire country. Business has been a direct beneficiary of this process, which has been engineered by the National Credit Corporation. With the lifting of financial problems in several cities, credit has relaxed and added stimulus has been given to business turnover.

Further benefit will be given to business, industrial leaders forecast, by the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is expected to begin operations shortly. This giant Government-sponsored enterprise is expected to carry still further the efforts of the Railroad Credit Corporation and of the National Credit Corporation.

Business Improvement Seen.

In recording the past week's gains of business, it was generally agreed that while they were of seasonal proportions, they were distinctly in line with expectations. Business did better than merely hold its own.

Car loadings were moderately increased. Steel production increased to 28 per cent of capacity. While orders for materials from automobile manufacturers were still small, retail sales of leading motor companies continued to show favorable comparison with last year.

Textile trade reports were somewhat mixed, with continued good business reported in cotton textiles and knit goods. The silk industry was helped by firming of the Japanese yen. Wool textiles, however, suffered from further weakness of the price structure.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 24 (A.P.).—The Fidelity Investment Association reports for 1931 the issuance of $54,252,000 of annuity contracts, the largest in the company's history and 13.3 per cent more than in 1930. Resources of the association were reported at $29,047,124 at the end of the year.

Subscription payments for the $100,000,000 City of New York corporate stock note offering are scheduled for February 1. To minimize turnover in the money market, the city has agreed with the bankers to immediately redeposit with each bank the payment that it makes in subscription for the bonds. This method, which amounts to each bank placing the amount of its subscription to the credit of the city with its own institution, has been successfully adopted in U. S. Government financing. Transfer of funds is reduced to a minimum figure.

The Kansas Power & Light Co., controlled by North American Light & Power Co., has authorized the issuance of $7,500,000 of its first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, series C, 6 per cent, maturing February 1, 1947. The issuance is in respect of fundable acquisitions to be certified under the mortgage in connection with the acquisition of additional electric, gas and other utility properties which serve an extensive territory adjacent to the properties now owned by the company.

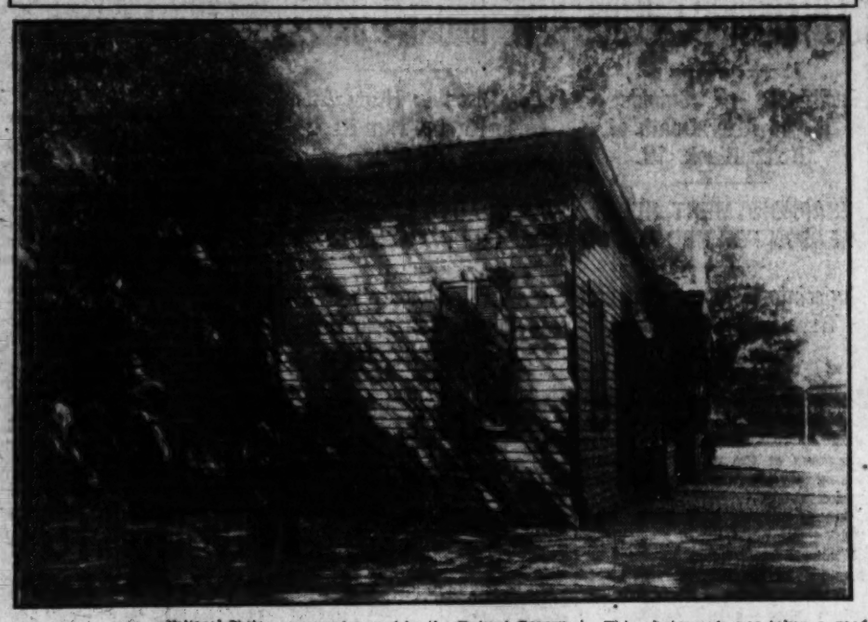
When Washington Was Younger—No. 174



National Photo.

THIS unpretentious wooden building was one of the first two schools in Washington. Located at Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast, it was known as the Eastern School; the other, in Georgetown, was the Western.

The two schools were built on ground owned by the Federal Government, the use of which for school purposes, was granted by President Jefferson.

The first schools might well have been modeled after Noah's Ark. Built entirely of wood, they were one story high, 50 feet in length and 20 feet wide. They cost $1,589.41.

This photograph was taken a good many years after the little school was built, as may be assumed by the glimpse of the street car on Pennsylvania avenue in the background of the picture. Too, the building had apparently been discontinued as a school and converted into a store.

MACHINISTS' UNION OFFICIAL HITS PLAN TO CUT U. S. FORCE

Protests Byrns Amendment to Agriculture Bill on Filling Vacancies.

REJECTION OF SECTION REQUESTED IN LETTERS

Labor Leaders Are Shocked by Proposal; Slashes in Pay Are Assailed.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Organized labor outside the Government service stepped into the Government pay fight by way of a letter made public yesterday by N. P. Alifas, of the International Association of Machinists, addressed to each member of the House.

Mr. Alifas' letter was a protest against approval of the amendments to the agriculture appropriation bill, made germane by a special rule and therefore not subject to an obvious point of order, which would go the so-called Wood amendment a considerable distance better and require the signature of the President himself to fill any vacancy in the Government service.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of the House appropriations committee, introduced the special amendment measure, the scope of which surprised many members of Congress and leaders of Government workers.

Republicans Carry Burden.

The Democrats in the House have, in general, let their Republican brethren seem to carry the burden of the movement to slash Government salaries, and, now and then the question almost has assumed the aspect of a party fight with the Democrats, armed with President Hoover's declarations, on the side opposed to pay slashes. Those who have followed developments in the situation, however, have been inclined to accept that apparent situation with something of a grain of salt and to await more definite Democratic action. Representative Byrns' amendment seemed an answer.

The Byrns amendment, together with the attack made by Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, ranking Republican on the appropriations committee, on wages paid in the Government service and in private industry, apparently has stirred labor leaders, some of whom would, for various reasons, like to see Luther C. Steward and Miss Gertrude McNally, president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, take a good licking at the hands of Congress.

Eventual defeat of the effort to slash Government salaries has been expected.

Plan Shocks Leaders.

Reenactment of the so-called Wood amendment which is a part of the appropriation laws governing the current fiscal year, had been expected. But the extent of the Democratic proposal, advanced by Representative Byrns, shocked not only leaders of the Government workers but leaders of organized labor as well.

"Our Federal Government," Mr. Alifas said in his letter sent to members of the House "is one of the largest employers of labor in the United States, and, as such, it should do its part toward absorbing at least its proportional share of the unemployment.

"If section 3 (which prohibits filling of vacancies occurring in the Government service) and carried in each one of the succeeding appropriations bills, it will in effect serve notice on the 7,000,000 unemployed and their families, that insofar as the United States Government is concerned, they shall not be employed until at least after July 1, 1933. Section 3, we maintain, should be rejected.

"Prosperity can not be restored by curtailing purchasing power. What the country needs is a market for goods, hence the necessity for developing vast amounts of purchasing power through more liberal expenditures by both Congress and private industry.

Burden Put on Workers.

"The workers of the United States, including Federal employes, have had already placed upon their shoulders most of the burden of the unemployment situation. The 7,000,000 unemployed largely belong to poor families, or those in moderate circumstances. Hence most wage workers who are fortunate enough to be working are obliged to support members of their families and relatives until they can secure work.

"This more than offsets the moderate lowering of retail prices. If Congress deprives the workers of the slight advantage of a lower cost of living, either by reducing wages or by curtailing opportunities of employment, an additional heavy blow will be struck the 7,000,000 unemployed and their families."

Turning to a discussion of taxation, Mr. Alifas said:

"A heavy tax placed upon the wealth of the country would not be a total loss to the large taxpayers, since the resulting increase in purchasing power due to the turnover of money would add to the volume of business transacted, thereby increase incomes and the value of their properties. Our organization, therefore, hopes that the House will reject both section 2 and section 3 of the agricultural appropriation bill as being contrary to public interest."

Pet Squirrels Wearing Out Welcome by Their Antics

Olive and Hyacinth, Former Dwellers in Cleveland Park Trees, Adopt Heiss Family, But Have Become Nuisances and May Lose Home.

Olive and Hyacinth have outstayed their welcome.

Leaving the confines of the leafy woods in Cleveland Park to seek the home of Mrs. Emma V. Heiss, at 3035 Newark street northwest, the mischievous rodents—Olive and Hyacinth—received a very cordial welcome, and although unusual as pets, the two gray bushy-tailed squirrels adapted themselves to the routine of the family and are on the high road to prosperity with numerous progeny, all bushy tailed and gray.

Lately, it seems, the frisky animals have become better acquainted with the Heiss family, and pranks not without a certain amount of finesse have been perpetrated by them. A singular instance is the cookie episode. In preparation for a bridge party, a number of cookies with a thick icing were carefully placed in the cupboard to allay temptation. "Out of sight, out of mind," but Olive and Hyacinth have a sense of smell.

The cakes were found, unnibbled and intact, but they were upside down, and placed in an even row. The squirrel adventurers had slipped in through a small opening and rearranged the feast to their satisfaction, but not having been invited to partake they removed nothing.

"Drop that, Olive," came the ringing command from Mr. Heiss one morning, and puzzling the family the shout brought every one to the spot. The squirrel had nonchalantly disturbed the master of the house while he was shaving. Perched on the window ledge, eating an apple, Olive was interrupting the morning routine by numerous antics all unfavorable to a steady hand.

Granted these pets are unusual, entertaining and perhaps cute, Mrs. Heiss explained that contract bridge was more than a hobby with her, and that at any time she might expect one of her frisky pets on the scene of a grand slam, and lose the hand and not find it without a prolonged search throughout the house.

A friend, attracted by the intelligent pets, requested a pair to enliven the garden around his home, and a trap was placed in the attic residence of the animals. The squirrels refused to be moved, and shunned the device.

In the past week a limit to patience was reached by the adopted guardians of Olive and Hyacinth. A policeman was called to still the incessant chatter of the numerous pets. The Eighth Police Precinct went into a huddle to decide what was to be done, and they decided that the problem was out of their jurisdiction. The matter is to be presented to the park police, but there is a chance that if the two squirrels and all of the little squirrels stay on their good behavior they may remain.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO IRVIN C. BARBER

Superintendent of District Repair Shop Is Found Dead at Home.

Irvin C. Barber, 49 years old, for years superintendent at the District repair shop at 200 Bryant street northwest, was found dead in his second-floor quarters at that address yesterday afternoon after friends with whom he had an appointment became anxious because he failed to appear.

A radio was playing in front of the chair in which Barber sat and it was assumed by responding physicians and fire rescue squad members that he had died of a heart attack on Saturday night or early yesterday morning.

Barber, who was unmarried, was well known to District employes. During the World War, Barber was attached to the Motor Transport Corps of the Army and served in France. He was a member of the Vincent B. Costello American Legion Post.

Prior to the World War Barber attained a reputation as a designer of racing motor cars. A model designed by him is said to have garnered numerous trophies throughout the country.

2 SOLDIERS SEIZED IN KIDNAPING CASE

Wrecked Car of Physician Victim Leads to Capture of Uniformed Pair.

Two uniformed soldiers, who gave their names as Michael Mochann and Latney Booze and said they were stationed at Fort Howard, were captured early yesterday by Claude Reese, Hyattsville policeman, after they were alleged to have kidnaped and robbed Dr. Harry Wasserman, prominent Baltimore physician.

According to Baltimore police, who wired a lookout for the two men, the soldiers jumped on the running board of the physician's car as he was driving slowly through the streets of Baltimore, and at the point of a pistol forced him to drive out the Baltimore-Washington boulevard.

Near Laurel the kidnapers robbed Wasserman of $20 and threw him from the car. The physician's report to Maryland State police started the search that led to the soldiers' arrest in a barbecue stand after the car was found wrecked against an embankment and abandoned by the two men.

Reese, who saw the soldiers eating at the barbecue stand, subdued the men after they attempted to get away and took them before Justice of the Peace George S. Phillips, who issued warrants charging Booze with unauthorized use of an automobile and Moohan with carrying a dangerous weapon and occupancy in a car used without the owner's consent. The State police will prefer kidnaping charges against the two men and they will be given a hearing at Hyattsville today.

Louis Kaplan Dies; Poisoning Blamed

Was Cloth Firm Manager; Unidentified Man Took Him to Hospital.

Louis Kaplan, 33 years old, of 4505 Fifth street northwest, died at Gallinger Hospital yesterday afternoon as the result of poisoning, according to police. He was assistant manager of the Capital Wiping Cloth Co.

Kaplan was brought to Emergency Hospital in a serious condition early Friday morning by an unidentified taxicab driver. It was learned that he had registered the night before at the Houston Hotel as Louis Kohler.

Later Friday morning Kaplan was removed to Gallinger Hospital in a Board of Charities ambulance, according to the police report. His father, Morris Kaplan, of the Fifth street address, was notified, as was the coroner.

Man Is Arrested After Police Are Fired Upon

Andrew Elan, 50 years old, colored, who said he lives on Kenyon near Twelfth street northwest, was arrested yesterday by police after two men, whom he accompanied, allegedly fired shots at Patrolmen E. A. Jones, of the Tenth Precinct, and R. V. Sinclair, of the Traffic Bureau, who attempted to arrest them in the rear of 760 Morton street northwest.

The policemen went to the place after a citizen had reported the men were acting suspiciously. When the policemen approached the car, two men fled. Shots were exchanged. None took effect. Elan, who remained in the car, was held for investigation.

C. Vanderbilt, Jr., Loses 2 Coats and Dog to Thief

Washington thieves improve with each job, and famous names mean nothing, either.

Yesterday they stole two overcoats, valued at $100, from Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and took along the blooded German police dog he left to guard them.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who has been stopping at the Mayflower Hotel for several days, reported he missed the coats, made abroad for him, when he and his chauffeur went to his machine preparatory to going to New York. Both his favored canine watchman and the coats were gone.

At the Mayflower last night it was said Mr. Vanderbilt had checked out, and no information as to the depredation on his automobile was available.

POISON DOSE FATAL TO STUDENT NURSE FOLLOWING FAILURE

Certificate of Suicide Is Issued After Death of Helen Black, 18.

DISAPPOINTMENT HELD REASON FOR HER ACTION

Superintendent at Hospital Reveals She Had Been Despondent.

Miss Helen Black, 18-year-old student nurse at Emergency Hospital, died at that institution yesterday afternoon as the result of allegedly taking a quantity of slow-acting poison tablets.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night issued a certificate of suicide after being informed by members of the headquarters homicide squad that Miss Black took the poison "with suicidal intentions."

Had Been Despondent

At Emergency Hospital last night, Charles J. Stoddard, night superintendent, said Miss Black "had been despondent." Beyond this he would advance no reason why the young probationary nurse would have desired to take her life.

It was learned, however, that Miss Black had been informed on January 19 that she would not be graduated from the student nurse class. She had then rushed to her room, shortly afterward taking the tablets which resulted finally in her death.

Funeral Not Yet Set.

Miss Black is survived by a widowed mother, Mrs. Laura Black, 6207 Eighth street northwest; two sisters, Estelle, 21, and Mary, 12, and a brother, Warren, 20.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

MAN HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE IS FOUND TO HAVE BROKEN SKULL

Police Discover Hurts After Once Placing Him Back in His Cell.

WAS IN AUTO ACCIDENT, HE TELLS AUTHORITIES

Survey of Hospitals Fails to Reveal Name on List of Recent Patients.

A man, who was held in the First Precinct for 24 hours on a charge of drunkenness, is near death in Gallinger Hospital from a fractured skull, believed to have been received several days before his arrest.

He is Charles E. Williams, 38 years old, of Pottsville, Pa., and was arrested at 8:20 Friday morning by Patrolman L. Bailies, of the First Precinct. On Saturday morning officials were ready to bring him to Police Court to face the drunkenness charge, when police noticed he was still staggering.

Put Back in Cell.

Believing that he was still under the influence of liquor, he was put back in the cell. An hour later his condition had not improved. It was noticed that he had a shaved portion on the back of his head, and Williams told police he had been in an automobile accident several days earlier, and had been treated at a local hospital.

He was then taken to Gallinger Hospital, where, it was learned, his skull had been fractured. The police who arrested him said they smelled alcohol on his breath. He gave an address on John Marshall place. Inquiries there revealed that the occupants of the house did not know him.

Was Refused Entry.

The police learned that he had been loitering about the Central Union Mission on John Marshall place. For several days he had sought admission there, and on January 19, he was refused entry because he appeared to be drunk.

When it was learned that he had a fractured skull, the police sought to obtain from him the name of the hospital at which his injuries were treated, but he was unable to aid them. A survey of hospitals was made; and there is no record at any of them, showing that treatment had been given to any one of that name.

Gallinger Hospital doctors gave his condition as "extremely critical."

The second automobile was operated by Margaret Riker, of Alexandria. A passenger in this car, Herbert Rumey, of Clarendon, Va., received slight lacerations of the face.

New Bridge and Highway Tried Out by 21,300 Cars

Ten Thousand Fewer Than Week Ago Use Arlington Span and Mount Vernon Road; Formal Opening Forecast February 1.

The orderly procession that marked the opening of Arlington Memorial Bridge and the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, last Sunday, was repeated yesterday as 21,300 automobiles crossed the new span and road without accident or police interference.

The volume of traffic was 10,000 less than on the previous Sunday but between the hours of 3:30 and 5 o'clock, when the roadways carried their peak load at an approximate speed of 45 miles per hour, a patrol of eight policemen was on hand under the supervision, of Capt. R. C. Montgomery, superintendent of the United States Park Police, to keep the steady stream of cars on the go.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, expects that with favorable weather and steady progress on the remaining construction work, the Arlington Memorial Bridge will be open permanently about February 1. A temporary lighting system on the bridge being installed, with a permanent installation of lights to be completed about April 1.

Lieut. Henry Helms, in command of the police unit at the highway, yesterday reported no mishaps, but recommended a change of the direction signs and the addition of new markers on the road. He also recommended that the circle around the Lincoln Memorial be made a one-way thoroughfare.

Louis Wolfe, a local hiker, is claimant of the honor of the first hiker to walk the new highway, having completed a round-trip of 30 miles afoot to Mount Vernon during the last week. Wolfe has covered in different hikes more than 3,000 miles, and refers to his latest jaunt as "just another day's tramp."

VALUE OF SUFFERING IS CITED BY PASTOR

Termed Finest Teacher by Dr. F. F. Holsopple in Sermon.

"The finest teacher we can have is suffering," said Dr. F. F. Holsopple, preaching yesterday at the Church of the Brethren.

"Suffering goes to our inmost being. It reaches the inner self. It searches the framework of our being and tears away all pretense. It reveals our real character as nothing else can do. No sham or deception can withstand its searching tests. By its effects we can know whether we are a new creature or merely a hollow counterfeit. And it is only by ourselves going through the discipline of suffering that we can best minister to those who suffer," he went on.

"Suffering brings victory. 'Let no man that putteth on the harness boast as he that putteth it off,' said Ahab, the king. In his letter to the Romans Paul said, 'For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord.'

Underwent Further Test.

"But for Paul there were still long days of testing. And it is only in his second letter to Timothy that we hear the final paeon of victory, when from the dungeon of the Mamertine Prison, bound in chains, age having done its work, he wrote just before his execution at the hand of Nero:

"'I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness,' and then, with a prophetic vision, as he saw the host that would come after him, 'and not for me only, but for all those who love his appearing.'"

Dr. Holsopple's topic was, "A Son of God," his text being drawn from the sixth verse of the fifth chapter of Hebrews.

Cites Signal Honor.

"To be a member of a royal family, or even remotely connected therewith, is considered a rare privilege by most men. I recall one humble woman who boasted that the royal blood that flowed in the veins of Queen Victoria also flowed in hers. It is a more signal honor that we are counted worthy to be adopted into the kinship of the family of God," he said.

"Just why men must suffer may never be fully revealed during this life. It is my strong conviction that eventually it will all be made clear and plain to us. That we shall in that knowledge rejoice exceedingly. But I also know that it is not always clear to us now.

"As a son Christ learned obedience. It was by disobedience that sin entered the world. Neither science nor philosophy has given a clearer explanation of the tremendous fact of sin. Only by a species of philosophic reasoning can we deny the fact of sin. It takes the practice of obedience as well as the theory of obedience to make obedience perfect."

CHRIST'S TEACHINGS HELD TODAY'S NEED

Cathedral Preacher Asserts His Leadership Would Smooth Troubles.

The leadership afforded by the teachings of Christ is what the world needs today "to bring a more just and brotherly social order of the difficulties, the changes and the heartbreak of these troubled times," the Rev. William Adams Brown, professor of systematic theology at Union Theological Seminary, New York, declared yesterday afternoon, preaching at the Washington Cathedral.

Taking the theme of "What Jesus Means to Me," Dr. Brown said that Christ's person and character "exemplifies the controlling and animating spirit of an ideal society, the spirit of brotherliness, of self-sacrifice, of trust and of creative love."

Dr. Brown said that the teachings of Christ meant three paramount things to every person. First, "Jesus gives me a personal ideal I know I ought to be," he declared, citing the Lord's faith, happiness, courage, hope and "a quality rarer still, the serenity which He called peace." Secondly, he cited that Jesus gave the clearest idea of God, "perfect righteousness, unwearying patience and a love which no sin can alienate and no suffering can defeat." As the third aid to life from Jesus, he declared that the example of Christ "gives me the leader in the struggle" to bring a better condition to affairs for the world and society.

The principles of Christ should be the guideposts in every person's life, Dr. Brown emphasized. He said that the ideals of His life should be "indispensable parts of the life of every person."

With the Right Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, statesman and author, announced to lecture in this city, at Constitution Hall, on February 12, under the auspices of the Community Institute, two other attractions, one in the music series and one in the varied interest series, are also announced for February.

Sylvia Lent, of Washington, well-known violinist, will make her first appearance here under auspices of the institute, at Central High Auditorium, on Tuesday evening, February 2, at 8:15 o'clock, and on Tuesday evening, February 16, Ellery Walter, called by Benito Mussolini the "supreme adventurer," will make his first appearance also at Central High Auditorium, presenting an amusing story of his own adventures, "High Hat and Low Bows."

Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, secretary, announces the subject of Mr. Churchill's lecture here to be "World Economic Prices," which he himself requested to be his subject. The unusual interest in his approaching Washington appearance and the numerous inquiries regarding the sale of tickets for the lecture, has led Mrs. Swormstedt to place tickets on sale this week at the Arthur Smith concert bureau, the A. A. A. and the Talbert ticket bureau in the Willard. Tickets also may be obtained at the Community Institute in Franklin Administration Building, National 1300.

Premature Cherry Blooms Menaced by Odd Weather

The warm weather recently registered on local thermometers has given the horticultural division of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks a chill.

Minute inspection of buds on the Japanese cherry blossom trees has become a repeated ritual, as a continued warm forecast is becoming habit with the Weather Bureau. The horticultural unit reports that as yet there are no buds, but that there is danger of premature budding.

The first sign of spring, usually evidenced by the yellow-blossomed forsythia, has been heralded in the Sylvan Theater and in the parks in and around Washington by these blossoms, and a large blooming of roses was reported in the District nurseries during the warm days.

Back in your own back yard buds are beginning to form and, according to Government experts, if thermometers don't stay in their proper place, the spring and summer will have a poor floral display.

CLERGYMAN DRAWS MORAL FROM CASE OF 'CLOSET VICTIM'

Dr. Lenski Inquires What Practical Results Have Followed Expose.

"SPEECH-MAKING" HELD POOR REMEDY FOR ILLS

'Emotional Goodness' Called Crime Against Long-Suffering Humanity.

"What child are we now helping that we did not help before simply because we have sympathized so much with the Riley child?" asked the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, preaching yesterday at the Grace Lutheran Church on the subject, "Stop Talking."

"How we all are aroused at the first sight of human suffering. A little child is abused, penned in a dark room for years; how bitter and how wordy we immediately become. Wait, to what practical use is this emotion being put?" Dr. Lenski continued.

Alleviation of Human Needs.

"There is plenty of room for talk in the solution of human problems. But not as much as some talkers incline to think. The thing our world needs at this time is not more talk. We need to have some of our talkers silenced, strongly muzzled, in order that our willing workers may be able to get back to work. We need to demand of certain individuals that they cease impeding the relief of the masses by their mania for speech making and by their desire always to be bursting forth into words.

"The existence of human needs which can be alleviated by care and prompt attention is one situation before us today calling for less talk and more action on the part of all concerned.

"Emotional goodness that consists chiefly in blowing off steam is often a crime against long-suffering humanity. People guilty of it are identical with the Pharisees whom Christ once scorned because, as He said, they were all lip and mouth, with no heart.

Talk No Solution of Preblems.

"Talk has its place, but it is no solution to the poor man's problem. To tell your tale of woe to the world is often to cause the world to turn away in weariness and disgust. There is a better way to go at the whole matter, to say within your soul: 'I will carry on to the very end. Let others weep and whine; my energy shall go into a determined effort to better things.'

"By leading an honest life a man comes to know that an honest life is the only life. By leading the Christ-like life he comes to know that it is the best life and that none other can compare with it. Which is but to say to many among us who want to know the eternal truth about God that, if our quest is ever to be accomplished, we shall have to turn from words to deeds, from arguments to action, from a rehearsing of many sayings even until the doing of the will of God as Christ made it plain," Dr. Lenski concluded.
